Residents still pushing for new trustee election

by LYNN ASINOF

Wheeling residents are continuing to circulate petitions throughout the village calling on the village board to fill the trustee seat vacated by Richard Missing with a special election rather than an appointment.

Maureen Pitt, 294 W. Strong St., presented the board with petitions signed by 300 people earlier this week. She said these signatures were collected in less than six hours, indicating strong sentiment in favor of a special election.

"The sentiment is very strong for a special election, but I wouldn't even venture a guess as to how many signatures we've collected," she said. "I myself would guess that we will hit 1,000, if we haven't already."

Mrs. Pitt said there are about 12 or 14 people circulating the petitions. She said most of those who are gathering signatures are not associated with any Wheeling political party.

"OF COURSE WE started through WHIP (Wheeling Independent Party)," she said. "But we have people who are not even WHIP supporters who are circulating petitions. This really does not have much to do with the party, but is really just interested citizens."

The WHIP party opposed the To Over-all Progress Party (TOP) in last month's closely contested village election. All but one trustee on the village board is associated with the TOP party.

According to Village Atty. Paul Hamer, the village board can fill Missing's vacancy in three ways. In a report to the village board earlier this week, Hamer said the board could either call a special election to fill the seat, appoint a trustee to serve until the next village election in 1975 or allow the seat to remain vacant.

If the seat remains vacant, outgoing trustee Michael Valenza will continue to sit on the board. By law, outgoing trustees are not relieved of their duties until their successors take office.

Missing did not take office, to prevent a possible conflict between his job and Illinois law. Missing is employed as manager-buyer at Mark Drugs, a store that sells liquor. State law prohibits any elected municipal official from either the sale or distribution of liquor.

MRS. PITT SAID an appointment by the board might cause resentment in the community "depending on who they appoint." She said that a special election "is the only fair way to resolve the situation."

At least one trustee, Don Jackson, has already indicated his support for a special election. Jackson also signed the petitions calling for such an election.

Village Pres. Ted Scanlon previously said he favored appointing former trustee Al Long to the seat. He said that since Long was the next highest vote getter in the election, losing to Missing by only three votes, it would be a reasonable way to fill the vacancy.

When contacted yesterday, Scanlon said he did not know what weight the board would give to the petitions when deciding how to fill the vacancy. "I haven't even discussed it with the board," he said. "I probably won't even see the board until Monday."

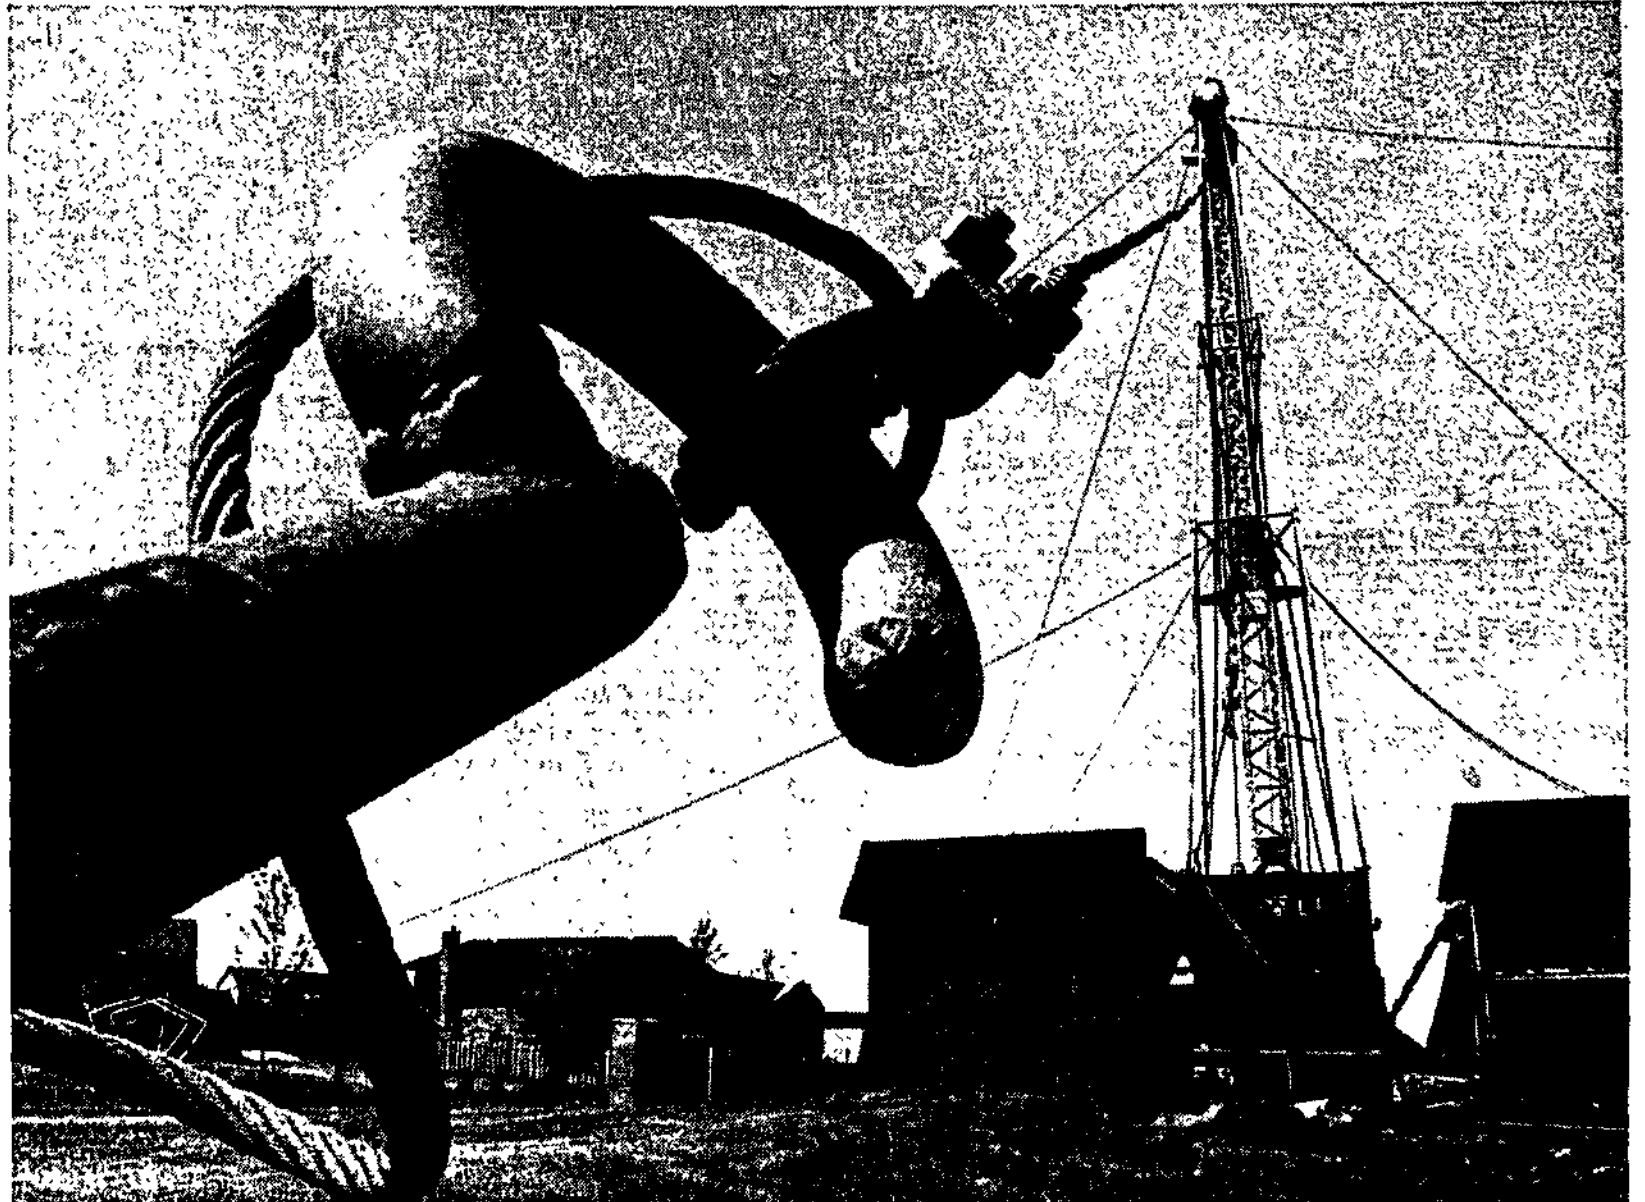

It is estimated that a special election to fill the vacancy would cost about $2,400, based on the figures from last month's election.

MRS. PITT, however, said no one has objected to spending this money to fill the seat. "Everyone I have talked to has said let's have an election no matter what the cost," she said.

She added that most people did not seem to think $2,400 was too much to spend in filling the vacant seat.

Mrs. Pitt said she hoped the village board would take the petitions into consideration in making their decision. "I am hoping they will take into consideration what the petition said," she said. "I feel quite certain that they are going to do what is best for the community."

According to Mrs. Pitt, the petitions will be presented to the village board at 8 p.m. Monday at the regular board meeting. She said she did not know of any other plans to address the board on the matter.

MOTORISTS TRAVELING on Palatine Road have inquired as to why the derrick near the Windsor Drive intersection has been erected. The derrick is assisting in emergency repairs for an Arlington Heights well. Several months ago, impure water was detected entering the well, forcing public works officials in that village to take it off the water supply. A special sleeve is being built for the well to block the source of the contaminated water, at its point of entry. Arlington Heights officials hope to have the repairs made by summer.

3 per cent raise for village employees

New village budget near presentation

by LYNN ASINOF

The 1973-74 Wheeling budget is in the final stages of preparation and should be ready for presentation to the village board before the end of the month.

The budget will include an eight per cent across-the-board salary hike for village employees agreed to during negotiations with the village board.

Village Mgr. George Passolt yesterday predicted an increase over last year's $2,940,864 budget but said no specific estimate will be available until next week.

ABOUT 40 PER CENT of last year's spending went for salaries. Passolt said he expects that percentage to remain about the same this year.

Because of the salary increases, Passolt said he is now meeting with various department heads in the village to see what parts of the budget can be cut.

"It's hard to say what it's like because you don't know until it's all down," Passolt said. He said he would probably have some estimate of the size of the increase by next week.

The manager said his goal in preparing the budget is geared to the overall tax rate for the village. "I'm trying to hold the budget so as to avoid a tax increase," he said. "My goal with village tax increases is to keep them to a bare minimum."

The 1972 property tax rates were recently announced, with Wheeling's portion of the bill decreasing 21 per cent from last year. The rate went down from 72.2 cents per $100 assessed valuation to 57 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

To achieve this goal, Passolt has set definite limits on the budgeting of each village department. He said he has limited any increases in expenditures for either materials or outside services to four per cent.

The manager has also begun a cost reduction program for any department submitting budget requests of more than $20,000. He said departments heads must submit a letter outlining ways to substitute more economical materials, reduce overtime, increase productivity and find more economical ways to do things.

PASSOLT SAID the department heads also must explain what impact the cost reduction program has had on their budget requests.

The manager said he is also considering the possibility of building a new addition to the present village hall. He said there is now a definite need for more working space for village employees.

He noted, however, that there may not be enough money available during the coming year to finance this project. "If I don't have the money, you're not going to get it," he said.

Other new projects being considered under this year's budget are the paramedic program, an addition to the fire station on Dundee Road and increases in personnel for several departments.

"I know what all the needs are, but I don't know what all the needs are that we can afford to buy," Passolt said. "I hope to be done by the end of May. I hope to be able to come up with some sort of final thing for the board to look at."

Trustees OK Tahoe Village Phase II

The Wheeling Village Board has approved plans for the Phase II of the Tahoe Village development on Buffalo Grove Road.

Developer Ben Pekin has modified plans for this second phase to fit in with plans to change the density and type of housing for the entire development. Pekin is scheduled to present modifications for the entire project to the plan commission this month.

According to Pekin, the originally proposed two-bedroom and four-bedroom units are not selling well. He said the project was therefore being redrawn to provide more three-bedroom townhouses.

He said the revised plan for the development would reduce the number of units from the original 1,146 to 745. Pekin said the number of bedrooms in the development would also be reduced from 2,622 to 2,339.

Ken Gill, superintendent of School Dist. 21, informed the board that he would not object to the revision of plans for Tahoe Village. He said the reduction in the number of units would offset the increase in bedrooms per unit, thus having no greater impact on the school system.

PEKIN TOLD the board that plans for the second phase had been designed so he could revert to the original plan for the development if the plan commission did not accept the proposed revisions.

He said he was merely asking that the location of the townhomes be changed so they could be built at one time.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said the request was not unusual. He said developers often change the location of their buildings because of variations in the soil conditions on their property.

Passolt said if the board approved plans for the second phase at Tahoe, the developer could take advantage of this year's building season.

The manager also noted that the new plans for the development would reduce the density of units built at Tahoe, and would provide more green space and better drainage.

The board unanimously approved the plans for Phase II of development. Village Pres. Ted Scanlon was absent from the meeting.

Young archeologists seek go-ahead

by WANDALYN RICE

About 20 students from Elk Grove and Forest View high schools are spending the week in southern Illinois learning about archeology. However, school district officials still aren't sure whether the students will have a chance to put their knowledge into practice when they return.

The students are learning the methods of archeological excavation under the direction of Northwestern University archeologists. At the same time, High School Dist. 214 officials are negotiating with two property owners near Elk Grove Village for permission to have the students explore their property.

The two owners have put their property into a proposed development, called the Devon-53 project, now under consideration by the Elk Grove Village Plan Commission. Last spring students found arrowheads and other artifacts estimated to be 7,000 to 10,000 years old on the land, which is near the intersection of Devon Avenue and Ill. Rte. 53.

Dist. 214 Assistant Supt. Rod McLennan said this week the school district's attorney has been working with the attorney for one property owner, Ted Szywala of Schiller Park, to try to draw up the agreement allowing students to explore his property.

Civil War remains found in East

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI)—A bulldozer working a construction site near here unearthed five skeletons, believed to date from Civil War times. The state medical examiners' office indicated the skeletons were part of an unmarked Civil War burial ground. It said artifacts found with the skeletons seemed to verify that belief.

around providing legal protection for Szywala, McLennan said. "Mr. Szywala seems to me to be a reasonable man," McLennan added. "When I talked to him he seemed to me to be quite curious about what might be on the property."

Joseph Zizzo, owner of the other parcel of land where students have found artifacts, has not been so cooperative, according to district officials. Contacted yesterday, Zizzo said, "They have not given me enough proof that there are any artifacts on my property. I don't believe there are any artifacts on my property."

Zizzo added that he intends to start

The Virginia Historical Society confirmed that a number of casualties from a Civil War skirmish were buried in a common grave somewhere in the area of eastern Henrico County.

The skeletons were reburied and no further investigation was planned.

may have been brought to the location with fill that was placed on Szywala's property several years ago by the previous owner.

The land was owned at the time by Joseph and Jack Buttrick, Zizzo said, and "wherever they picked up that fill might be where the artifacts are."

Leah Cummins, a member of the Elk Grove Village Plan Commission, said the possible presence of the archeological site will be considered by the plan commission when it holds a hearing on the Devon-53 project May 30.

However, Mrs. Cummins added, "I don't know how much weight that can really have in our decision. It certainly is of concern to the plan commission members, but I just don't think we can use it to make our decision on the project."

The Devon-53 project involves a total of 287 acres with plans for single-family homes and apartments. Projections indicate the project may eventually have 13,000 residents. Petitions opposing the project have been circulating in Elk Grove Village for some time.

SCLC system starts July 2

Bus to bring minority workers to area set

A new bus system to bring minority workers to jobs in the North and Northwest suburbs will be started July 2 by the suburban division of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

The new bus system will be unique in that it will make numerous stops both to pick up workers and to drop them at various industrial plants, according to SCLC suburban board chairman Clyde Brooks.

In announcing the new system yesterday Brooks said the buses would stop at four separate locations in Des Plaines as well as plants in Skokie, Glenview and Northbrook.

But Brooks declined to name exactly which companies will be drop off points until later this month.

THE BUS trip will cost riders $2 round trip, a cost considerably lower than other bus systems which have failed, Brooks said. He said another thing the new SCLC bus system will have in its favor is that it does not cost the companies who employ the workers anything.

Predicting that "hundreds of people" will take advantage of the new bus system, Brooks said he hopes its success will demonstrate to private transportation companies that they can successfully start similar systems as profit-making ventures.

Brooks said the $2 fee is expected to more than cover the cost of the bus service. The system is a stopgap measure, he said, because the only real solution to the "employment genocide" which confronts minority workers in a massive metropolitan transportation system.

But "while the politicians talk" in efforts to prepare such a metropolitan system, "black people and minorities are locked out of jobs," Brooks pointed out.

He said that while the bus system is expected to serve both unskilled laborers and professional people, the fare is based on riders who make an average of $105 to $130 per week.

BUS PICKUP points for riders will begin at 57th Street and the Dan Ryan Expressway on Chicago's South Side with eight stops along the Ryan up until 35th street, and additional stops at 2000 north off the Dan Ryan and at Church and Lake streets in Evanston.

Clyde Brooks

Brooks said companies which will be drop off points for the bus system are all backers of SCLC's Minority Industrial Relations Council (MIRC) which aids companies in recruiting minority workers.

Brooks also announced yesterday two other MIRC projects currently under way. The first is a "major breakthrough" in bringing minority men and women into jobs as stewardesses and stewards for commercial airlines, he said. While declining to name the specific airline which is cooperating with MIRC, Brooks said the airline has asked the organization to find a hundred applicants for the positions. He said an orientation program for prospective stewards and stewardesses would be held late in June.

MIRC also is actively finding summer jobs in suburban companies for minority students, Brooks said. The jobs, which mainly involve customer service representation, package handling, ramp work and clerical work are being filled with both college and high school students, he said.

Several companies which are members of MIRC have committed themselves to fill 15 per cent of their summer jobs with minority students, Brooks said.

No big plans for O'Hare expansion: airport official

"Yakking" by officials in communities surrounding O'Hare Airport on airport noise and expansion were discounted by airport Comm. J. Patrick Dunne yesterday as merely campaign issues.

The commissioner, addressing the O'Hare Executives Club at the Marriott Motor Hotel in Chicago, said the airport authority has no designs on surrounding land in its future development plans.

Democrat Dunne told the Republican-dominated audience that there are no present plans to build additional runways at O'Hare, although Runway 27 R may be moved 200 feet north to accommodate a long finger (extension with parking facilities).

THIS CONTRASTS within the recent statements by Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel that Chicago has purchased Mannheim Road property from the federal government to expand the airport. The acreage Behrel referred to is bounded by Devon Avenue, Mannheim and the Soo Line R.R. tracks.

Behrel had said two other airport projects, relocation of runway 4R and 22L and addition of a new airplane bay area would point planes over a larger area of Des Plaines and Park Ridge. The intent is to have triple runways and avoid a third airport, the mayor had charged.

Dunne denied this. He also said no money has yet been allocated for another project. The development of a larger international terminal. The plans are being held up in Washington for what Dunne calls "taking over the military." This is the planned move of the military air reserve facilities to another area. The Defense Contract Administration Service Region facilities would also be relocated under this plan, allowing the third level carriers to use their present facilities.

The development of a big international building, "something we can be proud of," must wait until DCSAR is moved. Dunne said this was promised in 1969 but the promise has not yet been kept.

SOME 250 ACRES on the southwest corner of the airport may later be developed as an additional cargo area, Dunne said, after the meeting, although no appropriations have been granted for the project. He said the establishment of an airport may be included in this area, to monitor the shipment of animals at the O'Hare facility.

Dunne emphasized the influence of the airport on development of surrounding communities. He said that the airport is supported by revenue bonds, at no cost to the surrounding municipalities.

Dunne also said the present security procedures are not the final answer in preventing hijacking and other crimes. He said swift prosecution of hijackers would serve as a deterrent to these "bums."

Make a cool addition to your forced air system. The Lennox Nifty Weather Machine.

Back about 1893, when Dave Lennox made his first furnace, relief from summer heat was a hunk of ice and a patch of shade. There have been some changes made. Now you'll find the Lennox name on nifty weather machines that cool and clean the air and control moisture in homes and buildings. And these weather machines are designed so that even if you aren't lucky enough to have a Lennox furnace, you can still add Lennox central air conditioning, air cleaning and moisture control to nearly any forced air system. That's a relief, for sure. Get out from under the weather with a Lennox nifty weather machine.

Chicago Cougars of World Hockey Association

Pro hockey club leaning toward new stadium in Palatine

by MARCIA KRAMER

Owners of the Chicago Cougars professional hockey team have quietly initiated talks with Palatine officials about building an arena for the team on Northwest Highway, near the Arlington Park Race Track, it was learned yesterday.

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones confirmed that he was contacted last month by Jordon Kaiser, a part-owner of the franchise, and met with Kaiser and his attorney May 1.

Jones said that while Kaiser expressed an interest in two other, undisclosed sites in the Northwest suburbs, "I got the impression he was serious" about the Palatine location.

The likelihood of the Cougars' building a $20 million stadium in Palatine was disclosed in The Herald last July.

THE RECENT MEETING between Jones and Kaiser heightens the likelihood that Palatine will be the new home of the World Hockey Association team. An announcement is expected to be made this summer.

The Palatine Village Board will meet with Kaiser and his associates "within two to three weeks," according to Jones, for "a preliminary pooling of ideas."

The village president said that in his earlier meeting with Kaiser, "We discussed in generalities some of his ideas." Jones declined to elaborate.

Kaiser's brother Walter, also a part-owner of the team, told The Herald Wednesday night that the Palatine "seems like the most likely site" for the 18,000-seat arena.

The Kaisers own more than 40 acres north of the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club, which they built last year on Northwest Highway, between Wilke Road and Ill. Rte. 53.

The Cougar owners reportedly are attempting to buy another 16 acres stretching along Rte. 53 north of Northwest Highway. The land is currently owned by Polk Brothers, which had expressed interest a year ago in building condominiums on the site.

ANY PLANS TO build a sports arena would have to be approved by the village board because a special zoning use would have to be obtained.

Jones declined to discuss advantages or disadvantages of locating the arena in

Palatine, saying, "I don't know what all the ramifications are yet."

The village could expect substantial property and sales tax benefits from a major hockey arena. Attendance at Cougar games during the team's recently concluded first season in the Chicago Amphitheater, topped 200,000.

The Kaisers also have indicated that they would be interested in obtaining an American Basketball Association franchise to play in their new arena.

The desirability of the Palatine site is enhanced by its accessibility — Northwest Highway and Ill. Rte. 53 for automobile traffic and the Chicago and North Western Railway for train passengers. The depot being built at the race track is expected to be opened this fall at the latest.

CONSTRUCTION OF a sports stadium in Palatine would have no effect on a planned $50 million convention complex at Arlington Heights Road and the Northwest Tollway, according to a spokesman for the convention center backers.

Included in the plans for the convention center was the possibility of a 20,000-seat indoor stadium.

But Daniel Friedlander, public relations manager for the proposed Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center, said yesterday if a stadium is built in Palatine it would not jeopardize the convention complex.

"We're primarily interested in building an exhibition hall and a hotel," he said. "If there's no demand for a sports stadium, we'll put off building one."

Mount Prospect favors PHIA plans

Mount Prospect probably will consent to the incorporation of Prospect Heights, village officials have indicated.

At a meeting yesterday with members of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA), several village officials indicated they could see no major problems with agreement to incorporation. Mayor Robert Teichert and Trustee Patrick Link have also said they could see no major obstacle to the consent.

The PHIA, which for two years has met with legal obstacles in trying to incorporate Prospect Heights as a city, has asked Mount Prospect for its consent to the incorporation. While Arlington Heights and Wheeling have objected to the proposal from its beginning, Mount Prospect has remained silent on the issue.

The PHIA has lost legal battles to incorporate because state law requires consent of neighboring municipalities. There are bills pending in the Illinois General Assembly that would remove the approval requirements, but the PHIA prefers to get the consent.

"I THINK the village board is concerned about one area," Village Mgr. Robert Eppley told PHIA officials. "If we can sell them on that area, I feel the village board won't argue about it."

The trustees and Teichert are concerned about an area of about 300 homes that borders Mount Prospect. They want to know if this group wants to be annexed to Mount Prospect or become part of Prospect Heights. Currently the area, bounded by Euclid Avenue, Rte. 83, Camp McDonald Road and Wheeling Road, is in the proposed city boundaries of Prospect Heights.

The PHIA, which says the homeowners want to stay in Prospect Heights, has agreed to take a survey of the homeowners.

If they want to be annexed to Mount Prospect and are serious about it, fine. Then they're out of our boundaries," said Jack Gilligan, PHIA president. "We want to make sure we don't buy any negative votes."

BEFORE Prospect Heights can be incorporated, a referendum on the issue must be held.

Gilligan also alleviated official's concerns about part of the Rob Roy Golf Course on Euclid Avenue being included in the proposed city.

"We would go along with whatever Mount Prospect recommends on it. If they want us to leave it out, then we'll leave it out," he said. "We included it because we were afraid it would go totally multi-family."

The Mount Prospect Village Board has continued to show an interest in annexing the property although it has twice turned down requests for annexation and rezoning for apartment-type use.

Public Works Director David Creamer and Deputy Eng. Natalie Karney said yesterday they could see no problems with the incorporation. "I think it's a great idea," Creamer said.

Eppley and his staff have been instructed to make a recommendation on the consent issue to the village board. The planning commission will also hold public hearings on the matter.

Link, a proponent of annexation of the New Town section to Mount Prospect (in 1971), said he thinks Prospect Heights residents should have "the right to choose their own destiny." He said, however, that the PHIA should poll all residents adjacent to Mount Prospect to see if they want to annex or incorporate. He pointed specifically to the area north of the Rob Roy Golf Course, which includes Greco Court and Leon Lane.

$214,460 town budget, salary hikes OKd

Wheeling Township board members have adopted a budget of $214,460, which includes a 33 per cent average pay hike for 9 township officials.

The 1973-74 budget also includes an additional $125,000 anticipated in federal revenue sharing funds which makes the final figure $339,460. The revenue sharing figure was added to the budget so money can be appropriated when the board decides where it should be spent. Without revenue sharing, the budget represents a 4 per cent increase over last year's.

This year's allocation for salaries is $31,000 compared to last year's figure of $38,300, a $2,700 increase. Township officials voted themselves pay raises, ranging from 10 to 50 per cent, prior to an unopposed election in early April. The budget also provides a salary of $11,000 to the township collect should he be reinstated.

Ethel Kolerus, township supervisor, said the pay raises were to cover cost of living, merit and experience. Salaries are to absorb these factors for the members' four-year terms. "We can't have raises within our term," she said.

THE TOWN FUND, from which the officials' salaries are paid, has a $163,180 allocation, $9,701 more than last year, or a six per cent increase. In addition to salaries, the money from the fund will be used for township cemetery maintenance, insurance, supplies, town hall, officers and election expenses.

The general assistance fund has decreased from $32,850 to $31,300, a difference of $1,550 or a three per cent drop.

"We deleted spending for the county home in Oak Forest and other institutions because we haven't had any call for these last year," said Mrs. Kolerus. "If we find there is a need for these services, we'll use money out of our contingency fund."

Residents of Wheeling Township should see a 22 per cent reduction in the township tax rate, from .038 to .028 per $100 assessed valuation, according to Marshall Theroux, Wheeling Township assessor.

"The reduction in the tax rate resulted from an increase in assessed valuation of property and by 'holding the line on the budget,'" according to Mrs. Kolerus. She said that certain allocations in the budget had been inflated in previous years to avoid having to sell tax warrants. This year's budget has more realistic figures, she said.

Board members have not determined what specific organizations will receive federal revenue sharing, but did decide that money should be allocated to four concerns: senior citizens, youth, environment and mental health.

Area sanitary districts form group

Nine area sanitary districts, including four from Prospect Heights, have formed a regional association to increase cooperation and share information.

The new Cook County Association of Sanitary Districts was formed at the urging of the Prospect Heights Old Town Sanitary District (OTSD). Supt. Dick Schuld said OTSD took the initiative because it is the largest sanitary district in the area.

Other members of the new association are the Country Gardens Sanitary District, Prospect Heights Sanitary District, Wolf Mandel Sanitary District, all of Prospect Heights; Prospect Meadows Sanitary District, serving the unincorporated Prospect Meadows subdivision; Forest River Sanitary District, serving the unincorporated Forest River subdivision; Glenbrook Sanitary District, Northbrook; Oak Meadows Sanitary District, Des Plaines and the Pinegate Subdivision, Arlington Heights.

The association elected officers at a meeting Monday night. They are Schuld, president; Willard Beaserderfer of the Oak Meadows district, first vice-president; Myron Heimerle of the Country Gardens district, second vice president; Ken Bodle of the Glenbrook district, secretary; and Harold Hodge, of the Pinegate district, treasurer.

Schuld said the association will now concentrate on getting new members from other areas of Cook County. Dues are $25 per year per sanitary district. Schuld said the executive board will meet June 4 to make future plans.

Scandal threatens to endure through second term

Watergate high on Nixon 'crisis list'

by MIKE FEINSILBER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — No one knows if Richard Nixon still keeps count of his crises, as he did 11 years ago when he published his autobiography, "Six Crises." If he does, no one but Richard Nixon knows what number he has reached.

The first six were the Alger Hiss case which propelled Nixon to fame; the $18,000 fund episode which led to his "Checkers" speech in the 1952 campaign for the vice presidency; President Dwight D. Eisenhower's debilitating illnesses; the mob attacks in his 1958 trip to Latin America; the "Kitchen Debate" with Nikita Khrushchev, and his 1960 race for the Presidency, lost by an eyelash.

WHATEVER ITS count on his personal scoreboard of stress, Watergate will hold an enduring place on Nixon's crisis list.

It is the crisis that will not go away. It threatens to dog the remainder of his Presidency. And there is talk in Washington that it may cut short his Presidency.

So far, nearly 100 members of Congress have asked the Legislative Reference Service for material on the impeachment or resignation of a President. Watergate now moves into Phase III, the very public examination, on television, of the very private men around Nixon.

Unlike the characters of other scandals who were accused for the most part of using power for personal aggrandizement or greed, they stand charged with using power to perpetuate themselves in positions of power.

WATERGATE'S PHASE I was the discovery, shortly after midnight on Saturday, June 17, 1972, by an $80 a week security guard, Frank Wills, of taps on two doors at the Watergate office building to prevent them from locking.

Wills removed the tape and continued his rounds. Ten minutes later, he returned "just to make sure." Again, the doors had been taped open, all the way to the sixth floor headquarters of the Democratic National Committee. Wills called the cops.

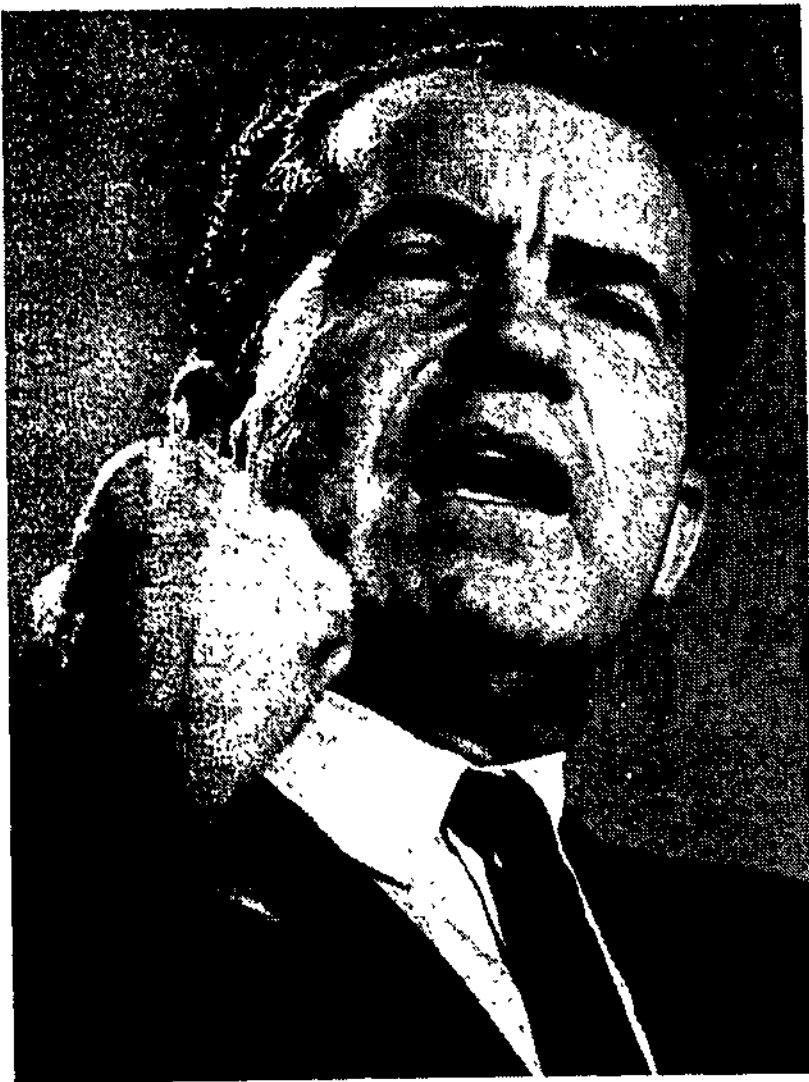

The discovery by the Washington Post of the significance of the Watergate break-in followed quickly. Within three days, the Post found the link with the White House. It was an address book in the possession of the burglars bearing the initials "W.H." and the notation "W. House" next to the name of E. Howard Hunt.

"Mr. Hunt is not here now," a secretary said when a Post reporter telephoned the executive mansion.

Ronald Ziegler at first would not dignify what he called "a third-rate burglary attempt" with comment from the White House pedestal. He accused the Post of "shabby journalism."

ON THE CAMPAIGN stump, George S. McGovern set aside his denunciations of the Vietnam bloodshed and of tax-deductible three-martini businessmen's lunches and sought from time to time to capitalize on the Watergate disclosures.

There they were, he would tell audiences, caught in the dead of night, caught with their burglar tools, caught with their rubber gloves on, caught with their sophisticated cavedropping equipment, caught trying to subvert the American political process.

But Watergate never caught on as an issue.

It was too complicated, involving confusing accounts of the transfer of large sums of cash. No one had ever heard of the defendants. It was "just politics," the sort of thing politicians do all the time. It was a "caper." It provided snickers, not outrage.

THE NIXON landslide, in November and the guilty pleas of Hunt, four Cuban-surnamed co-conspirators and the conviction of G. Gordon Liddy and James W. McCord Jr., seemed to settle the matter.

But Federal Judge John J. Sirica, a Republican, was not satisfied. Hoping to induce them to tell from where and from whom their orders came, he imposed heavy "provisional" sentences on the defendants. And it worked.

PHASE II: McCord talks. In a letter to Sirica, he said perjury had been committed at the trial. He said the defendants were pressured to keep quiet and plead guilty. Later he was to report that executive clemency — which can only be granted by the President — was promised in exchange for silence.

Starting in late March, a daily stream of disclosures came tumbling out, sprung loose by Sirica's strategy. The scandal lie committee to scrutinize the CIA. In pain and anger, the senators flinched at learning that the CIA had been compromised, too.

In the midst of some of the most extraordinary events in the history of American government came one of its most extraordinary speeches — and its equally surprising reaction.

The President of the United States, on television, declared his ignorance of events and innocence of connivance. And one half of the people, their sentiments measured by George Gallup, said they did not believe him.

NIXON SAID HE had been misled by "people whose zeal exceeded their judgment." He said he was rejecting "the easiest course" which would be "to blame those to whom I delegated the responsibility to run the campaign."

But then, while acknowledging that the "responsibility" was his and accepting it, he did proceed to blame subordinates. Seeking to bring "peace to America, peace to the world," he said, he had "sought to remove the day-to-day campaign decision from the President's office and from the White House."

Most significant was what Nixon did not say. He did not say, "I had nothing to do with it. I knew nothing about it. I want the whole story told." And the polls showed that the presidential protestation of innocence was not accepted by a lot of people.

IN THAT atmosphere starts Phase III: Watergate in the glare.

In the staid and ornate Senate Caucus Room, with its marbled walls and red carpet and history of Joe McCarthy and Teapot Dome, the President's conduct of politics is to be exhumed.

The Senate inquiry is unusual. It is less a partisan battle than an institutional one. Rather than match Republicans against Democrats, it pits Congress against the executive.

The Congress will seek to learn how much the President knew of Watergate, how much he condoned. That is the basic question here.

FROM THE ANSWERS, which are expected to be months away, will come congressional decisions on what to do about what it learns.

Unanswerable, however, and frightful, is another question: Did Watergate succeed? Whatever regrets, whatever condemnation it now brings, did the campaign of subversion, espionage, and sabotage abuse and distort the nominating process of the Democratic party so as to subvert the American people's solemn right to choose their leaders?

Historians as well as senators will mull over that.

Annual tax assessments urged in state report

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI)—A report issued to the Illinois General Assembly recommended that the state take over responsibility for assessing some large and complex properties and that all property assessments be done annually instead of every four years.

The 100-page report was made by the staff of the Illinois Economic and Fiscal Commission, composed of 20 members of the Senate and House. They were appointed to study tax assessment last December when the legislature considered and rejected Gov. Richard Ogilvie's proposal to freeze all property taxes.

Recommendations in the report, made by the commission's staff members include:

• That the state take over responsibility for assessing public utilities and possibly large complex industrial and commercial properties. Currently, almost all assessments are made by county and township officials.

• That property be assessed every year instead of every four years. Cook, Lake and McHenry counties assess one-fourth of all property each year and all other Illinois counties assess all property once every fourth year. Either method, the report said, results in lost revenue for the county since tax increases are deferred until reassessment. The report said annual assessments would "not disrupt the homeowner's budget as quadrennial reassessment does."

• That township assessors be required to take state qualifying examinations. "The average Illinois county has 17 township assessors and township assessors are generally unqualified," the report said.

The report also made recommendations for improving the multiplier tax system, improving the appeal process and providing taxpayers more information on how property tax is computed.

Copies of the recommendations were distributed to all Illinois legislators. Several bills dealing with proposals similar to those in the report are now pending in the legislature, but no property tax reform measures are expected to emerge from the spring session.

SLIDING DOWN A chute and diving into Belleau Lake in Des Plaines were some of the 4,500 rainbow trout that Cook County Forest Preserve District employees stocked into three area lakes earlier this week. The fish, averaging half a pound each, were given two days of grace before the district reopened the lake today to area fishermen. The short "no-fishing" season was designed to help the fish become acclimated to the lake and begin feeding on natural foods.

OUT OF AN aerated tank in a forest preserve district truck, a netful of rainbow trout are loaded into a chute on their trip from a Wisconsin trout farm to Belleau Lake, west of the Tri-State Tollway off Busse Highway.

Stalemate: a bugaboo—or a good endgame strategy?

To the beginning player, stalemate is a bugaboo designed for no apparent reason except to frustrate him. How many times has he

Diagram 1 repeated the type of position in Diagram One, played K-B5 or whatever, waited for his opponent to move and be checkmated, and instead stared in horror at the position as he realized that by depriving the enemy king of all escape squares with the last move, he had created a stalemate?

With time the developing chess player discovers that stalemate positions occur not only as a result of error but also as an intrinsic element of endgame strategy, albeit in a limited number of positions. For example, in each of the two positions given in the split

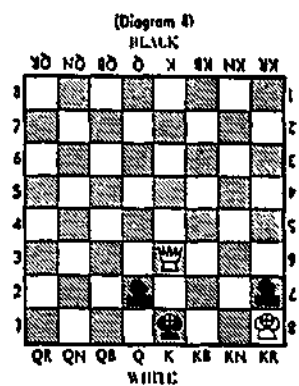

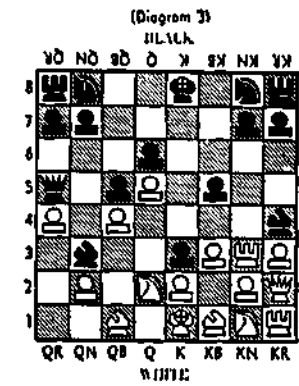

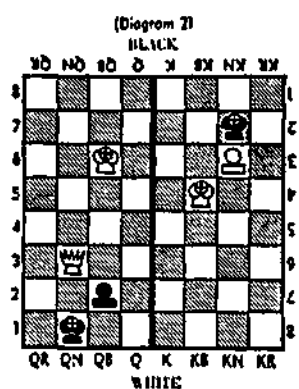

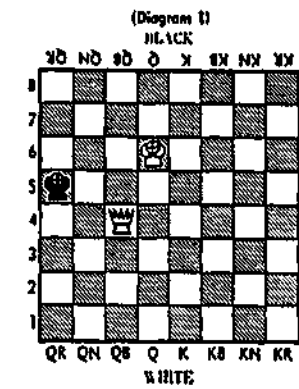

K-N6 (what else?). Stalemate.

Even with this degree of sophistication, few if any players think of stalemate except as an endgame phenomenon. They are essentially correct but the zany problemist Sam Lloyd has created a game in which stalemate occurs on the 12th move. Here is the position after the Diagram 3 next to last move. The problem for black is to move and stalemate white. The answer, P-B5 does the trick. See if you can work backwards and reconstruct the game. The moves as conjured up by Lloyd are given at the end of this column.

Diagram 4 If the comic perversity of Sam Lloyd has not sated your appetite here is one more stalemate position, a slight variant on the first position of Diagram Two. Again black to move. Again the correct play is to abandon the pawn with K-B1. Commenting for all of us in his "Manual of Chess," Emanuel Lasker described the last position this way, "If QxP, black is stalemated. With this, black snaps his fingers at the white queen,

How the chessmen move

THE ROOK (occasionally called the castle) moves and captures horizontally and vertically, along the ranks and files.

THE BISHOP moves and captures diagonally.

THE QUEEN, the most powerful piece on the board, moves and captures diagonally, and horizontally and vertically, along the ranks and files.

THE KNIGHT moves and captures in the form of a capital L — two spaces in either a horizontal or vertical direction and one space to the right or left. It is the only piece permitted to jump over other men.

THE PAWN moves only forward one space, with the exception of its first move when it has the option of moving two spaces forward. It captures one square diagonally forward.

THE KING moves and captures one square at a time in any direction.

Senior citizens month now being observed

"Older American in Action" is the theme of senior citizens month, now being celebrated, according to Norman R. Thoresen, manager of the Arlington Heights Branch Social Security Office.

President Nixon recently said the theme "points our attention to the basic fact that most older people are not mere onlookers in our society — nor are they society's wards. They remain vital, versatile and highly-valued contributors to the quality of American life."

Thoresen said Social Security now pays over $2½ billion a month in retirement benefits to about 18 million persons.

"Payments have increased more than 50 per cent since 1960," he said. "Recent changes in the Social Security law have increased payments to widows 62 and over and to workers who delay retirement past 65."

In the future, Social Security payments will generally increase automatically with the cost of living. "And nearly everyone 65 and over can get Medicare," Thoresen noted.

U.S. officials may urge lower speed limits to conserve gas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government officials are seriously considering a recommendation for lower speed limits, especially on interstate highways, to cut gasoline consumption and reduce shortages expected this summer, an administration spokesman told Congress.

The disclosure came from Assistant Interior Secretary Stephen A. Wakefield as he and other officials appeared before the House Agriculture Committee to outline administration moves to assure farmers enough fuel for vital food-producing operations this year.

"We are looking very closely into the area of reducing speed limits. A car going 60 miles an hour burns 11 per cent less fuel than one at 70... we're giving this very serious consideration," Wakefield said.

He told reporters later that officials are looking into possible federal authority to lower speed limits on interstate highways, but "basically are looking into encouraging action by states."

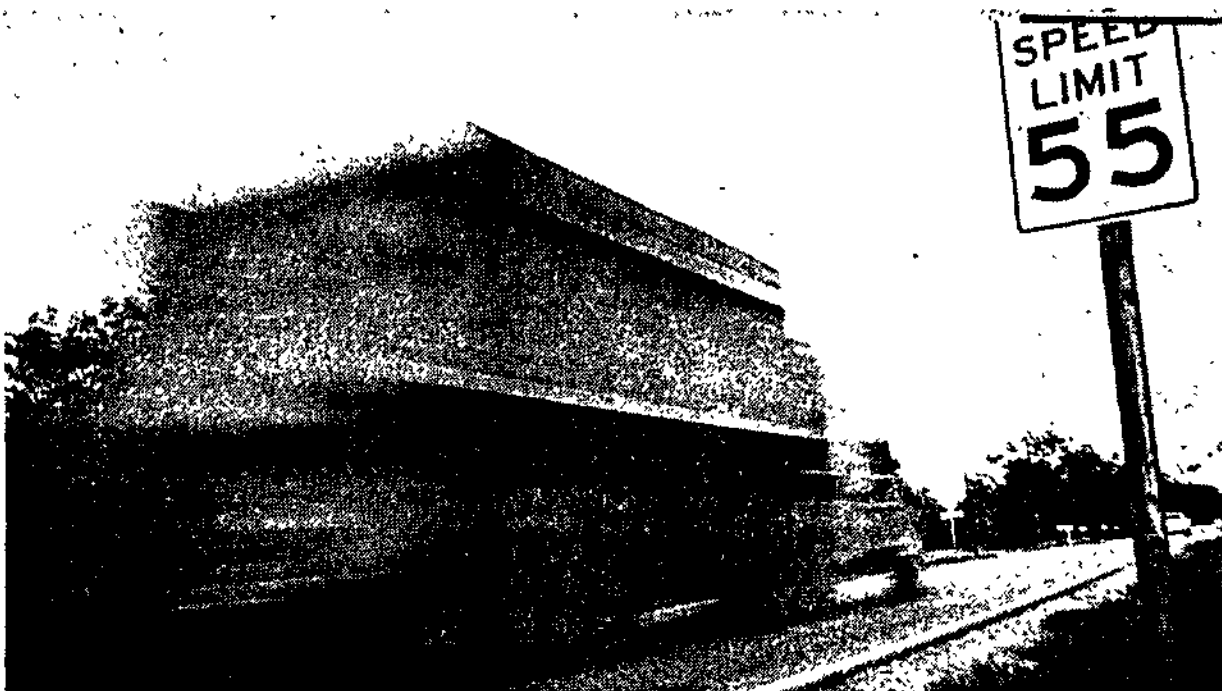

UNDER QUESTIONING by Rep. Joseph P. Vigorito, D-Pa., Wakefield said officials had considered and rejected the idea of seeking cancellation of scheduled summer auto races like the Indianapolis 500. He said cars in such races use special fuel which already has been manufactured and can't be used in passenger cars anyway. Cars in "stock car" races are not on the fuel priority lists, he added.

A spokesman for the American Petroleum Institute told the committee a major cause of the gasoline shortage is more new cars using more fuels because of such things as air conditioning, automatic transmissions and other power equipment options.

P. N. GAMMELGARD, senior vice president of the institute, said exhaust emission control devices also are causing cars to burn more gasoline.

Duke R. Ligon, head of the Interior Department's Office of Oil and Gas, added the administration's new voluntary oil allocation program should meet the basic needs of "priority users." He noted farmers have been given top priority under the program and said oil firms were already cooperating in shifting supplies to meet farm needs.

Ligon and Wakefield said the administration would study the need for making the allocation program mandatory, but added they believed the voluntary program would work.

New officials to learn how to govern

Newly elected municipal officials in the Northwest suburbs will be among those getting lessons in how to govern this weekend at an Illinois Municipal League conference.

The conference, at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel, is the first of two such conferences this year. The second will be held in Springfield next month.

William H. Sager, general counsel for the federal Office of Revenue Sharing in Washington, D.C., will address both the officials and municipal attorneys who will be attending an institute held in conjunction with the conference.

Among the subjects to be covered are municipal revenues and financing, council procedures, home rule and non-home rule powers, motor fuel tax administration, and planning, zoning and subdivision control.

Information on the Illinois Department of Local Government Affairs, the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, and the municipal league will also be covered at the conference. There will be reports on current legislation affecting municipalities and a panel discussion on general municipal problems.

Des Plaines City Atty. Robert DiLabardi will be among the speakers at the conference while Arlington Heights Mayor John Walsh will host the opening session.

Drivers who don't smoke may save as much as 25% with Farmers Non-Smoker Auto Policy.

HAROLD RYAN

Harold "Red" Ryan was named Holy Family Hospital's employee of the year last night.

Ryan, assistant maintenance department manager, was named in balloting by the Des Plaines hospital's 700 employees and was honored at the employee recognition dinner.

Ryan began work as a full-time maintenance engineer at Holy Family in 1970 and last December was promoted to assistant manager of the 23-man department. His hospital assignments have included all-night work to complete installation of a water conditioning deaerator, wiring and electrical repairs and maintenance of the X-ray development machine.

"Hospital maintenance is not hum-drum or limited to a few kinds of equipment," he said. "Anything I can do to make patients more comfortable gives me great job satisfaction."

A model railroader hobbyist, Ryan recently completed a 60-square-foot layout employing nine steam and seven diesel locomotives. He's also a guitarist.

"But my 3 1/2-year-old grandson is my biggest interest right now," Ryan said.

"Red is a natural leader who contributes to good morale through respect and trust in those doing a job," said Don Schwankl, manager of maintenance. "His most outstanding quality is his ability to iron out the wrinkles without scorching patients or fellow employees," Schwankl said.

Ryan and his wife live at 433 W. Turner Ave., Roselle for 23 years.

Marilyn Tousignant, enterostomal therapist, McHenry, and Charlotte Cole, LPN, Mount Prospect, were runners-up in the employee voting. The finalists and 40 hospital employees who have been on the staff for either 10 or 15 years were honored at the dinner.

County Board needs an update

It almost could have been predicted, this delaying tactic last week to block reapportionment of the Cook County Board of Commissioners.

For a while, it almost appeared that a change in composition of the board — a change which would place more voting power in the suburbs — might defy the laws of political probability and sail through the board.

After all, there seemed to be no way the majority members of the board, the Democrats, could block the shift, and it seemed hardly worth their effort to try parliamentary tactics to oppose the move.

The 1970 U.S. census mandates the change. At the present time, ten Chicago and five suburban members sit on the board. The political realities of the county dictate a ten-Democrat, five-Republican split.

The 1970 Census, however, reflects the growth of the suburbs and according to its figures, the balance of power must be shifted to 9-6, thus adding a man to the suburban Republican vote.

The effect of this will be to give the suburban Republicans veto power over such matters as the County budget. A majority of two-thirds or 10 votes is necessary to approve the budget and major appropriations and to overcome all disputed zoning matters.

In other words, absolute power is not given to the suburbs, but the power shift is considerable — and perhaps that's why the Democrats are trying the present delaying tactic.

At the Monday, May 7, board meeting, Comr. John Stroger of Chicago said he needed more time to study the matter. So the board voted to delay a final vote to Monday, June 4.

There's not been any reasonable rationale offered for Stroger's delaying move — and we think it's nothing more than a last ditch Daley Machine attempt to stall the inevitable.

The suburbs, as reflected in the 1970 Census figures, have an increasingly important role to play in the county, and one way or another, the population figures will be represented when a new County Board is selected in 1974. There's no reasonable explanation for the Stroger delay, and the board should act swiftly and routinely to approve the 9-6 reapportionment plan at its June 4 meeting.

C'mon, stop crying and let go!

Waste plan facing a challenge

by ROGER CAPELLINI
Metropolitan Editor

Ed McBroom is quite upset about an Army Corps of Engineers plan to spread human waste on thousands of acres of land in the Kankakee area and he's trying to do something about it.

McBroom has a right to be concerned. He is an auto dealer in Kankakee and is also a state senator, answerable to many people in Kankakee County who don't think much of the idea — commonly referred to as C-SELM (Chicago-Southern End of Lake Michigan).

Oversimplifying, the C-SELM plan is to take secondary effluent (treated sewage) from the Chicago-southern end of Lake Michigan area and spread it on about 100,000 acres of land in Kankakee County and Newton County, Ind., to dispose of waste through a "living filter."

The Corps says the living filter system "goes straight back to nature and simply makes use of the waste disposal processes that go on within the soil continually."

In response, McBroom introduced a bill in the Senate to block the plan.

Basically, the bill would provide no sewage materials could be applied to blocking the C-SELM plan, and apparently, is concerned little with the effect his bill could have on the Fulton County program of the MSD.

That effect, however, would be dramatic. In all likelihood, passage of McBroom's bill would put the MSD out of business in Fulton County where thousands of acres of depleted land are being reclaimed.

Although the Fulton County board has approved the plan, a referendum there certainly would kill it if a county board between Chicago and Fulton County didn't mix it first by refusing to grant a permit.

The logic behind McBroom's bill is fascinating.

Would he concede to every county board the right to prohibit the transportation of other products through its territory? And if that board gave a permit, should 50 voters have the power to force a referendum on that transportation?

The abuse of the authority obviously could lead to a chaotic disruption of all intra-state and inter-state commerce.

Without judging whether the C-SELM plan is good or bad for the people of Kankakee County — which certainly should be their decision — McBroom's bill would drag other, completely different programs down the drain with C-SELM.

McBroom probably wouldn't have offered his bill a half dozen years or so ago, however.

Back in 1967 Kankakee County, curiously, was shipping its digested sludge over to Newton County, Ind., where it was being spread on farmland for use as fertilizer.

Now McBroom doesn't have to worry about his bill hampering the operations in his county. It doesn't get shipped over to Indiana anymore.

Today, Kankakee County takes its digested sludge to an old quarry and dumps it. Blocking the MSD's attempt to use sludge to reclaim depleted soil, Kankakee County has a better answer — find a 60-acre hole in the ground and fill it up with ...

She scolds Rep. Young

I would like to comment on Rep. Sam Young's indignant disagreement with the "insinuations" made by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson, that the oil and chemical companies from whom Young accepted large campaign contributions, influenced his later repeated attempts to water down a bill designed to prevent pollution of the air with toxic substances.

It appears that Young is trying to evade a very serious charge, and I would challenge his inference that the events were coincidental, with the following facts:

Lawter Chemicals, which gave Young $10,000 in campaign contributions, manufactures chemicals for use by the coatings and printing ink industry, and these chemicals are clearly subject to the bill's provisions. American Hospital Supply, contributor of $4,500 to Young, is a large supplier of drug reagents to clinical laboratories, whose chemicals are used for such purposes as blood testing. Young, a stock holder and former officer of the company, introduced an amendment that passed by voice vote, which would exempt this production from the reporting requirements of the bill!

In addition, the freshman legislator introduced an amendment (voted down) to strike provisions which would give a citizen the right to sue a manufacturer for violating a government rule, or the government for failing to promulgate a rule where it is required.

As readers were reminded by this newspaper, earlier this year, Young received $500 from Union Oil employees, and later co-sponsored a measure to remove natural gas prices from government regulations.

If we are disturbed by this behavior, the very least that those of us in Rep. Young's district ought to do, is confront him with it, and let him know our concern. Otherwise he may assume that his actions are perfectly fine with his constituency — especially in light of the seemingly accepted, but questionable standards of conduct followed by so many public officials in today's political climate!

Principal lauds ecology help

Dear Joe Stob, president, Monarch Disposal Service:

Words alone cannot express our deep appreciation for your generosity in extending your company services during our recent Fun Fair ecology paper drive.

Frequently, people are quick to complain or criticize when a stated service is not completed according to their satisfaction. This criticism is sometimes deserved depending upon the circumstances and can be understood. However, too infrequently we do not hear about the ways in which some people, namely the Monarch Disposal Service of Elk Grove Village, extended themselves well beyond the basic responsibility to a community contracted to do business.

As you may recall, I called you several days preceding the Fun Fair to ask your support and assistance in helping us dispose of approximately 33 tons of paper the children of the Clearmont School had collected in conjunction with the Ecology-Program drive.

Your concern for our problem and generosity in helping us to collect and dispose of the paper was most welcome. It was further apparent to us that your interest and initiative was incurred at some great personal expense to you in delivering the large metal containers used in the collection of the papers.

Again, on behalf of the Clearmont P.T.O. and the boys and girls of our school, please accept our most heartfelt thanks.

Wishing you and your company continued success in your work, I remain

A. V. Mostardo, Principal

Abortions hit

The letter titled "Pregnancy 'pitfalls'" written by Mary Carlson has turned me on or off, whichever way you look at it. The letter appeared in your paper May 11.

It is very plain there are many for abortion and many against it. This decision rests on each individual, so do the consequences.

My first point is this. I was not happy to discover that I was pregnant, six times to be exact. Now, according to Mary's thinking, I should have disposed of them at this point. Being unintelligent and irrational, I stuck it out nine months each time. The unhappiness turned to acceptance, the acceptance turned to anticipation, the anticipation turned to excitement and the excitement turned into sheer joy at the sight of each precious miracle I shall call a child. Each of these "unwanted" children have names — Jerome, Joseph, Lisa, Lance, Maria and William. Isn't that odd, real people. Is their future precarious, doomed, scarred for life, unable to cope with the world? No way.

My second point is this. I love each "unwanted pregnancy" with my heart and soul. I thank and praise God every day for these precious "mistakes."

Mary, I hope and pray you will not be "lily-white" if you are ever faced with this situation.

Mrs. Theresa Pittenger

Old age ACTION

By Presidential proclamation, May has been designated as Senior Citizens Month in honor of the more than 20 million Americans who, in President Nixon's words, "have six and a half decades or more of life behind them, and rich years of promise still before them."

The theme of this year's observance is "Older Americans in Action." This is appropriate because tens of thousands of older Americans are literally in ACTION, with capital letters, as volunteers in the citizen service corps.

In fact, 30,000 men and women aged 60 and over are in ACTION's programs, according to Michael P. Balzano, director-designate of the agency.

The programs are RSVP (retired Senior Volunteer Program), the Foster Grandparent Program and SCORE (Service Corps of Retired Executives). In addition, about 800 volunteers 50 and over are active in VISTA (Volunteers for Service to America), the Peace Corps and University Year for ACTION.

ACTION's oldest volunteer is Pearl Williams, who celebrates her 104th birthday May 22. She serves four hours five days a week in the Foster Grandparent Program by caring for two mentally retarded children in a day care center in Compton, Calif.

SCORE is another program offering a variety of part-time volunteer activity. There are 4,700 SCORE volunteers, men and women who have completed their business careers, counseling small businessmen with operation and management problems in their own communities across the nation and in Puerto Rico. Since 1964 more than 200,000 people have been helped by SCORE.

VISTA and the Peace Corps on the other hand, are full time. Each requires a commitment: One year for VISTA, two for the Peace Corps. The latter sends volunteers to 59 countries throughout the world.

Most older people are not mere onlookers in our society, nor are they society's wards, notes the President in his proclamation.

"They remain vital, versatile, and highly valued contributors to the quality of American life."

land in the county unless the county board approved a permit.

It would also provide no sewage material could be transported through a county — by pipeline, barge, rail or truck — unless the county board approved a permit.

And, perhaps most importantly, a petition signed by 50 voters in any county could force a referendum to revoke any permit a county board granted.

The bill received a "do pass" recommendation in the Senate Agriculture Committee and is headed to the full Senate. Late this week it was pending in the House Agriculture Committee for a vote.

If McBroom's bill passes, it will knock out the C-SELM plan and his constituents will be happy. At the same time, however, the bill is worded so that it could very well cripple the Prairie Plan of the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

For those in Cook County who are not aware of what happens to human waste in Cook County, the MSD transports it to Fulton County after a complicated treatment process. The waste is treated by the MSD until it is no longer waste. The end product, digested sludge, currently is taken to Fulton County via barge and is applied to thousands of acres of land for use as fertilizer.

The point is, there is a world of difference between secondary effluent and digested sludge. But McBroom doesn't make that distinction in his bill.

He appears to be concerned only with

by ANTHONY NICHOLAS

LONDON — The price of an ounce of gold slipped briefly below its historic $100 Olan mark in Europe Thursday but later shot up again to close in the $105 range.

The dollar, which has taken its bumps in speculative selling for the high-priced yellow metal, lost more ground Thursday in an erratic market.

Bullion and currency dealers attributed the markets uncertainty to the opening of the U.S. Senate hearings into the Watergate affair and possible new revelations in the scandal.

Watergate was blamed in part for the unsteady market earlier this week when gold reached the $100-an-ounce mark for the first time and peaked in London at $114 and in Paris at $120.50. The official U.S. price is $122.

IN LONDON Thursday, gold dropped to $99 an ounce in early trading Thursday but increased to $104.25 in the second of twice-daily price fixings.

Gold fetched $105.79 an ounce against Wednesday's $111.70 in Paris; $103.105 Zurich, and $104.81 against Wednesday's $110.70 price in Frankfurt.

On the London foreign exchange market, U.S. currency gained ground briefly in later trading to $2.55 to the pound, one cent higher than at Wednesday's bell.

IN PARIS, the dollar ended the day at 4.435 francs on the free market used by tourists and speculators, down marginally from Wednesday's closing rate of 4.445 francs.

In what Frankfurt dealers described as light trading, the dollar steadied at the median rate of 2.789 marks, compared to Wednesday's closing rate of 2.783 marks.

The dollar lost ground marginally in Zurich, closing at a range of 3.16 to 3.165 Swiss francs against Wednesday's close of 3.1625 and 3.17 francs.

In Tokyo, the dollar stood steady all day Thursday. Most spot dollars changed hands at 284.5 yen, up 1.2 yen from Wednesday's median rate.

Wall Street chatter

NEW YORK — In the wake of Watergate, "businessmen dislike uncertain hands on the economic tiller, the gloom and doom that's mixed in with the bullish indicators," Research Institute Recommendations said. The many policy vacillations in regulatory agencies and the bureaucratic delay in decision-making has left some businessmen stranded without a verdict and others in a position to capitalize on the hesitancy affecting all government agencies, the letter said.

THE DISMAL prognosis of many economic seers that a recession is inevitable in late 1973 or 1974 is unwarranted, according to Blyth Eastman Dillon & Co. The firm predicts real growth will slow in 1974 to a 4 to 4.5 per cent annual pace and inflation will retreat. "Profits are likely to rise about 10 per cent in 1974, which should come on top of an estimated advance of 20 per cent this year, according to the letter.

FEARS OF A repetition of the 1970 "credit crunch" are unwarranted, according to the Wright Investors' Service. Wright notes the latest Federal Reserve Board statistics indicate a recovery from the near-zero April annual rate of monetary growth to one of up 5 per cent. He says, "While this is insufficient to support an economic boom, there is no present reason to fear another credit crunch." Wright also believes the fundamental strength of the U.S. economy will manifest itself as "Watergate passes under the bridge," and foreign investors return to U.S. markets.

THE WALSTON & CO. technical market letter says some near-term worries have "crept into the market." Certain leading stocks, it notes, have exhibited "chart patterns that cannot be considered bullish." Thus, Walston believes the stock market will go through a "backing and filling" period, perhaps edging the Dow Jones Industrial average into the 875 to 890 region before long.

ARGUS RESEARCH notes, "It is hard to believe that policymakers would deliberately set out to precipitate a recession next year in order to slow the rate of inflation several years down the pike."

Thus, Argus believes the monetary growth rate will remain a "prudent" 6 per cent year-to-year rate, and the possibility of a credit crunch is remote. It concludes, "We continue to believe that the stock market will eventually reflect the favorable economic fundamentals contained in our economic forecast."

THE SPEAR MARKET Report says the "embattled stock market" has been "rocked by the tight money blues." It also slipped on the Watergate affair and indications the economy is overheating, the report said. For the near term, however, the letter recommends investors purchase stocks because "stocks stand out as among the few things that have substantial appreciation potential at this juncture."

Latest prime rate hike an alignment

The recent 1/4 per cent increase to a 7 per cent prime lending rate was the second attempt in recent weeks by the nation's banks to bring the prime rate into line with other money market rates, say economists at Chicago's Northern Trust Bank.

Since last autumn the prime has been restrained by the federal government's Committee on Interest and Dividends (CID) while other money market rates have increased dramatically.

The resulting imbalance in rates caused many corporate treasurers to seek an increased share of their cash needs from bank loans at more attractive rates than those prevailing in commercial paper markets. This diversion has been partly responsible, says Northern Trust's economic newsletter Business Comment, for soaring bank loan demand in recent months. Total loans at the nation's major banks increased at an annual rate of 40 per cent from December to March.

Last month, however, the CID announced that bank interest charges to large business customers would be allowed to increase in response to changes in other money market rates.

This announcement marked a change in policy from the previous informal, yet highly effective, "jawbone" approach to restraining the prime rate. If market conditions had been allowed to prevail, note Northern Trust economists, the predominant rate should have been 7 1/2 per cent in mid-April — a full 1 per cent higher than the rate at that time.

In spite of recent increases, Northern Trust economists believe the prime rate is still out of line with other money market rates. If the diversion of credit demands from commercial paper to banks is to be halted, they conclude, further adjustments in the rate structure will be necessary.

Working together to provide America's wants, needs

It's Transportation Week . . .

Working together to provide all the things America wants and needs, the nation's trucking industry, the airlines, railroads and water carriers are celebrating National Transportation Week through May 19.

The events, sponsored by the Traffic Club of Chicago in honor of the occasion, were highlighted last night at a dinner held in the Palmer House, Chicago. William J. Quinn, board chairman of the Milwaukee Road, was guest speaker.

As part of this observance, American Trucking Association chairman Stony M. Stubbs recently noted the observation by historian Thomas Babington Macaulay, more than a hundred years ago: "Of all inventions, the alphabet and the printing press excepted, those inventions which abridge distance have done the most for the civilization of our species."

IT WAS TRUE then and is still true now, says Stubbs. He cited the use of transportation in opening up the American West a hundred years ago, as well as the transportation that carried men to the moon in this decade.

"Here on earth, that miracle of movement we call transportation is under unprecedented attack," Stubbs continued. "While the average man enjoys a king's bounty, with great numbers of choices in food, clothing and luxuries at his fingertips, the transportation system that makes it possible has been charged with all kinds of sins."

"The motor vehicle has given a new and exciting dimension to distribution and marketing," he added. "Instead of cursing the human logjam that characterizes our cities, why don't we drive our way out to a better life? With 70 per cent of us on 2 per cent of the land, the space is obviously there. The know-how is there. The only thing that is missing is our ability to discard old ways of doing things and our willingness to take up the challenge of doing things differently — and better."

TRUCKS, WORKING alone and in combination with other modes — railroads, water carriers and airlines — carry all the things America needs or wants, he continued. Most Americans see it happening every day. Not so visible to the average person, however, is what goes on beyond the loading docks — at the terminals and maintenance shops.

A trucking company safety supervisor climbs into a plane and takes off on a routine airborne safety patrol; a dock foreman, watching a closed circuit television, monitors action at the far end of a warehouse, and a company executive decides to replace 11 tractors after reviewing a computerized maintenance report on them.

These are routine examples of new ways in which the motor carrier industry makes use of computers and advanced technology. Today's transportation industries form, in effect, a far-reaching extension on both ends of the assembly line — bringing in raw materials and carrying out the finished products.

The Lighter Side... by Dick West

Does Watergate reach to Kremlin?

WASHINGTON — By this time you must have read at least a dozen or two analyses of the recent shakeup in the Kremlin.

If so, you are aware that the change in the Soviet power structure has either 1) strengthened the position of Party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev, or 2) weakened Brezhnev's position.

It now appears, however, that these conclusions may be premature.

My keen analytical mind tells me that, contrary to the consensus assumption, policy disputes were not responsible for the ouster of Politburo members Pyotr Y. Shelest and Gennadi I. Voronov.

New reports from Eastern Europe have convinced me that Shelest and Voronov were forced to retire because they were mixed up in the Watergate case.

PREPOSTEROUS, you say? Well, sir, I remind you that a few weeks ago you were saying the same thing about Halde-man and Ehrlichman.

I base my analysis on reports quoting Soviet representatives in Eastern Europe as theorizing that the Watergate scandal was cooked up by Americans who oppose President Nixon's efforts to end the cold war.

The Soviets were said to have suggested that the idea behind the plot was to discredit Nixon and thus undermine his move to improve relations with Moscow.

They also were said to believe that Nixon was the best possible American President from their standpoint.

VERY WELL. If the Soviets feel that way it is safe to assume they took a keen interest in last year's presidential election.

It also is reasonable to assume there are some Soviet officials whose zeal exceeds their judgment.

Now let us assume that these officials assigned a team of Soviet intelligence agents to find out all it could about George McGovern's attitudes and intentions toward the USSR.

FURTHER ASSUME that funds to finance the operation were sent to Washington by way of Warsaw, Hanoi and Havana. And then assume the officials who received the reports were Shelest and Voronov.

This brings us to the assumption that Soviet agents also tried to bug Democratic campaign headquarters, only to discover that someone else had gotten there first.

When the bugging was discovered, Shelest and Voronov found themselves in an awkward situation. They knew who did it, but they did not wish to embarrass the Nixon administration.

So they conducted an investigation and reported that nobody in the Kremlin had any knowledge of the bugging.

Then, to cover up their coverup, they resigned from the Politburo. Even now they may be somewhere in Siberia testifying before a grand jury.

24-foot giants?

Self-made 'anthropologist' scouring Indian reservation in Montana for remains

"Now giants were upon the earth in those days. For after the sons of God went into the daughters of men, and they brought forth children, these are the mighty men of old..."

—Genesis 6:4

by TONI TIEDE
HARDIN, Mont. — By his own testimony Richard Arbogast doesn't "read so good" but occasionally he does snatch a sentence from the Bible. Genesis 6:4 in particular. He's read it, reread it and come to believe it. Now he's out to prove that it's true.

Arbogast is looking for the remains of the "giants." Specifically, he is looking on the Crow Indian Reservation south of here. He says he combed the countryside for miles in every direction before pinpointing the burial grounds of what he insists is a "race of mighty men, just like the Bible says, most of them at least 24 feet tall."

Naturally, almost everybody thinks Arbogast is nuts. He says he has already dug down to the skull of one of his giants; he says the reason he hasn't dug him all the way out is because the earth caved in. But not many around here can buy that. "Dick is a good boy," says one who knows him, "but, well, his mind sometimes wanders a bit."

The sentiment has put a sizable crunch in Arbogast's exploration. Word around Hardin is that next he'll be looking for the Garden of Eden. Arbogast says he has not been able to raise any money or any sympathy in pursuit of his thesis: "I had a partner once who understood. But ever since he died there hasn't been many who take me serious."

DOUBTLESS, Arbogast is serious. Nobody, even in this remote part of the globe, would actively shadow something so preposterous without sober beliefs. It began six years ago when Arbogast, middle aged, joined with his "partner" to start a well-digging business. Despite divining rods and some success, they soon tired of the idea. Says Arbogast: "When I found out he was interested in giants, I told him I was interested, too. So we said, what the hell are we doing looking for water?" They kept their divining rods and went to search for the giants instead.

Even when the partner died, Arbogast persisted. "After awhile I kept going for no other reason than to prove I was right." Then he says, he struck it. "I found this hill on the reservation. I figured if the giants were on earth in Genesis 6, before the flood, they would have to have taken to high ground. I dug this hole down 15 feet and sure enough I hit one of them. It was the skull. I took this one part out, the ear part, and the whole damn ear canal came too."

Alas, a cave-in cut the expedition short. Besides, Arbogast was digging on Indian land without permission. Dejected, without funds, "wondering about my sanity," he retreated for two years to a life of walking the plains and moping.

NOW HE'S BACK again, "trying to do it right." During a recent meeting with Crow leaders, he said if the Indians will give him permission to dig again, maybe even help him dig, he will let them have whatever he finds for their museum.

Actually, the meeting with the Indians produced no immediate decision. But it turned out to be the most encouraging thing that's happened to "anthropologist Arbogast," as he calls himself, in months. If he approached any other private land with his idea, the explorer would get the bum's rush. But Indians are not so absolute as other people. They still believe there are mysteries on the earth.

Says Crow tribal president David Stewart: "You know, there have been rumors of giants on this reservation before. Some have reported seeing men at least 10 feet tall. Another man I know says he has a shinbone that measured four feet. Personally, I don't really believe in giants, but I have an open mind."

SOME OTHERS on the reservation are more pragmatic. A Bureau of Indian Affairs official, himself an anthropologist, says Arbogast's theory is hogwash. "Don't you think, with all the scientists in the world, that if there were giant fossils they would have been discovered by now? I don't mind legitimate exploration on Indian land but this is too pre-gist Richard Arbogast is searching Indian reservations in the Montana area.

posterous. He has no proof at all."

For his part, Arbogast says he does have proof. Color slides of something he calls "giant footprints." The "prints" three feet long, are in the form of plaster casts. Arbogast said he heard about their existence years ago: "The casts now belong to a Montana state senator. I've asked him if he would help me, but he says he doesn't want to get mixed up in something like this."

The senator's sentiment particularly distresses anthropologist Arbogast. "I really need help from somebody like him, somebody who is somebody," Arbogast believes that his theory has been dismissed because he is who he is. "I'm a school dropout. I work in the oil fields. If I had a Dr. title in front of my name, or if I worked for some big museum in New York, why, I wouldn't have any trouble. I'd just get on the phone and raise a million dollars to excavate. But as it is, everybody just laughs at me."

EVERYBODY, that is, except the Indians. Indications are they will allow the digging to begin. "If they do," says Arbogast, in a flurry of generosity, "I'll let them keep everything. No, wait. I think I should get something out of this. Maybe I'll keep the thing for a year and go on tour or something. I'll bet I could make a few thousand from it. A lot of people would come to see a giant. I can hardly wait." He rubs his hands. "You know, all my life I've been a nobody. This is my chance to prove myself. I know I can do it. I know I can."

Dumb dreams? Probably. The weight of history, evidence and common sense is against Richard Arbogast. Yet who really knows? There is another Biblical passage the man likes to read. Matthew 7: "Judge not that ye be not judged... For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be open." Go to it, Mr. Arbogast.

Plan hunt for creature

Does hairy monster still roam Northwest?

By CARRICK LEAVITT

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Bigfoot, the legendary ape-man who reportedly has been spotted from time to time in the Pacific Northwest for more than a century, should watch out for low flying airplanes this summer.

A pair of young adventures from San Jose contend they have perfected an infrared device that monitors body heat and transmits an animal's image onto a tiny television screen.

They'll fly at low altitudes over the mountains with this scanning scope snooping away from the side of their aircraft, say Tom Biscardi, 24, and Gene Findley, 25.

If Bigfoot — also known as Sasquatch, Seeakwa or the Adominable Snowman — is stomping around down below his silhouette will show up on the screen.

Then it will be easy. Biscardi and Findley will radio their base camp, where a specialist in ESP and an expert tracker will be waiting, ready to move into action.

The infrared machine really works, they say, much better than a somewhat similar device used by the military to ferret out enemies in jungles at night.

Biscardi and Findley say their machine reads out the exact temperature of any animal it monitors and also indicates the general shape. Bigfoot walks upright, it is said, like a man.

Biscardi has given up his sales job with a clothing manufacturer to devote himself to the hunt for Bigfoot.

"It shouldn't take more than a couple of months," he said. "We've got everything going for us. Every angle covered."

They have made a study and when the expedition begins on July 15 their task force of at least 10 Bigfoot hunters will concentrate on the mountain with the most recent and plausible sightings.

ALREADY they have narrowed the search to three mountains, two in Washington and one in Northern California. "We can't be more specific," said Biscardi, "because 25,000 people will come if we publish the area. It'll be like a Bigfoot convention."

The Bigfoot mystique began with Indian legends telling of hairy monsters roaming the North American Continent.

A series of bizarre sightings from white men trickled in later, turning into a flood at times.

A series of sightings was reported by miners camped around Mount St. Lawrence near Kelso, Wash., in July, 1918. In 1924, another group of miners said they were attacked by giant ape-like creatures thundering down from Mount St. Helen, also in Washington.

IN 1910, an American Indian family near Fraser River in British Columbia said a giant hairy ape stalked out of the woods and turned over a massive barrel of salt fish in a shed. He left behind footprints 16 inches long and 8 inches wide.

More recently, road builder Jerry Crew told of sighting a huge creature in the Bluff Creek area of Northern California in 1958.

Some say that was a hoax. But workers quit their jobs after huge tracks were found five days later around machinery at a nearby lumber camp.

Ron Olson of Medford, Ore., who has a steel trap set for Bigfoot in the Siskiyou Mountain range, says there have been more than 850 sightings of the creature since 1968.

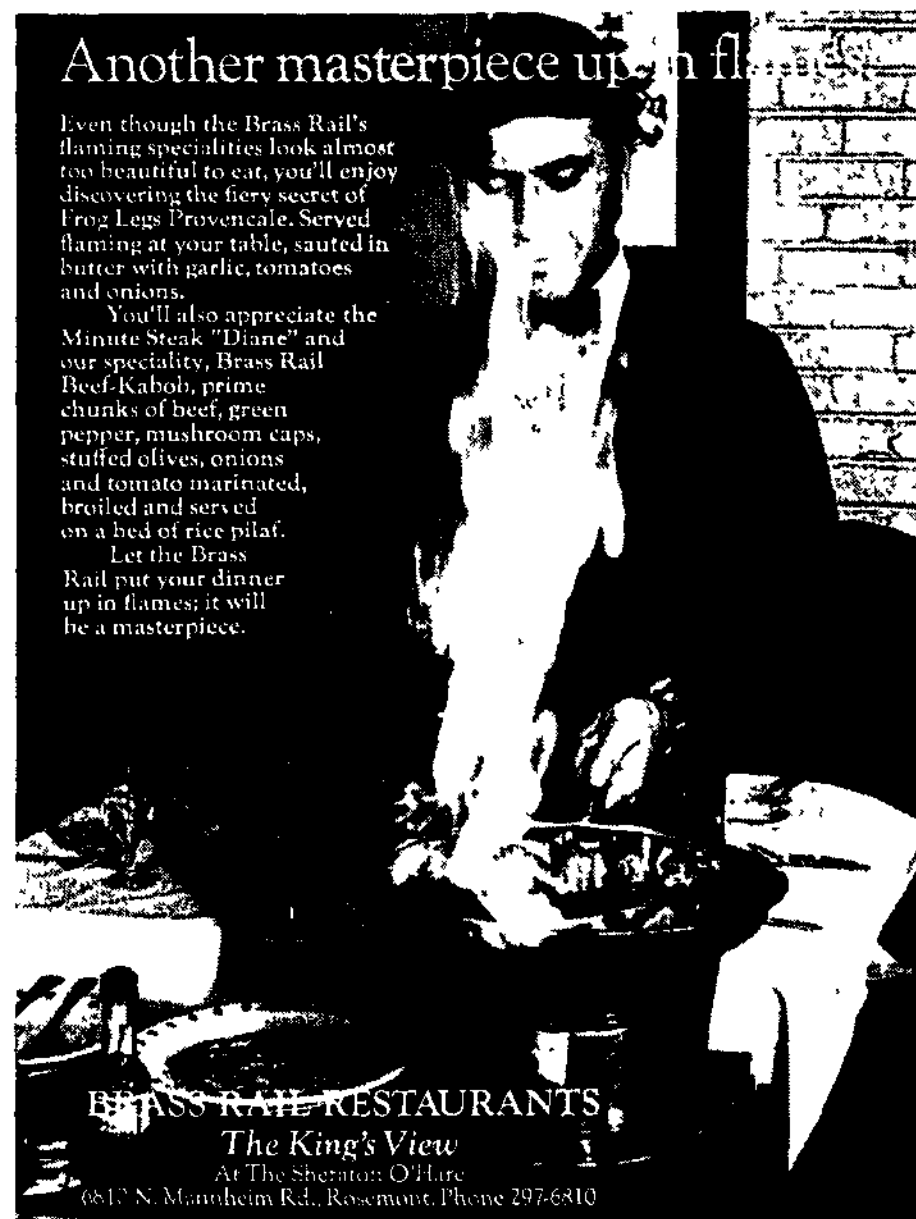

"Listen, we've been ridiculed already," said Biscardi. "But they ridiculed the Wright brothers, too."

Mt. Prospect Plaza retailers plan activities for May 19 Charity Fair

Mount Prospect Plaza Merchants Association sponsored a Continental Breakfast at the Scandia House Smorgasbord in Mt. Prospect Plaza, Rand and Central Roads in Mt. Prospect on April 18 for chairman, co-chairman, queen and princess candidates for the various participating organizations in this year's Annual Charity Fair to be held at the Plaza on Saturday, May 19th.

Fifty-four persons representing 25 organizations attended this kickoff meeting for the Charity Fair Queen and Princess contests held in conjunction with the Charity Fair. Thirteen participating organizations have nominated candidates to represent their organizations in the Charity Fair Queen Contest. Seven organizations have entered candidates in the Charity Fair Princess Contest.

These groups officially began to collect votes for their candidates, following the Kick-Off Breakfast, and will continue to collect pennies for votes until 1:00 p.m. on the day of the Fair. Each penny collected by the organizations is a vote for their candidate, each dollar collected in 100 votes.

Local stores and businesses will have collection cans on display in order that you may vote for your favorite candidate. Organizations will also be collecting votes for their candidates at meetings and other club functions. These votes will be counted on the day of the Fair at the close of the contest at 1:00 p.m. The Queen and Princess and their courts will be presented in the Mall area of the Mt. Prospect Plaza immediately following an exhibition by the Regal Vallentes Drum and Bugle Corp.

A total of 25 Northwest Suburban Organizations will be participating in the Charity Fair this year. Each group will be setting up booths on the Plaza sidewalk, and will be selling their wares at this Country Fair Bazaar type event.

Restaurant gets liquor license

Two new features have been added at Siegelman's Old Tyme Deli & Restaurant at Surrey Ridge Plaza, Algonquin & Golf Rds., Arlington Heights.

Joe Schneider, is now full-time manager. For 14 years, Mr. Schneider was owner of Shoreland Delicatessen at 2238 E. 71st St., Chicago. Mr. Schneider's duties will be to provide Siegelman's with a delicatessen "at its best" stressing all beef products.

This week marked the opening of Siegelman's complete bar service. Siegelman's famous corned beef sandwich becomes perfect with the addition of a cold beer.

Trophies and Cash Prizes will be given by the Mt. Prospect Plaza Merchants Association for both decorations. Prizes will be awarded for 1st, 2nd and 3rd places in this category. Cash prizes will also be given to the 3 organizations with the highest booth sales. All monies taken in by participating groups both prior to and the day of the Charity Fair will be used for the philanthropic project of their individual group.

The Mt. Prospect Plaza Merchants Association Inc. bears the entire cost of planning the Charity Fair, planning breakfast meetings, advertising materials, prizes, trophies, etc. as a Community Relations project. The entire project is co-ordinated by Adele Jeschke, Public Relations director for the Mt. Prospect Plaza.

The following local organizations are participating in this year's Charity Fair: Ben Levin Memorial for Retarded Children; Combined Nurses Clubs—N.W.

Suburban Topics staff; Camp Fire Girls; Camp Fire Girls — Arlington Hts.; Girl Scout Troop # 64; Girl Scout Troop # 381; Hadassah; Maryville Volunteers; Medi-Check International; Mt. Goldblatt's employees give funds to Cancer Research

Checks totalling $125,000 raised by the employees of Goldblatt's Department Stores for cancer research in 1972 were turned over to four institutions at the recent annual dinner meeting of the Board of Trustees of the "Goldblatt Brothers Employees Nathan Goldblatt Cancer Research Fund" held in the Gold Room of the Pick-Congress Hotel.

The money, raised during the 1972 fund-raising season, represents the largest sum ever contributed to the Cancer Fund by the Employees in its 26-year history.

The University of Chicago received a check for $60,000, to support work on isotope scanning procedures, in which various types of radioactive substances are injected into the body and their distribution and concentration studied with radioisotope scanners.

Mount Sinai Hospital Medical Center received a check for $40,000 to support an "Immunobiological Laboratory." In this laboratory, tests are being developed to study the body's natural defense mechanisms against cancer growth.

Northwestern University Medical School received a check for $15,000 to support the Department of Dermatology in a research program involving the cases and treatment of skin cancer.

Indiana University School of Medicine received a check for $10,000, to support a research project involving the study of experiments and clinical chemotherapy drugs on biochemical parameters in order to establish the susceptibility of tumors to drug treatment.

Initiative is the motivating factor behind the tremendous drive exerted by the employees in fund-raising for cancer research. They are proud of the fact that the employee group is an independent activity entirely apart from company involvement.

Among the variety of methods utilized to bring in fund were: amateur musical reviews; spaghetti dinners; fashion shows; fish fry; cake bakes; swim parties; etc.

Louis Goldblatt, president and chief executive officer of Goldblatt Bros. Inc. addressed the Trustees. Leonard Solomons, president of the employee group presided over the agenda and trophy awards.

Keynote speaker of the evening was Dr. Clifford W. Gurney, Deputy Dean Division of Biological Sciences of the Pritzker School of Medicine, Deputy Dean for Clinical Sciences, University of Chicago. His topic was "Promising New Areas for Future Research."

Super stores

The size of the new super markets which are opening is more super than ever, averaging about 28,900 square feet in total selling area. Major beneficiaries of the greater space are: frozen foods, health and beauty aids and general merchandise.

Sears offers car rentals

For the first time in the Northwest Suburban area, residents can rent a car from Sears, Roebuck and Co.

"Sears Rent a Car is now working on a nationwide basis to expand the automotive rental market," explained J. P. Maloney, manager of the Sears, Roebuck and Co. store at Woodfield.

"Reservations may be made by a Sears Rent a Car customer in one of three ways," he said. "For local reservations, he can either call the Sears Rent a Car number soon to be listed in the local classified directory, or any Sears, Roebuck and Co. store. For out-of-town rentals, he can call the toll-free coast to coast reservation number which operates 24 hours daily."

The new system, which began May 1, provides car rental facilities at many Sears retail stores, plus over 500 car pick-up locations from coast to coast. Many of these are located at or near the nation's major airports, according to Maloney.

This system is a major expansion of a service introduced by Sears in 1970 in cooperation with Budget Rent a Car. Budget will furnish and maintain automobiles for Sears Rent a Car customers.

"Sears Rent a Car service is an additional convenience that is now being offered to our customers," he said. Maloney added that the Sears Credit Card can be used for all Rent a Car transactions.

Laramie Federal Branch planned for Schaumburg

Laramie Federal Savings & Loan Association, 5144 West Chicago Avenue, Chicago, has unveiled its plans for a branch facility at Plum Grove and Higgins Road, Schaumburg, a 16,000 square foot structure pictured above.

According to John V. Prah, President of Laramie, the new structure will be a substantial architectural contribution to the area. "The building will be built with brick, complemented by a slate facade," Prah commented.

"To assure continuity of design, the interior will be characterized by brick columns and slate counters that bring the exterior elements inside the building."

"We will also have two drive-up windows, plus space for two more in the future, and parking will be provided for a total of 95 cars," Prah continued. "Highlighting the front of the structure will be a unique sculpture mounted in a reflecting pool. Created especially for Laramie, the work of art will resemble a sunburst, and will be reflective to capture the sun's rays on clear days."

Other features of the new building include a community room with a stage and completely equipped kitchen, and an extensive safe deposit vault. One unusual aspect of the structure will be the sidewalks directly adjacent, which will be constructed of slate that matches the building's facade. These will be automatically heated for snow melting purposes.

"The building will have two above-ground floors of 5,200 square feet each, plus a lower level of the same size," Prah concluded.

Architects are Irvin J. Buxell, Jr. & Associates, and Planned Projects, Inc., St. Louis, will act as project consultant and coordinator.

The defense started out with three rounds of hearts. South ruffed the third lead in dummy; led the four of spades and went up with his king. This play might have caused West to put on his ace of spades, but it didn't. West held off, but took the trump continuation.

Then he placed a diamond on the table. South, who had been playing the hand in a semi-trance, woke up, but it was a trifle late.

He had no way to get to his hand to draw West's last trump. West trumped the third club and another game contract had gone past the point of no return.

South had started out beautifully. No one could find any fault with his following suit to the first two tricks; his ruff of the third heart and his first trump play, but right then and there it was up to South to take some precaution.

He should have cashed both dummy's diamonds and two top clubs. He would have been set if the second club got ruffed, but in that case he would have had no play for his contract and long experience has taught us that any chance of success is far better than sure failure.

DuBrow on TV...by Rick DuBrow

ABC, small but lively network, pushing CBS, NBC

HOLLYWOOD — CBS-TV and NBC-TV keep trying to put down the claim of the smallest network of the "Big Three," ABC-TV, that it has achieved parity with them.

But the achievement of parity is measured one way by most network executives and another by the public.

Most non-news department executives at commercial networks think primarily in terms of dollars. That is the mark of achievement. To achieve parity means, to them, a parity on accounting sheets. It is a limited and insignificant view of the world.

For example, it is nice that ABC-TV can announce it is going great guns financially, but that in itself does not mean real parity, in all the senses of the term.

PARITY IS achieved in a general sense for a communications organization like a television network when it registers a public impact that is competitive with its corporate rivals. And ABC-TV certainly has achieved this level of public impact.

In terms of liveliness, its entertainment programming has achieved parity. Its sports coverage has been praised for years. Its evening news team, Howard K. Smith and Harry Reasoner, has moved up against CBS-TV's Walter Cronkite and NBC-TV's John Chancellor. But there is still little doubt that ABC-TV has some catching up to do in the overall impact of its news documentaries.

Anyway, it is a lively network, and I think that is the main impression that it gets across to me. For example, I continue to enjoy the variety of its new late-night "ABC Wide World of Entertainment" series.

While CBS-TV is running, and rerunning, late night movies that are with a few notable exceptions mostly routine, and NBC-TV is naturally standing pat with its solidly successful Johnny Carson Show, there is the pleasant option of being surprised on "Wide World of Entertainment."

MAYBE THERE'S a suspense-type teleplay. Or a Dick Cavett discussion show. Or a Truman Capote talk with convicts or law officers. Or a vignette-style comedy entry. Or a satire on the news. Or a Jack Paar program. Or an Alan King documentary from Las Vegas. Or a rock concert.

I know the ratings still have Carson well ahead in the late night field. And I also know ABC-TV says its late night ratings have improved substantially since the "Wide World of Entertainment" series replaced the nightly Cavett show, which now is part of the new entry on a one-week-a-month basis. But who cares about who's got what rating? When you're flipping the dial looking for something good?

So far as I'm concerned, every program has to prove itself each time out, and reputations and ratings don't matter. That's another another form of parity. (United Press International)

Color television sets anyone? 62% of households have 'em

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Notes to watch television by:

"The Energy Crisis: The Nuclear Alternative" will be an hour ABC-TV documentary May 31, and the network says the program will study the "promise" of nuclear power and "the controversy over the safety of nuclear plants." ... NBC-TV, meanwhile, is planning a three-hour prime time examination of the energy crisis for September ... NBC-TV also says it will present more than 13 hours of specials on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 22, including the movie "My Fair Lady," the Macy's parade, children's shows and a football game ... Thus far, at least, no special programming has been announced in regard to the fact that Thanksgiving Day is also the 10th anniversary of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

ABC-TV rates the thumbs-down treatment for its announcement that weekly network boxing matches, which faded out long ago not only because of lack of interest but because of viewer distaste at the brutality, will return as a summer series on the network on Saturdays starting July 7 ... The potential of cable-TV is explored in a half-hour broadcast, "The Cable Revolution," on the non-commercial network Wednesday ... Almost 62 per cent of American television households had color sets as of April 1, according to NBC research.

Tony Curtis will be the guest host of NBC-TV's "Tonight" show June 1 and 4 ... CBS-TV's daytime soap opera "The Secret Storm" marked its 5,000th broadcast this month; come February, it will be on the air 20 years.

'Topless radio' sagging

Stations aren't challenging federal crackdown, so X-rated TV may become the test

by FREDERICK M. WINSHIP

NEW YORK (UPI) — Radio's flirtation with sexually explicit programs lasted less than two years because no station was willing to become a test case in a federal crackdown.

The showdown on "blue" broadcasting may come later in the television field — possibly cable television which is enjoying a last infancy.

Topless radio, which had found audiences in nearly 50 cities across the nation since 1971, wilted last month without any show of resistance after a stern warning from the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) against airing of "prurient trash." Through its licensing power, the FCC has leverage of life or death over broadcasters.

THE FCC CONTENDED that it had received more than 3,000 complaints of obscenity, mainly concerning sexy radio talk shows which put telephone calls from women on the air. The FCC also received a resolution from the Oklahoma legislature urging the television industry "to reflect less explicit matters of sex, violence and profanity."

Dean Burch, FCC chief, announced in April plans for an in-depth inquiry into X-rated radio, but a UPI survey of the nation's airwaves indicates there is little to investigate now on either radio or television.

"We didn't think the talk show was a big enough part of our format to be worth a hassle with the FCC, but I'm alarmed for the reason for its going," said Charles Renwick, general manager of WJLN in New York.

WJLN eliminated sexual content in a program called "Feminine Forum," a Storer Broadcasting feature aired by five stations. Storer also lauded a similar Los Angeles program syndicated in 30 cities.

Bob Pors, general manager for KEMO-TV in San Francisco, said he suspended two weekend talk shows — "All About Sex" and "Swingle Scene" — after an FCC investigation in March rather than risk a costly court battle.

"We are a small independent station," Pors said. "We don't have the means to afford lawyers and fight it out in Washington."

MOST POPULAR of the "Feminine Forum" hosts was Bill Balance of KGBS in Los Angeles, who had 1,000,000 fans when management switched his show from the bedroom back to the living room. He had been described by women's libber Gloria Steinem as "that man on the air asking soft porno questions of women who have been locked in the house all day with no one older than 3 to talk to."

Show revisions under FCC pressure have led to talk of censorship — generally tied in with the Nixon administration's suspicion of the communication media — throughout the industry. Broadcasters' concern has been echoed by a dissenting member of the FCC itself.

When the FCC voted, 6-1, on April 13 to fine WGLD-FM of Oak Park, Ill., $2,000 for obscene material on its "Feminine Forum" show, Commissioner Nicholas Johnson branded the action censorship "arbitrary, unwise and unconstitutional."

"I do not condone such programming, but I am extremely reluctant to use my power as a federal official to impose my tastes upon anyone, let alone upon an entire nation," he said.

Roy Sonderling of Sonderling Broadcasting Corp., which owns WGLD-FM, said an appeal has not been decided upon.

ONLY ONE broadcaster, William Hernstadt, has promised to fight a threatened FCC action against X-rated films shown on his station, KVVU-TV, Las Vegas. The FCC is considering bringing criminal action and Hernstadt said he intends to take the case to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary.

Cable television, which operates non-commercial channels and "public access" channels that experiment with off-beat programming, has not escaped the FCC's attention. But there is no indication of what the commission plans to do about such titillating fare as "Deep Throat," which has been shown on a student-operated cable station at Syracuse University.

FCC rules prohibiting obscenity on commercial television apply to programming offered the community by cable stations has complicated the FCC's position in this area. Meanwhile, Sterling Television in New York is attracting a large audience with Yugoslavian filmmaker Anton Perich's Sunday night cable skit using kinky characters from Andy Warhol's entourage.

ATTORNEY PAUL Crotty, who has announced his candidacy for the New York City Council, was so outraged by the sex play and gutter language on Perich's show that he formed a watchdog organization, Concerned Citizens on Public Access. Jack Banning, Sterling vice president, claims Crotty needed an election issue and seized on airborne obscenity — "a phony issue."

"Some people might find nudity and scatological references on the program objectionable but they add up to less than one half of one per cent of our viewers," Banning said.

"We make a determination in each case at a pre-screening and have established an informal rule that if something is questionable, we'll run it later at night."

"A GP rating or a soft R is about as far as we have gone. Certainly not a hard R or X. We get an occasional objecting letter but very occasionally. But when we drop something, we get lots of complaints about censorship."

"We do respect the public's right not to have anything coming into the home that would violate their rights to protect their children, but censorship is not what public usage of television is all about."

SEX-ORIENTED radio was the major issue at the National Association of Broadcasters (NAB) convention in March, and the NAB board's strong condemnation was one of the factors in cancellation of many sex talk shows. The NAB's Radio Code Board followed up with an "extensive and comprehensive" monitoring of all such shows reported to it.

If the damper on blue broadcasting proves total in the United States, American fans of porno television who live within the broadcast radius of Toronto can still watch UHF Channel 79's Friday midnight show, "The Baby Blue Movie." Although 79 calls its films "mildly salacious," it has shown "I Am Curious (Yellow) and (Blue)," "And So To Bed," and "Naked and Free."

Lack of material--and TV--spoil Hollywood family scene

by DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — "Tom Sawyer" is one of the big hits of the season. What makes it nice is that it is a family picture, which means that parents enjoy it as much as the kids do.

It seems easy. Why aren't there more such films? Director Don Taylor, who made "Tom Sawyer," thinks he knows the answer to that puzzle.

"The big problem today," Taylor says, "is finding material. The major stumbling block is that television has moved in on the areas of story material for feature films."

Taylor says between TV's movies and TV's news coverage they've just about used up the story areas for features. News coverage of wars, violent crimes and such also encroach on feature film story possibilities.

"THEY DO the things features used to do," he says. "We have to find films that they can't or won't do. It either has to be too sexy or too violent for the home screen, or too big and too expensive."

He says that accounts for films like his own "Tom Sawyer" (TV did a "Tom Sawyer," too, but not in the big, splashy, musical way) and films like "Last Tango in Paris."

"Tom Sawyer" is Taylor's fifth picture as a director and by far his biggest. You may remember him as an actor, who gave Elizabeth Taylor her first on-screen kiss, in "Father of the Bride."

He always wanted to direct and did a lot of TV shows before he got his first crack at a feature film. Now with "Tom Sawyer," he's firmly established as a top director.

What made it nice for Taylor and "Tom Sawyer" was that his film beat out the highly-touted "Lost Horizon" for the plum spot as the Radio City Music Hall Easter attraction in New York.

"WHEN I FIRST HEARD that," Taylor says, "I was terribly excited. However, the poor reviews of 'Lost Horizon' took some edge off my excitement."

This currently is a major plateau for him. His first plateau was to direct — anything. The second was to become known as a good, solid workmanlike TV director. Then came the plateau labeled "feature film director."

He did four features — most notably "Escape From the Planet of the Apes."

Don Taylor

Now, with "Tom Sawyer," he has arrived as director of a big money-maker.

"The problem now," he says, "is to stay where I am and then go on to the next higher plateau."

That next one, probably, would be a film that wins a few Oscars. He may have already scaled it. "Tom Sawyer" could win a few — maybe for a song, maybe for Celeste Holm's or Warren Oates' performances, maybe for other things.

HE MUCH PREFERS directing to acting. He says he never misses acting in front of a camera but whenever he sees a stage play, the old urge comes back.

"I want to jump up there on the stage," he says, "and get in on the fun." He won't do "Huckleberry Finn," which will be made by the same group that did "Tom Sawyer." For one thing, he doesn't want to repeat himself. For another, he doesn't feel that "Huck" lends itself to being musicalized as well or as easily as "Tom" did.

No matter what happens now, he's happy. He's got a blockbuster to his credit.

The Doctor Says...by Dr. Lawrence Lamb

'Dangers' of milk are misleading to the consumer

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am a woman of 70. I have had hernia of the stomach for several years, which causes acid. I have been put on a diet by my doctor and have been allowed to drink milk. I have a cup of coffee once in a great while. Now here is this piece in the paper that milk is more dangerous than smoking cigarettes. Some doctor says he wants the federal government to clamp down on milk drinking, that it is national suicide. Please can you tell me if milk is really dangerous. I really don't know what a person can eat or drink any more.

Dear Reader — I am familiar with Dr. Walter W. Sackett's campaign for proper labeling of milk and other foods. As the news clipping that you sent stated, he is a member of the Florida State Legislature.

I agree that all food should be properly labeled. A person has the right to know what he is eating, and then make his own decision whether to eat it or not. I just don't believe in deceiving the public, and you can do this by omission as well as commission.

I am not sure that the news report that you furnished me accurately expresses Dr. Sackett's point of view. But you can quit worrying about skim milk, fortified skim milk or even one per cent low fat fortified milk.

Fortified skim milk contains very little fat and no really significant amounts of cholesterol. I believe that skim milk is particularly important for women in their middle years and beyond to help prevent the incidence of bone degeneration very common in those years.

WHAT DR. SACKETT is talking about is the problem of saturated fats and cholesterol in the diets. Most investigators agree that this needs to be limited and I have discussed this many times in my columns.

But this doesn't mean that you need to avoid drinking fortified skim milk, or using non-fat milk powders or uncreamed cottage cheese. The dairy industry has done an excellent job in marketing these products which are very low in cholesterol as compared to meats and many of our other food products.

I think that we should make a bigger effort to acquaint the public with these products that have been developed so that those who need them can use them rather than eliminating milk entirely from our diet.

NOT ONLY IS milk an excellent source of calcium, and one of the few, but it is also a good source of complete proteins. I do not agree with the idea that milk is more dangerous than smoking cigarettes, and according to the news release you sent me, Dr. Sackett smokes two to three packs of cigarettes a day. Almost all reputable scientists who have studied the problem of cigarettes, including the U.S. Surgeon General, will tell you that it is one of the greatest health hazards that we have in our society.

In summary, I agree with the idea of eliminating foods that are high in cholesterol and saturated fats, and that means shifting to using fortified skim milk or at least low fat milk, uncreamed cottage cheese, and non fat dry milk powder. These products are completely safe unless one has a specific medical problem that prohibits their use.

40 mothers and their milk 'save' ailing baby boy

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — A woman whose son has a rare disease which prevents him from keeping down conventional food, credits a group of 40 mothers who supplied her child with mother's milk for a month with saving his life.

"We couldn't find anything to stay in his stomach."

"If he hadn't had breast milk he probably would have been dead by now," Mrs. Jimmie R. Catoe, mother of four-month-old Jimmy Catoe said.

Mrs. Catoe, 24, is a textile worker in Kershaw, S.C. Her doctor, she said, advised her not to try breast feeding the child herself.

The infant earlier this week was taken to Duke University Medical Center where doctors were trying to determine the nature of his illness.

The women, a majority of them members of La Leche League, a group advocating breast feeding children, fed the youngster 12 hours a day on rotating schedule and at night, frozen milk, given in advance, was served the ailing boy.

Although the milk is no cure for the boy's illness, "If it hadn't been for them he wouldn't be here now."

"Jimmy's rash started clearing up, he started getting his color back and he was real playful. You could tell that in about a day's time," she said.

Prospect hosts district track finals tonight

Track & Field Editor

It's time now for the emphasis to change sharply on the area high school track scene.

Until now, main objectives around the state have been for strong team showings. This weekend, it's individuals who count.

That's because it's the weekend for state qualifying district meets around the state. The one involving all 15 Herald area teams (11 in the Mid-Suburban League, plus St. Viator and the Maines) and 23 in all will take place tonight at the customary site, Prospect High School, which has probably the finest track and field facilities in the area.

Field events are slated to begin at 5:00 with running preliminaries following. Finals should get underway at about 7:00.

Team points, of course, are kept, but for no real reason other than pride. Individuals, not teams, qualifying to go downstate regardless of points.

The ticket for any particular performer to get downstate for the finals in Champaign next weekend is to either meet a pre-specified standard in each event, or else be one of the top two finishers in an event.

Last year, the area qualified 33 boys for the state meet, but most failed to survive preliminaries and nobody from the area placed for the first time in 20 years.

Schools with chances of qualifying the most boys appear to be Elk Grove, Hersey, Palatine, Maine East, Maine West and Schaumburg. Others from the Mid-Suburban League are Arlington, Conant, Forest View, Fremd, Prospect, Rolling Meadows and Wheeling.

Also entered are St. Viator, Maine North, Maine South, Antioch, Barrington, Grant, Grayslake, Lake Park, Lake Zurich, McHenry, Round Lake and Wauconda.

Jim Wendler, coach of the Elk Grove team which won the Mid-Suburban title by two points over Hersey last Friday, said, "Last year we qualified nine guys for the state meet, the most we've ever had, but it's going to be tough to get that many this year. Our only consistent placers are our hurdlers (Dave Jensen and Steve Busse) but we could have some others."

Hersey coach Larry Travis summed up the feeling of all coaches when he said, "We've been pointing for the district meet all along, gearing ourselves to be ready then."

So this is it. For the first time all season, each boy is faced with either delivering the goods for tonight or seeing his season abruptly end.

The outlook in each event:

Leaves sidelines after 20 seasons

A new challenge for Bob Walther

FOR 20 YEARS Bob Walther patrolled the sidelines as a football coach.

For 20 years he spent his fall afternoons and evenings experiencing the stillness that comes just before issuing the order to have his team take the field.

For 20 years he felt the blast of excitement that fills a coach's chest when he runs out to the field with his team.

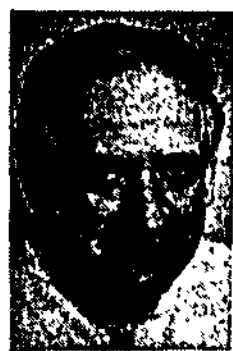

For 20 years he experienced the exhilaration of victory and, yes, the hurt, even disgust, that can come with defeat.

For 20 years... but no more.

Bob Walther, who coached six years at Arlington High School with two unbeaten powerhouses, has directed his last football team. It was announced last week that he will become director of student activities at Prospect High School.

This new post will give him total involvement with a school, with boys and girls. Walther is ready, anxious to begin his new duties, but he has absolutely no regrets over what has transpired over the past 20 years.

"Without a doubt, I would do it all over again," he said this week as he looked back on his coaching career. "Coaching and working with people of all ages made me a better person, I feel, cognizant of the needs of others and more qualified now for this new position."

Walther leaves behind an impressive coaching record. He was 102-45-8 in football at all levels and 36-11-2 at Arlington in six varsity seasons. He had unbeaten Cardinal teams in 1969 and '70, teams he likes to talk about, teams he will always remember.

"That '69 team was our strongest, personnel wise," he says. "It was physically bigger and stronger than the others with nine or 10 college prospects. Finesse wise, no, but it was a fine group. We weren't real deep and a couple key injuries could have caused a lot of trouble."

"You know, it's funny, but I really don't remember games, or plays, with teams like that. I remember people more, kids, what type they were, whether they were gentlemen. It's the relationships you develop through the years that make it worthwhile."

Although Walther admits that 1968 club was his strongest, he says 1970 was the most enjoyable year he had at Arlington.

"In '70, that was a smart team, a finesse team," he points out. "They got absolutely everything out of their abilities. It was a fun group, the first year we started to whoop and holler, have a few laughs. That's really the way I like it. Although I know it happens, kids shouldn't approach football as a business. Even that '68 team was like a commuter going to work every day, very professional in their attitudes."

Walther, an all-city tackle in high school at Austin of Chicago, actually started his coaching career as a sophomore in college. He attended Augustana College on the GI bill after serving two years ("No," he corrects, "it was really one year, 10 months, and two days!") with the Navy. He had started at Indianapolis university but enlisted in January of his freshman year and did play football in the service.

"I got hurt playing on the varsity at Augustana in my freshman year," Bob recalls, "and then they hired me to coach and scout at a nominal fee, a very nominal fee. When I started in college, I thought I would go into industrial engineering. My counselor advised against it and that sophomore year I first began to realize just how much sports had affected my life. When I graduated, they hired me as an assistant coach on a fulltime basis."

Walther's early years in coaching took him from Augustana to Prophetstown High School (near Moline) where he was "football coach, basketball coach, track coach, athletic director, general science teacher, custodian, you name it."

"That was one of the greatest experiences I've ever had," he says now. "It was a wonderful town, wonderful people, great kids."

Bob also worked at a junior high school in Davenport, Iowa and moved to the Chicago suburban area when the head coaching job opened at Antioch. He coached five years at Antioch before accepting a position in Dist. 214 at Forest View. He also coached at Elk Grove before becoming the head coach at Arlington in 1967.

"Those early years here were very enjoyable," Bob says. "I think the most natural athlete I ever had was Pat Dunnigan, when I coached him as a freshman at Forest View. Actually, I think he had the most natural ability of any athlete I've ever seen in this district, real fluid motion."

"And that experience at Elk Grove was tremendous. What an unpredictable but enjoyable group of kids that was on the sophomore level. I've always had a soft spot in my heart for Elk Grove Village because of my association with those boys. It was an emotional scene when I took my Arlington team over there to play Elk Grove, facing the boys I had coached as sophomores."

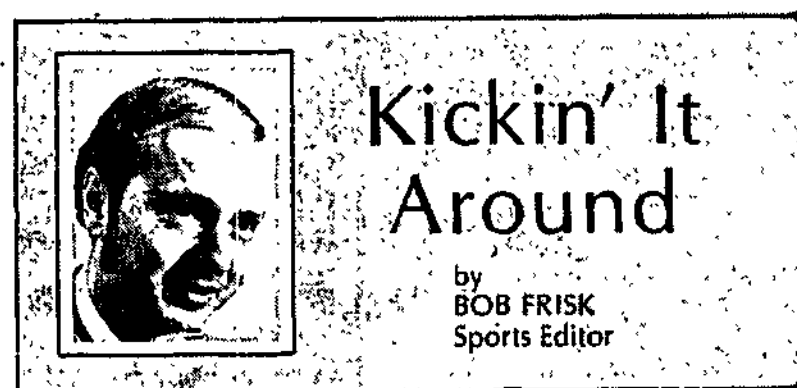

"You know, when you're close to your kids, you work that much harder and you enjoy it that much more. As a coach, you have to establish almost a family rapport."

In looking back over the years Walther stresses that he appreciates most the guidance from three people in his life. "Howard Lester in our own district (athletic coordinator for Dist. 214) has been a calming influence, a real fine person to me in all these years. It's people like him who make coaching a wonderful experience. And Vince Lundeen, who's now director of the student union at Augustana, encouraged me to be a leader. My parents knew that a leader takes a lot of mental punishment. Vince turned me in the right direction. And Lenny Kalla, baseball and basketball coach at Augustana, also was a tremendous influence on my life."

"There have been so many others who have helped me in the district, influenced my decisions, people like Ken Arneson, Bob Hoese, Tom Pitchford, Bob Henderson, Bob Scott, Bob Tipword, Bill Beckman, people that I have worked with, that I think a great deal of."

"That's what this whole business is about, the great people you're associated with and the kids."

Walther, who admits that youngsters are "more individualists now but really not that much different from years ago, has praise for the parents he's been associated with through the years."

"Sure, there are exceptions," he says, "but you give me an athlete's parent, and you have a fine person, a person who sacrifices so much for that child. The youngster will be up and down emotionally because of sports, and the parent has to be aware of this. It can be a tough job, a situation that coaches must also be aware of."

Walther knows how it is when a boy becomes a teenager. He goes out into his world, he becomes a bigger man — more self-sufficient — and maybe the old communications at home break down a little. Somebody has to keep teaching him the values of life.

"A coach today must be sensitive to an athlete's needs," he says. "Coaching is a year-round job. You have custodial work, equipment work, checking showers, talking to kids after practice, knowing what their life is. You must be aware that they are sensitive to mannerisms you might have."

"But I'm convinced that athletes are the most well-developed kids, physically and mentally. You hear so much about violence, and maybe kids now don't feel they should belong to that world. But in football you learn how to control your aggressiveness, to get along with people under tremendous physical and mental stress."

Walther loves football. He thoroughly enjoyed coaching, but there comes a time when a man knows he is ready for a change.

It's not an easy decision to make. There has to be some apprehension at first, naturally, but when everything is examined and a decision is made, there is a surge of anticipation, of excitement over the future.

There will be many fond memories next fall when the band strikes up on a crisp Friday evening and the smell of burning leaves is in the air. You don't casually dismiss so many rewarding years, but Bob Walther will be accepting new responsibilities, new challenges.

It was time for a change. He's anxious to get started.

10 years ago...

Arlington's Chuck Close and Rusty Walters combined for the state doubles title in tennis, beating New Trier's Jay Huebsch and Art Nielsen in the finals 8-6, 6-2... Coach Ken Schaller's Cardinals finished second behind New Trier in the team chase... Prospect's Tom Bremner was fourth in the state in the 120 yard high hurdles (14.5) and Palatine's Bob Frost was third in the 880 yard run (1:56.5).

Qualifying round today

Golf Editor

Two Mid-Suburban League golf teams and a pair of individuals will carry the area's banner to two state sectional golf sites today in the final stages of qualifying for the Champaign championships May 25-26.

Prospect and Wheeling earned team reservations for the Deerfield Sectional along with Hersey's Jeff Kallman who qualified among the top five district medalists from the first-round test at Buffalo Grove.

And while the area is void of any team representation in the Aurora West Sectional, Conant's Dave Love will be searching for state fame on an individual basis, having earned credentials for advancement out of the Lake Park District.

AT DEERFIELD

The Knights and Wildcats will be vying with seven other team qualifiers (three advanced from each of three districts) for the state meet mecca.

The requirements and talent are stiff, though, with just the top three teams and five individuals receiving passes for Champaign.

Prospect earned its sectional ticket by finishing second in the Buffalo Grove District behind Lake Forest. Wheeling, meanwhile, rose to the post-season occasion by landing a notch behind in third.

The Knights will be represented by Rich Reed, Craig Calkins, Bob Horwath, Craig Ridley and Norm Schwartz while the Wildcats will rely on Rick Groessl, Mark Bull, Dave Schultz, John McDeagall and Vince Allendorf.

In addition to Lake Forest, Prospect and Wheeling, the Glenview District qualified teams representing Niles East, New Trier West (second in the state last year) and Evanston while the Woodstock District gave the green light to Carmel of Mundelein, Waukegan and Mundelein.

The Deerfield Sectional will be conducted at Deerfield Park District Golf Course — a very demanding 6,700-yard test. According to an official, the course plays very tight with a lot of water, sand and out-of-bounds hazards. He assured that the three survivors will have won the trip downstate from skill, not luck.

AT AURORA WEST

Dave Love will have to be on top of his short-iron game, according to a spokesman at Phillips Park Golf Course, the site of the Aurora West Sectional.

The course is a short, 5931-yard layout that lacks the great degree of difficulty. The par 37-34-71 challenge is relatively free of hazards although the greens are small. Accuracy and consistency should be the keys to success.

The teams competing for honors in Aurora include Hinsdale Central, York and Downers Grove North (out of the Downers Grove South District), Naperville Central, Wheaton North and Aurora West (out of the Naperville Central District) and Lake Park, Addison Trail and St. Edward of Elgin (from the Roselle District).

SOLID PITCHING STAFFS

Dear Fans Forum:

Who says the National League is better? In the past two weeks the White Sox have faced the following pitchers in order: Marty Pattin, Bill Singer, Nolan Ryan, Clyde Wright, Rudy May, Ken Holtzman, and Vida Blue. That's a pretty good collection of pitchers and how many National League teams are there that can match the starting pitchers of Oakland and California? I've been an American League fan for years and now I'm going to start giving back what I've had to take all this time. The American League is tougher and I dare any National League fan to refute this!!!

TOO COLD FOR CUBS?

Dear Fans Forum:

So it was a little cold Monday, despite the fact the sun was out, and the Cubs called their game off. Are they afraid of their precious attendance figures? So now they'll play it on a warm day in July with school out and once again it shows just how ridiculous crowd comparisons are between the Cubs and White Sox. How many times did the Sox postpone their games on the recent home stand when it was just as cold or colder than Monday in Chicago?

The fact that the sun was shining and it was not really that uncomfortable Monday afternoon and a major league team called its game off is absurd.

Maybe the aging Cubs can't take the cold weather.

THEY ALL MEAN SOMETHING

Dear Herald:

My friends have been telling me the Cubs are playing such an easy schedule that these games don't mean anything now. I don't care if they have been playing Philadelphia and San Diego a lot because you have to beat those teams sooner or later. Anyway, it was my dad who told me once that you had to beat all the time the lower teams and split with the upper ones to have a chance at the pennant. This is the Cubs' year.

A SIGNIFICANT ACHIEVEMENT

Dear Fans Forum:

I was glad to see the way you played up that 60 foot shot put by the boy from Rolling Meadows in the conference meet. Granted, there were other significant achievements in the meet but nothing to quite compare with a boy topping 60 feet in the shot. You gave it the coverage it deserved.

There are certain standards in track that athletes are always shooting for and 60 feet in the shot put is a very significant one. He should be congratulated.

Series record

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — When Gene Tenace blasted two home runs in his first two times at bat in the 1972 World Series against Cincinnati, it marked the first time that the feat had been performed in World Series play. Tenace totaled four home runs in the Series, tying him with Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig.

Forest View Wheeling tie in girls track

Forest View and Wheeling tied for the Mid-Suburban Conference girls track title Tuesday when all 12 teams got together.

In a scoring system in which low team point totals win, Forest View and Wheeling each had five, Arlington eight, Schaumburg 12, Rolling Meadows 12½, Prospect 16, Hersey and Conant each 18, Fremd 20, Palatine 21½, and Elk Grove and Glenbard North 23 each.

Double event winners included Kathy Laporte of Hersey, Jill Smith of Forest View and Trudi Rebsamen of Prospect as new conference records were set in many events. Laporte won the long jump with 15 feet, 11¼ inches; Smith took the 50-yard dash in :06.2 and the 100 in :11.8, and Rebsamen won the 220-yard dash in :28.2 and the 440 in :57.8.

Other winners were Nessa Calabrese of Forest View with 217 feet, 9¼ inches in the softball throw, Mary Ann Johnson of Schaumburg with 33-4½ in the shot put, Peg Kennedy of Schaumburg with 113-1 in the discus throw, Shirley Tyson of Wheeling with 4-11 in the high jump, Peg Klein of Arlington with 2:30.2 in the 880-yard run and Forest View's 440-yard relay team with :52.6.

Junior Hockey continues rapid growth

"Junior hockey is one of the fastest and most exciting age groups in Canadian ice hockey," says Al Marshall, President of the Illinois Amateur Hockey Association.

"It certainly is a pleasure to know that by signing up Chicago's entry into the Midwest Junior Hockey League, that we now have someplace for our Illinois hockey players to play from the age of five right up to 21 years of age," continued Marshall.

Marshall's statement refers to Metro Sports, Inc. receiving a franchise into the Midwest Junior Hockey League.

Although the Illinois State Tournament had four Junior age teams participating this year, the Metro Sports team will have an accelerated program of the top junior age boys in the State of Illinois. The team will compete in the Midwest Junior circuit sponsored by the National Hockey League. The N.H.L. hopes before too long to have every N.H.L. city represented with junior hockey teams.

I.A.H.A. President Al Marshall said, "I'm glad to see that the N.H.L. is beginning to recognize the fact that American hockey players are starting to come into their own."

"Almost every professional Canadian hockey player has played Junior in Canada," said Oliver Stankowski, "and we of Metro Sports think it's about time that our Chicagoland players have an opportunity to show their talents. We are looking forward to the start of the next season both for our Junior 'A' team and also for the Junior 'B' league which we intend to develop."

Bill Marshall, vice-president of Metro Sports said, "Al Marshall (no relation) was instrumental in helping Metro Sports obtain our 'Junior A' franchise. He is truly interested in promoting hockey in Illinois."

Metro Sports will be on hand at Saturday's meeting of the I.A.H.A. to further explain their plans for hockey in the Chicagoland area. The meeting is a day-long affair to be held at the Marriott Hotel in Park Ridge. It will start at 9 a.m. with a business meeting and election of new officers.

In the five months Al Marshall has been President of the I.A.H.A., he has been instrumental in organizing the Novice and "B" State Tournaments. He published and circulated an opinion survey regarding the future of hockey in Illinois. The opinion survey will constitute a good portion of the Open Forum segment of Saturday's meeting. He also pushed for a more functional Suspension Committee that furnished a list of suspended players and coaches to local rinks and hockey organizations. "The published suspension list proved to be a deterrent to those players and coaches who otherwise may have gotten out of hand," said Marshall. About 40% of the suspensions handed out this season were to coaches.

The "Open Forum" portion of the meeting will start shortly after the noon luncheon. Bill McNamara, spring meeting chairman, is inviting all interested hockey fans, parents and players to attend the meeting. The 9 a.m. business meeting and 1 p.m. Open Forum meeting are free and all are welcome to attend.

Luncheon tickets will cost $10 each and can be purchased through the I.A.H.A. Many hockey equipment manufacturers will be displaying their new lines for 1973 in the Grand Ballroom where the open forum will be held.

Card, Knight netmen 1-2 heading into MSL finals

Tennis Editor

If the Mid-Suburban League tennis teams could be categorized by flights like golfers, you'd probably have the championship division, "A", "B" and "C".

With that in mind, this is the way the Forest View hosted (at Arlington's courts) the MSL tourney today and Saturday seems to shape up.

"Championship" — Arlington has dominated the MSL since it joined in 1966. Seven league titles and 68 straight dual meet wins, including 11 decisive wins this spring, indicates that championship No. 7 is only hours away.

Only once during the MSL season did Arlington falter, coming in first doubles against hosting Prospect. The setback only means that Arlington takes 85 points into the conference instead of 86.

Little Grove gridders

The Elk Grove Athletic Association will hold fall football registration at two sites from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. this Saturday.

Registration will be accepted at the Elk Grove Bowl meeting room and at Grant Wood School. Early sign-up is necessary to ensure proper planning prior to August practice.

For further information, contact Bob Curtin — 437-8164 — or Chuck Stelger — 439-0304.

Three Cardinal singles champions return — perennial titlist Jim Merkel, John Poczowski and Don Rodig. All were naturally undefeated in the duels.

The senior-junior team of Dave Mack and Todd Reese also went unscored upon with Rex Miller and Craig Van Gorp having just one loss, coming at the hands of Prospect's first team.

This Knight combination — Charles Clemens and Jeff Rinsteen — has the best chance of cutting into Arlington's conference meet point total. Coach Tom Pitchford is only saying "We respect our opponents in all areas."

"We are hoping that our kids are up mentally and aren't looking ahead to the following week (state tournament at Arlington). They've got to be ready mentally."

However, on paper the Cardinals appear to have little trouble winning by the usual wide margin. This is how the other "races" shape up:

"A" Flight — On the basis of their showing in the district tourney (nearly taking Arlington to the wire before losing), the Knights don't appear to be contested too much for second. Holding 58 points and a 10-1 record, Prospect is nine up on third-place Hersey.

Also closing fast is Palatine, looking for its eighth win last night (weather permitting) against luckless Wheeling. A 5-0 victory against the hosting Wildcats would have left the Pirates with 42 points. A few upsets and the Pirates and Huskies could make the Knights nervous.

"B" Flight — This figures to be quite a dogfight with four teams within a few points of each other and all shooting for first division spots. Rolling Meadows and Fremd went through the league winning six while losing five. Count and Elk Grove went 5-6.

"C" Flight — The bottom four teams occupy this slot with Schaumburg (17 points) and Forest View (15) being the closest matched with Glenbard North and Wheeling bringing up the rear.

Northwest 'Y' sends team to Special Swim Olympics

The 1973 Special Olympics Games in Illinois are now underway and more than 25,000 mentally handicapped children will compete in their local communities for the opportunity of participating in the area trials and ultimately, the Illinois State Special Olympics.

This year there are three area events. In Central Illinois, the games were held on May 5 at Millikin University in Decatur with 1,000 participants. In Southern Illinois, the trials were held last Friday at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale with 800 participants; and in Northern Illinois today at Hutchinson Field and Eckhart Park with 1,500 participants expected.

Top gold medal winners from each division will then represent their area in the Illinois State Special Olympics which will be held in Chicago on August 10.

The Northwest Suburban YMCA will be represented today by a contingent of 17 swimmers at Eckhart Park. These swimmers are part of a group of students who attend lessons for "People with Special Needs" every Wednesday evening at the "Y."

It is an "all volunteer" program taught by dedicated qualified aquatic instructors, interested young adults and adults, Girl Scouts, Explorer Scouts, E-Hart, United Cerebral Palsy group and other volunteer organizations, who donate their time to the program. All volunteers receive an orientation session before teaching in the program.

The program is in its 12th year and many children and adults with various handicaps have been taught to swim with many going on to regular classes after being taught the basics of swimming. It is open to anyone in the surrounding communities.

Director of the program is Mrs. Thomas Crouch of Deerfield, and co-chairmen are Mrs. John Gobielle and Mrs. Walter Ost of Mount Prospect. The related professional staff person is Miss Debbie Berg of Rolling Meadows.

This is the third year that the group has participated and last year two of the members were picked to represent Illinois at the National Special Olympics in California, which is held every two years.

Thanks to efforts of citizens throughout the State of Illinois, these special athletes will enjoy sports clinics conducted by sports celebrities, a visit by Ronald McDonald and a McDonald's Hamburgers lunch, gifts, snacks, special prizes, and entertainment. Youth Division of the Illinois Association for the Retarded, the Knights of Columbus and many other groups will provide the manpower and support necessary to make these games an overwhelming success.

Winning an Olympic medal is certainly something each athlete desires, but to all of them, winning the recognition of their families, friends, teachers and the community in general is ultimately more important. And everyone is a winner at the Special Olympics because it takes hard work, perseverance and courage just to become a participant.

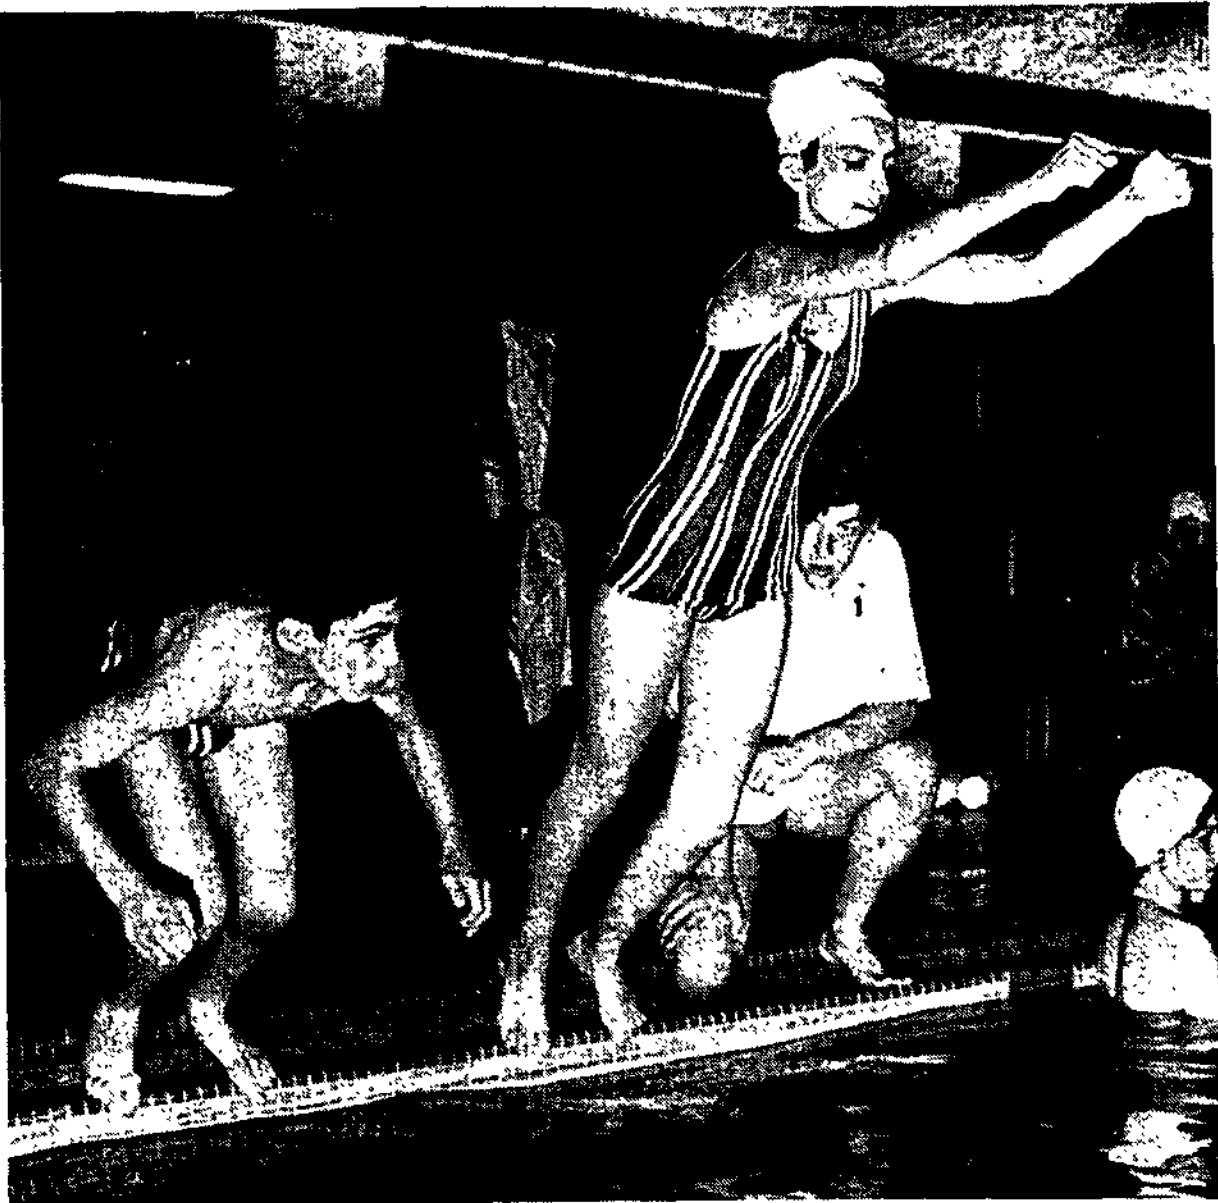

The Special Olympics Games in Illinois are co-sponsored by the Chicago Park District, Mentally Retarded Olympian Program and the Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr. Foundation.

For information on the Games, interested parties can contact Mrs. Pat Condon, Illinois Special Olympics State Director, at the Chicago Park District.

Donations of funds, products and services are sent to the Mentally Retarded Olympian Program, Inc., Suite 303, 1660 N. Lincoln Park West, Chicago, Ill. 60614.

The purpose of the Special Olympics is to get the mentally handicapped involved in physical recreation programs that will offer them the opportunity to develop to their full potential.

With the support of citizens in Illinois, the Special Olympics will some day be able to benefit all these special and deserving people.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Willis Reed tried his best to keep a straight face, but couldn't.

He really wanted to laugh.

But he knew that wouldn't be right, it would look rude, so all he did was smile.

It was the question that made him do it, a question put to him Tuesday afternoon while he was standing alongside the new car presented to him by Sport Magazine for being voted MVP in the New York Knicks' NBA title triumph over the Los Angeles Lakers last week.

Everyone who follows basketball knows how Willis Reed had to come all the way back from a steady succession of injuries, how it was his hip one year, his shoulder the year after that and tendons last year. Now he was being hit with the question making him smile — why, he was being asked, was he that confident he could make it all the way back this year when there was a point last year, after he couldn't play past November and following knee surgery, where some people figured he was all through?

"I came a long way," said Willis Reed, smile and all. "Being a little boy from Bernice, Louisiana, you had to do things for yourself, and if you didn't believe in yourself, there was no way you'd ever make it."

Actually, the Knicks' 6-10 captain and center seemed a bit guilty when Dick Schaap, the editor of the magazine, first informed him he was the winner of the car for the second time he also won it in 1970 after last Thursday's finale in Los Angeles.

"He looked at me when I told him he had won, and he said it was a team victory," related Schaap. "Everybody says that, but he meant it. I explained to him he was receiving the award for his play and his leadership. He was a symbol of the entire team. I also told him we were giving separate MVP awards to each member of the team because of the way they had won, and that made him feel better."

Not that much, though.

He still looked somewhat guilty about all the fuss being made over him Tuesday and even as he stood there on the sidewalk, alongside the car, with the television cameras grinding all around him he seemed as if he wished the rest of his teammates were with him.

A passing cab driver, recognizing Reed, slowed his taxi long enough to holler out:

"Atta Boy, Willis. You deserve it."

That gave rise to the restrained Reed smile again.

They asked him some more about how he felt when he first became aware he had been singled out as MVP and Reed had no trouble remembering.

"I couldn't believe it," he said. "I thought Walt Frazier should've won. I'd have voted for him. To me, winning the car really is insignificant. The important thing is that we won the championship. I honestly don't know why they voted me the car. I guess I was the biggest guy out there so they gave it to me."

Reed was ushered inside the restaurant where he was to be given the keys to the car officially and even on the inside he clung to the conviction that "everybody was an MVP."

By way of supporting his opinion, Reed began calling out some of the names.

"... Dean Meminger came off the bench and played a big ball game in Boston ... then Frazier did the job for us ... and after him it was Dave DeBusschere ... and Phil Jackson ... You can go down the line — John Gianelli came in once ... and Dick Barnett when we needed him ... Jerry Lucas ... Bill Bradley ... so it was everybody."

That certainly is true enough, but in the end it was Willis Reed possibly a shade more than anyone else. To some people that came in the nature of a surprise. Not to one, though.

"My mother said I would do it," Willis Reed said with that same little smile again, "and what mama says is right."

BUFFALO, N.Y., UPI —Lou Saban, coach of the NFL Buffalo Bills was a single wing quarterback in his playing days at the University of Indiana and became a standout linebacker for the Cleveland Browns during his pro career. Fremd dumps Arlington; Wheeling, Hersey, Prospect post victories

A booming triple to right by Randy Kraft sandwiched between a pair of singles proved to be Arlington's downfall as Fremd continued to pull away from the Mid-Suburban North pack Wednesday with a 3-1 triumph.

The victory was number nine in 11 loop tries for Terry Gellinger's visiting band 2nd virtually eliminated the Cards from the once tight North Division race. Arlington is now three games behind the leaders with only five left to play.

Kraft's shot came between one-base raps by Mark Funk and John Slack with one away in the sixth to cement a pitcher's duel between Ron Roggenbuck of the guests and Redbird Dan Cunningham.

Cunningham had been tapped for a run in the third but the Cardinals got this one back in the bottom of the sixth when Bob Harth walked and eventually scored on John Dillon's three-base slam up the middle.

Roggenbuck struck out the next two batters to escape that jam and wound up whiffing six while registering his fourth loop win five decisions.

The Vikes put their first run on the board in the third on walks to Jeff Brisson and Bob Burke and a fielder's choice. Fred Smith was then hit by a pitch, forcing Brisson across the plate.

In the sixth Kraft's triple sent Funk across with the eventual winning run and Slack's base hit pushed home Kraft for insurance.

HOME RUN DERBY

Playing home run derby at Pioneer Park in Arlington Heights, the Wheeling Wildcats held on to defeat hosting Rolling Meadows 7-5.

The difference in the ball game was Wheeling's pitching. Bob Peter went the distance for a six-hitter. He gave up a pair of homers — Marc Klomp in the first and Pat Earley in the fifth — but both were solo shots.

When the 'Cats socked their two roundtrippers, runners were on base. Trailing 4-3 in the top of the fifth, a hustle infield hit by Ron Henricks was followed shortly after by a towering home to center field by Paul Groot. This gave the 'Cats the lead for good.

The visitors padded their margin in the sixth and it paid off in the bottom of the seventh. John Theriault beat out another infield single after one was out. A pop up later, George Kaage blasted a homer to almost the same spot as teammate Groot. Again there was no play at the plate as the fenceless park.

Dave Thorstenson, who relieved Meadows starter Mike Saugling in the fifth inning, managed to get out of further trouble when Wheeling left runners — Pat McGinn and Henricks who reached on singles — with a strikeout.

Meadows tried for a final comeback in the seventh. After two were out, Joe Ripplinger singled, Klomp walked and Len Link doubled in one. With two runners in scoring position and a base hit possibly tying the game, Peter struck out the final Meadows batter.

Klomp gave the Mustangs the lead in the first with a homer to right. After the Wildcats bounced back with two in the second on a double steal by John Carlberg (taking second) and Peter (taking home) and an RBI single by Tom Slepicka, back the Mustangs came with a solo homer to left by Pat Earley.

A couple of errors and a pair of walks led to a gift run for Wheeling in the third, a RBI going to Carlberg for his bases on balls.

A two-run single by Rick Sidor changed the score again in Meadows' favor, 4-3. This set up the homer heroics of Groot and Kaage.

HUSKIES NIP PIRATES

Steve Arneri's two-out single to right scored teammate Tom Good with what proved to be the winning run in the sixth inning of Hersey's hard-fought 3-2 triumph over Palatine.

The two clubs have a history of playing close ball games with their previous two outings ending in a scoreless tie after six innings and then going 11 innings before a winner was determined.

This contest seemed headed into overtime play as well as both clubs owned two runs upon entering the sixth. But with two outs, Good slashed an opposite-field double down the left field foul line and Arneri pushed a single to right for the decisive blow.

Hersey broke on top in the first frame off Palatine ace Buddy Hughes when leadoff hitter Mike Broderick coaxed a pass and waited two outs later when cleanup hitter John Kanellis unleashed a tremendous home run to straightaway centerfield.

Palatine clawed back with one in the second off Husky starter Pat Hart as Lon Marchel singled, Kent Mutchmore sacrificed and Mike Hughes drew a pass. Buddy Hughes was hit by a pitch to fill the sacks, but Mike Sorci forced Marchel at home.

Rick Hoff picked up a run batted in by forcing in Mike Hughes with the second walk of the stanza and the Pirates finally knocked Hart out in the fifth when they tied the contest.

Pinch-hitting Sal Floretti opened with a walk and Hoff pushed him to third with a right-field single. Brian Nelson was summoned from the Huskies' bullpen but was greeted by John Smith's run-scoring single. Nelson, however, pitched out of trouble in the sixth and seventh to notch the verdict.

PROSPECT BATS BOOM

Prospect, with the first eight men in the batting order contributing at least one hit apiece, whacked Conant, 8-4, in a South Division clash.

The Knights, paced by leadoff hitter Jim Dumke's three safeties, solved a pair of Cougar hurlers for 10 hits while scoring in every inning but the third.

Four errors also contributed to Conant's downfall with the first figuring directly in Prospect first-inning scoring.

Jim Altobelli walked and Mark Hartley and Ray Seiber both followed with singles sandwiched around a misplay in left field. Ken Kalberg made it 2-0 with a sacrifice fly to right.

Conant shaved the margin to 2-1 in the second behind singles by Tim Dern, Mike Atkocsis and John Milke, but the Knights drew away with a three-run fourth highlighted by singles by Steve Wolski, Jim Anderson and Dumke, a walk, hit batsman and a double steal that paved the way to the departure of Conant starter Ken Hubbard.

The Cougars got the three runs back in the top of the fifth when Milke, Jim Brown, Paul Gebhardt and Neal Thompson all singled off Knight Mark Blasco and relieved Eric Tannhauser ripped a double to make it 6-4.

Prospect upped its advantage with a marker in the fifth on Kalberg's infield hit, a stolen base and throwing error and Steve Mahanna's squeeze bunt and capped the scoring in the sixth on Dumke's double and Altobelli's opposite-field single.

Blasco cruised the distance for Prospect, walking only one while fanning seven.

St. Viator launches play in conference net finals

St. Viator seeks the sweet taste of glory again.

Two years ago, the Lions' tennis team captured the Suburban Catholic Conference championship. Last season they finished third.

They'll again try to recapture the crown this weekend at the SCC meet held at Rlis Park. Action begins this afternoon with the finals taking place on Saturday.

St. Viator went through the SCC unbeaten, but most of its meets were close ones. Coach John Fleck said he thought the title would be decided between his team and three others — Notre Dame, St. Patrick and St. Francis.

Jeff Davenport, playing third singles, went through the SCC season undefeated at that spot. Tom Wenzel also hasn't lost, but against Notre Dame he played second singles. He's St. Viator's No. 1 man now and must go against Notre Dame's unbeaten first singles player.

Fleck said that this team could win if both Wenzel and Davenport capture individual titles along with the second doubles team of Don Barnak and Jim Bernardini.

Also expected to do the job are Mike Revnes at second singles and the doubles team of Russ Filton and Bruce Fischer.

White Sox are back

Chuck Tanner's miracle workers will return to the winning confines of Sox Park beginning tonight for a 13-game home stand that will feature the Sox besting Minnesota, California, Cleveland and Detroit.

The Sox and Twins will reel off six straight games, four in Sox Park beginning tonight after two in Tundraland on Wednesday and Thursday.

Four special days, or nights as the case may be, have been planned for the two-week stay.

Sunday will be Bat Day, a free Dick Allen autographed ball masher going to the first 25,000 youngsters 14 years old or under who are accompanied by a paying adult. Almost 32,000 fans saw the Sox beat New York twice on Bat Day last year so you can't get tickets too early.

The Sox-Indians afternoon game on Thursday, May 24, is Senior Citizens Day. All qualifying folk with proper ID's will be admitted for only 50 cents.

Two nights later, all ladies will be admitted free of charge when the Sox take on Cleveland's Indians.

Finally, the first of five scheduled Family Nights, all on the last Tuesday of each month, comes up on May 29 when the Sox host Detroit in a night single. Reduced rates will apply to all subsequent family members after one parent pays the full freight.

Jamboree at Thillens

The Hoffman Estates Community Baseball Association will hold its baseball jamboree this Saturday at Thillens Stadium, Devon and Kedzie Aves., Chicago. The Stadium has declared Saturday Hoffman Estates Day in honor of the Jamboree.

Games will be held continuously for 12 hours beginning at 9 a.m. Each game will last one hour. Twenty minor league, 12 major league and four girls softball teams will participate.

Thillens Stadium seats 2,000 spectators. The community is invited to attend.

Go hurt yourself

From the Niles Saints to Green Bay Packers to the Football Hall-of-Fame?

Well, probably not. But if you like hitting people and have been getting funny looks in return, consider joining the Niles Saints, Illinois' newest semi-professional football team.

The Saints will hold tryouts from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. this Sunday at Notre Dame high school in Niles. All Saints home games will be played at Notre Dame.

The minimum requirement is that candidates be at least 18 years old. Niles will compete in the Chicagoand Football League.

For further information, call Pat Pissell at 278-5845 or write him at 135 Columbia, Elmhurst.

Kerrrrr - Plunk !

Congratulations to Ron Rizzo of Des Plaines for the first hole-in-one reported to the Herald this spring! Ron's super effort came on the 160-yard seventh hole at Mount Prospect. He used a six-iron and was shooting during the Friday Nite League Play.

Ron's shot was witnessed by Chuck Lynch, Don Odert and Ron Bracken.

Harper doubles team 3rd in girls' sectional meet

Harper College women's tennis team completed recently in the Northern Illinois University hosted sectional tourney.

Despite competing against both junior and senior college competition, one doubles team managed to come away with third place.

Brigitte Bayer and Margie Casurella, playing at second doubles, handled North Central College 6-2, 6-0. After a bye into the quarter finals, they lost to Northern Illinois 6-0, 6-1. However, the Bayer-Casurella combo won third place by default when the Chicago Circle Campus players failed to show up.

The first doubles team of Jan Broderick and Betsy Pohl lost in the first round by 6-2 6-0 scores to a North Central team that was No. 1 in the state last year.

In singles action, Ella Wade lost to Northern Illinois by 6-1 scores. Carol Danegger couldn't play because of an injury.

Coach Martha Bolt called the meet a "learning experience" for her team. Harper travels to Joliet today for a dual meet. North Central College will host a six-team invitational on Saturday.

New Trier dumps Norsemen, 4-2

Bill Harrison went the route in a pretty decent performance but got little help from his teammates' bats as Maine North hit off the short end of a 4-2 score against New Trier West on Wednesday afternoon.

The Norsemen could muster just three hits against Cowboy pitching as their record dipped to 4-11 before Thursday's make-up game with Maine East.

New Trier picked up a single run off Harrison in the third, then went behind temporarily as Maine struck for two fifth inning tallies.

Eddie Volkman and Mike Schumacher walked to get that rally going. Bases were loaded when Kevin Patten singled for North's only hit that inning.

Graham Wiener's infield out scored Volkman to tie the game. Schumacher's later tally gave Maine its only lead.

New Trier struck right back during the frame's bottom half to go up 3-2, adding its last run in the sixth.

Harper rallies but falls short, 13-10

During the last week, Harper has been able to come from behind for a late inning victory almost every time. Wednesday's Skyway Conference game at Elgin fell into the "almost" category.

Trailing 13-5 heading into the top of the ninth, the Hawks plated five runs before being stopped 13-10. Harper is now 15-14 overall with two games today and a tourney on Saturday remaining on the schedule.

If Harper's pitchers could have "held" the Spartans after their nine-run uprising in the first two innings, victory could have been achieved. Elgin scored six in the first off starter and loser Mark Wicklund. Terry Moriarity went the remaining seven innings.

After three innings, it appeared as if Harper would gradually get back into the contest. The score was then 9-5.

Keith Steelman's two-run double in the first was followed by a one-run double by Tony Fricano to give the Hawks their only lead.

Mark Jesse singled in Bob Chen in the second and Dean Sheridan scored on a passed ball in the third as the comeback continued. But Elgin pushed across three in the fifth and one in the eighth to provide its pitcher with the needed cushion in the nervous ninth.

In the final inning, Chen singled in one, Gary Pemberton scored on a throwing error, Mike Honel singled in two and scored on Sheridan's single.

Chen paced the Hawks with 3-for-5 with Steelman right behind at 2-for-4, both doubles off the right field fence.

Highland Park, Deerfield class of field

Central Suburban net finals begin

by MIKE KLEIN

The sport: Lawn tennis played on asphalt.

The event: Central Suburban League championships.

And the winner: Highland Park or Deerfield. Nobody else retains even a breath of hope when play begins today at Glenbrook North. And everybody knows it.

Highland Park's Little Giants are so strong that head coach Bill Ratliff is warning: "Don't count us out of the state title picture."

That means the Little Giants can stay on the court with defending state title Hinsdale Central?? "I don't really know," says Ratliff. "I've got an idea from their reputations, though."

"I know Hinsdale beat Deerfield fairly bad, but that was early," he continued. "We'll just have to wait and see at the state tourney. I don't think you can count Highland Park or New Trier East out, though."

A man in good position to judge these things is Chuck Morrison, head netman at Deerfield. His Warriors have lost just twice in 12 matches . . . to Highland Park and Hinsdale Central.

"In my opinion, Hinsdale is much stronger," offered Morrison. "Outside of Jon Powell, Highland Park can't touch 'em."

Yet, it's Deerfield that's got some catching to do at this weekend's CSL meet, set for noon today and 10 a.m. Saturday on the Glenbrook North courts in Northbrook.

"We hope we can catch 'em, might be able to tie," said Deerfield's Morrison. "Gonna need a little luck. Might be able to help somebody else."

It's not likely that anyone but Highland Park or Deerfield will come away victorious. The CSL counts match results from all duels plus the season ending tourney to determine its champion.

Doing it that way, the top four contenders are Highland Park 48, Deerfield 40, Glenbrook North 31 and Maine West 29. Warrior head coach Roger King expects that Maine will overhaul Glenbrook for third place.

Among the other Maines, Art Belmonte's East Blue Demons should finish high in the bottom half. Maine North has not scored a single point all spring and will be eliminated early.

The Warriors will utilize a lineup that's been pretty well set all spring. Steve Wild will take his 18-7 record into first singles competition.

At the second spot will be John Anderson who's 14-4. Unfortunately, he appears to have lost the knack recently, dropping four straight after a 14-0 beginning.

Jeff Trecker (8-11) will go at third singles for Maine West.

Joe Thimm (10-7) and Jack Semler (10-6) will play first doubles for Maine West. The second doubles team will be Steve Niles (10-8) and Frank Lux (5-4).

It's no surprise that Deerfield and Highland Park are so strong. Each school has players that rank high in the Chicago District (CDTA), Western (WTA) and United States Lawn (USLTA) Tennis Associations.

(Western Association states are Illinois, Wisconsin, Ohio, Indiana and Michigan.)

The best of this whole group is Highland Park's Powell who's been beaten just once, by Bill James of Sterling in semis of the Arlington Invitational.

Powell (22-1) ranks first among 16-year olds in the WTA and CDTA Associations. He's tabbed second in Chicago-land among players 18 or younger. Powell is 14th ranked nationally by the USLTA.

His first singles counterpart from Deerfield will be Harrison Bowes, a sophomore who's the defending CSL champ at second singles.

Bowes is unbeaten in conference this spring, ranked ninth in the CDTA among "18's" and fourth in the five-state Western among "18's."

The pair has met once this spring. Powell besting Bowes, 6-7, and 6-2, in IHSA district finals won last week by the Little Giants.

Highland Park loses little at second and third singles. The middle slot belongs to Jeff Mandell, 14th in both the CDTA and WTA. Third spot goes to Jay Warren, 14th in the Chicago District.

Their top doubles player, at first with Stu Speyer, is junior Mike Barr. The Western group has Barr third in singles and second in doubles. He's ranked 34th nationally.

Deerfield's other top entrant will be Dano Noller at second singles. He's ranked 11th among "16's" by the WTA and 31st among "18's" by the CDTA.

Fremd, Palatine lead way in frosh-soph track test

Fremd romped in the off-beat events and Palatine sauced home first in conventional events during a two-day, frosh-soph track invitational this week at Maine West.

On Monday, Fremd's Vikings ran up 84½ points, 22 more than closest competitor Hersey. Then Wednesday, Palatine just barely outpointed the hosts, 48-43. The same nine teams competed on both days.

Monday's remaining team scores were Maine South 54½, Maine West 49½, Proviso West 46, Conant 25, Palatine 19, Prospect 15 and Niles North 7.

In the regular events, other team totals were Proviso West 32, Conant 31, Prospect 29, Hersey 24, Fremd 12, Maine South 10 and Niles North 9.

Wednesday's Herald area winners were as follows: Joe Farrell of Maine West in 120-high hurdles (17.2), Clark Rasmussen of Palatine in 880-run (2:07.7), Palatine in the 880-relay (1:44.6), Steve Lind of Conant in 440-dash (34.8) and Jim Wright of Prospect in 180-low hurdles (22.6).

Other Wednesday winners included Keith Mason of Prospect in 220-dash (24.9), Palatine in the mile relay (3:49.4), Joe Parsons of Maine West in long jump (19-1) and Ed Nowakowski of Hersey in shot put (45½, new record).

Final conventional event winners were Bob Trudeau of Hersey in discus (111-10), Dave Paape of Conant in pole vault (11-6, new record) and Ken Reid of Palatine in high jump (5-6).

Relay winners on Monday were Maine

West in the 880 (1:35.3, record), Hersey in 400-high hurdles (1:13), Fremd in the two-mile (8:25.4), middle distance medley (3:45.7, record) and mile (3:34.5) plus Hersey in 480-low hurdles (61.0) and Conant in the distance medley relay (11:05.8).

Monday's individual winners were Herb Nowak of Hersey in shot put (44-0½), John Sheputis of Fremd in high jump (5-10), Jim LiLenge of Hersey in long jump (20-5¾, record), Art Mraz of Maine West in sophomore 100-dash (10.7), Scott Unger of Maine West in sophomore 100-dash (10.7), Scott Unger of Maine West in freshman 100-dash (10.9) and Gray of Fremd in pole vault (12-8, record).

THE VOLVO 164E BRINGS YOU A SURPRISING NEW OPTION. THE SUN.

Volvo, long famous for its hard top, has finally cut a hole in it. So the sun is now available (for an extra charge) to those who worship it.

To do so, reach up and turn the sunroof's handle. It slides back on metal rails to let in over three square feet of sun.

A wind deflector keeps the sunroof from turning into a wind tunnel. And when the sun goes down our sunroof goes up so that it closes flush with the roof. Surprisingly enough, it's the only factory-installed option you pay extra for. Come in and see the Volvo 164E. Preferably before sundown.

COMPARING DIVISIONS

Dear Herald:

I'm jealous of the Cubs and I'm a fan of the White Sox.

I wish the White Sox were in the same division as the Cubs because it seems so much easier than the American League.

I think the White Sox, Oakland, Kansas City, California, Minnesota, and Texas make a much tougher division than Pittsburgh, Chicago, New York, Montreal, Philadelphia, and St. Louis. Only Pittsburgh and Chicago have any hitters in the Cubs' division.

I know Cub fans think they have a stronger league, but most people I talk to say the American League has gotten a lot stronger and that the division the White Sox are in has stronger teams. I still think the White Sox can win if Rich Gossage becomes a regular starting pitcher.

EASY SCHEDULE

Dear Fans Forum:

I enjoy reading your letters talking about the Cubs and the White Sox so I thought I'd throw this out in Fans Forum:

The Cubs play the easiest schedule in baseball from May 7 through May 23 so no matter what they do, don't get excited. They could build up a three or four-game lead against the palsies before they start playing somebody.

The schedule reads like this from May 7 on: three games with hapless San Diego, three with hapless Philadelphia, two with punchless New York, two with cellar-dwelling St. Louis, four more with Philadelphia, and then three with Mon-treil. When they played a decent team, like San Francisco, they lost six out of seven. Enough said.

So don't let their record fool you. And what's so great about the National League anyway? There was a time when they could brag about their teams but not anymore. The American League has more good teams down the line and with the designated hitter, has a much more interesting show.

East falls, 4-1;

Brosnan triumphs

Tim Brosnan was the lone winner for Maine East, taking the second singles match, as the Blue Demons lost their final varsity tennis duel, 4-1, to New Trier West on Tuesday.

Brosnan defeated S. Strause 1-6, 7-5 and 7-6. Teammates Jack Crouse and Dave Mozdren were defeated at first and third singles respectively.

Bill Jensen and Kent Silbert lost at first doubles for Maine East. Jon Cwaygel and Lee Anderson absorbed the same fate at second doubles.

The Blue Demons ended their dual meet season with two wins and 11 losses. All that remains is this weekend's Central Suburban League championships.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. UP1 —Jan Stenerud's 48-yard field goal for the Chiefs against the Vikings in the 1970 game is the all-time Super Bowl field goal record.

District track qualifying slated tonight at Prospect the qualifying time while Fremd's Tom Wistar and Schaumburg's Eric Porter have gone :10.1. Porter has been the most consistent sprinter. The top two likely might be above 10-flat and still qualify.

220-YARD DASH

State Qualifying — :22.6

Again the best time :22.3 was early in the season by Wistar, who was sidelined for some time with a severe muscle pull. And again, Porter is a good bet, having won the MSL 220 with :22.5. Also under 23 seconds have been Scott Dorsey of Elk Grove, Bob Chapman of Maine West, Jeff Kosmoski of Rolling Meadows and Bob Tucker of Maine East.

440-YARD DASH

State Qualifying — :51.0

Steve Drake of Wheeling has to be the favorite with the two best times in the area — :50.4 and :50.6 in his last two races. Others under 51 seconds have been Wistar, Dorsey and Scott Hutchings of Lake Park, who won the district last year in a blazing :49.2.

880-YARD RUN

State Qualifying — 1:58.0

Teams other than Palatine can breathe a sigh of relief because the Pirates' Scott Williams, who posted the best area time of the year Tuesday with 1:55.8, will not enter this event. He's being saved for the mile and two-mile. That makes Drake again a clear favorite with his 1:56.1 last week and 1:56.3 a few days before. Others with the best chance of placing are Chris Cooney of Hersey (1:57.8), Craig Klebe of Maine West, freshman Chuck Bell of Palatine and O'Neal of Antioch.

MILE RUN

State Qualifying — 4:20.0

Williams and Pat Moyer of Maine East have easily the best times to date, 4:20.1 and 4:21.1 respectively. Palatine's Paul Kearns ran 4:28 Tuesday and close behind have been Tom Holub of Arlington, Chuck Ruppenthal of Fremd and Damian Archbold of Elk Grove.

TWO-MILE RUN

State Qualifying — 9:45.0

This could be a real dogfight. Boys who have been between 9:29 and 9:32 include Williams, Schaumburg's Arnie Jackson, Gary Marshak of Maine East and Chip Barbour of Maine West. Likely, all five placers will qualify.

120-YARD HIGH HURDLES

State Qualifying — :15.0

Only Bill Klippert of Maine West has beaten the qualifying mark thus far with easily the area's best time, :14.5. The rest of the way it should be close among the Grenadier pair, Jensen and Busse, plus St. Vitor's Dave Jarzemyk and Hersey's Mark Kleiner.

160-YARD LOW HURDLES

State Qualifying — :20.4

Four boys have been below :20 and all have an excellent chance of qualifying. Far in front on the list is Jensen's :19.3, Klippert and Busse both have :19.8 and Palatine's Jan Fitzgerald :19.9. Jensen won last year with 20-flat.

SHOT PUT

State Qualifying — 52-0

It is almost certain that all five placers will qualify since seven boys, all from the Mid-Suburban League, have been well over 52 feet. Heading the list is Rolling Meadows' John Sloan with his giant 68-3, toss in the conference meet, tops in the state. Surpassing 57 have been Fremd's Jerry Finis (the most times) and Wheeling's Bill Chlebek. Fremd's Ken Vale has topped 55 and Bob Sloan, John's brother, 54.

DISCUS

State Qualifying — 150-0

Finis has been head and shoulders above the rest with his last two tosses being 167-7 and 163-7, best in the area in two years. Jim Burke of Forest View, Bob Racanelli of Maine East and Jim Grab of Palatine have topped 150 feet in an event that should be up for grabs after first.

HIGH JUMP

State Qualifying — 6-2

All spring, the best efforts have been 6-5 by St. Vitor's John McCabe and Maine East's Mike Smith. McCabe recently went 6-4 and 6-3 also. Mike Murphy of Palatine, Steve Balogh of Rolling Meadows and Bob Gaza of Maine East also have reached the qualifying mark.

LONG JUMP

State Qualifying — 21-4

Returning will be last year's District winner, Dave Kuntz of Hersey with 22-6 which was close to the all-time area record. He was edged by Elk Grove's Joe Lawson (21-3½) in the conference meet. No one has reached the state qualifying mark yet. Over 21 feet also have been Schaumburg's Bob Cummings, Forest View's Mike Jule, Hersey's John Andrews and Lake Zurich's Harrington.

POLE VAULT

State Qualifying — 13-0

Just recently, several boys have passed the qualifying mark. Best efforts were 13-6 by Hersey's Mark Conard and Wheeling's Bill Pickler. At 13-3 have been Dave Auge and Greg Morand of Arlington and Scott Clark and Doug Paape of Conant.

880-YARD RELAY

Schaumburg holds the best time of 1:32.8 by Bob Cummings, Bob Nomellini, Ed Martin and Eric Porter. But very close behind in times are Maine East, Palatine, Elk Grove and Hersey.

MILE RELAY

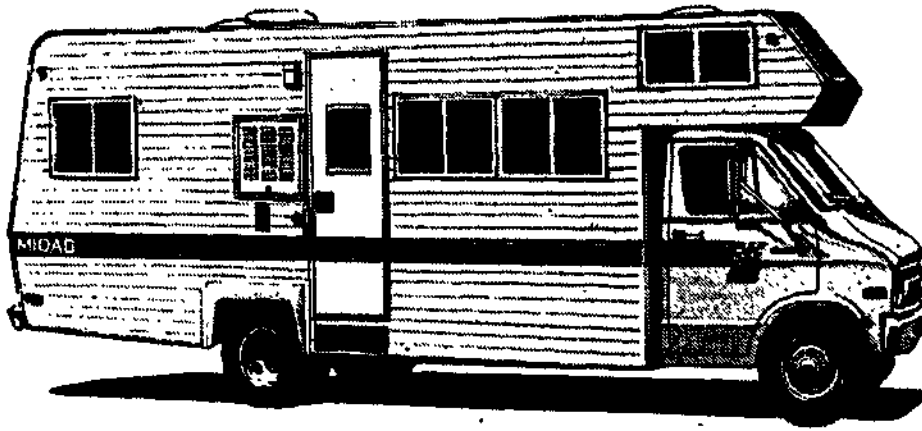

Arlington and Hersey both have 3:28.6 tops, in the area, and Palatine and Fremd ran 3:30.0 and 3:30.2 respectively last Tuesday. It figures to go to the wire.

Palatine soccer facts

Bill Hughes and Jim Kinsella, managers of Palatine Park District soccer, have announced the formation of two traveling teams — one for 10 and 11-year-old boys and a second for boys 12 through 15. They are currently scheduled to play the Green and White teams of the Chicago League in Palatine on Sunday, May 27 starting at 2 p.m., and the Linden Park Soccer Club of Hamilton, Ontario in Canada over the weekend of June 15.

An I House League soccer moved into its last weeks of Spring play, the Germans retained first place in both divisions by the skin of their teeth. Last Sunday's losses to the Golds means that they are sharing the lead position with the Gold in the Senior division and lead the Gold by only one point in the Junior.

SENIOR DIVISION

Blue 0, Red 0

The Blues, under coaches John Bahler and Nerro Balovich, and the Reds, under Dave Roberts and Jeff Montgomery, fought in a scoreless standstill. The Blue goal was defended by Tom Selter and the Red by Phil Roberts.

Blue 0, Red 0

Steve Notys made two spectacular goals — the first on his own corner kick and the second from about 45 yards out. The Golds handed the Green their first defeat of the season by keeping the ball most of the game. Coach John Kinsella gave special credit to forwards Charlie Marstand and Mickey Sollmeire for their fine play.

Sandy Sutherland scored the lone Green goal on a penalty kick.

Norsemen gain first golf win!

Maine North had to go outside the Central Suburban League, but the Norsemen finally have a varsity golf win.

Despite a huge 182 shot at the Park Ridge Country Club, the Norsemen edged out Elmwood Park by three strokes. Combined with a 182-175 loss to Maine South, North now owns a 1-14 record.

North's medalist during the split was sophomore Don Snelton who shot 41. Behind him were Jim Geishecker 45 plus two freshmen — Rick Jacobson 46 and Matt Osterholt 49.

Northwest names league officers

The Northwest Little League has announced a slate of nine officers who will oversee summer action beginning with a tripleheader on Saturday, May 26.

New officers are president Ray Braun, vice-president Tom Kohn, secretary Barbara Braun, treasurer Duane Bletz, chief umpire Sam Molano, chief scorekeeper Wade Clark, player agent Norb Toland, refreshment supervisor Peggy Florey and publicity agent Pat Svec.

Further information regarding the Northwest Little League can be obtained from Ms. Svec at 296-7492.

Warrior boosters meet this evening

The Maine West Boosters Club will hold its final meeting of the season at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in room L102 of the high school. Parents of all Maine West students are welcome to attend.

The election of 1973-74 officers will be held and plans for next year will be discussed. The first event of the new season will be a Fall Sports Spectacular. This will be a big project for the Boosters, and much parent support will be needed to make it successful. Anyone who would like to help should attend this meeting.

West concludes big net season

Maine West concluded its highly successful varsity tennis campaign Tuesday afternoon by bumping Maine South, 3-2. The Warriors of coach Roger King ended their dual meet season at 11-4.

Steve Wild and Jeff Trecker were first and third singles winners for the Warriors. Wild bettered George Mulopulos, 6-2 and 6-3. Trecker dismissed Jim Haase, 3-6, 6-3 and 6-4.

In the other singles match, West's John Anderson absorbed his fourth consecutive defeat, 6-4 and 6-4, to Bob Ellsworth.

Juniors Frank Lux and Steve Niles were second doubles winners for the Warriors. They defeated Bob Hildebrand and Gary Grandolph, 7-5, 3-6 and 6-1.

At first doubles, West's Joe Thimm and Jack Semler lost to Bob Lee and Doug Bergeson, 2-6, 6-4 and 6-3.

Durocher debut

NEW YORK, UPI —Leo Durocher made his major league debut at the age of 19 as a pinch-hitter for the New York Yankees against the Philadelphia Athletics in 1925. Durocher fanned in the 10-0 loss.

Cards, Vikings win net duels

Playing non-conference opponents, Arlington and Fremd registered decisive dual meet victories Wednesday.

ARLINGTON 5, OAK PARK 0

For the first time in eight years, the Oak Park tennis team lost all five of its points to an opponent. But Arlington isn't just any opponent, having managed a point the day before against an excellent Hinsdale Central team.

The Cardinals won their singles matches in straight sets — Jim Merkel over Mike Blankahine 6-2, 7-5; John Paczkowski over state qualifier Sam Golden 6-0, 6-0; and Rex Miller, playing singles after being a doubles man most of the year, handled Gerry Lynch 6-1, 6-1.

Craig VanGorp and Todd Reese had a good test prior to the Mid-Suburban League conference meet in going three sets with Tony Brooke and Bill Fowler — 2-6, 7-5, 6-4. Don Rodig and Dave Mack coasted to a 6-1, 6-4 victory over Kim Portney and Gerry Jacobs.

Arlington's frosh-soph team claimed a 3-2 victory behind Luke Weeg. The sophomore handled the top players on the lower level of both Hinsdale Central and Oak Park on successive days.

FREMD 4, ST. VIATOR 1

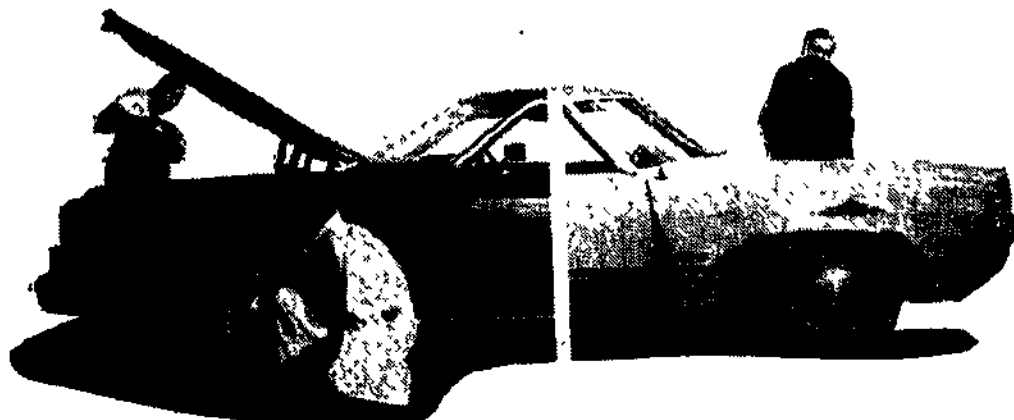

Only a freshman came between Fremd and a perfect score against visiting St. Viator.

The Vikings notched straight set wins at first and second singles on the efforts of Chris Laffey and Rich Courtney. Laffey stopped Tom Wenzel 7-5, 6-3 and Courtney got by Mike Revnes 6-4, 6-2.

Jeff Davenport pulled off the upset by beating Mike Lincoln 6-4, 1-6, 6-3.

Bob Norris and Mitch West beat Bruce Fischer and Russ Fliton 7-5, 6-2. Tom Jensen and Dan Sealey stopped Don Barnak and Jim Bernardini 6-2, 6-4.

The Fremd frosh-soph team posted a 3-2 win.

Bring your new car to us soon after you buy it, and we'll totally rustproof it. Inside the boxed-in areas of the body as well as underneath. (It takes nine patented spray tools to do a job like that.)

When we're done, we'll give you a 5-year/50,000-mile money-back guarantee against rust-through.

Or don't bring your new car to us. And expect to have the body start rusting to pieces from the inside out in a couple of years. Because no car is really rustproofed at the factory.

Real rustproofing has to be done after a car is welded and bolted together. It just can't be done on the assembly line.

Plenty of entertainment along Algonquin Road . . .

Black Fox's Sean Ryan

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Sean Ryan happens to listeners by accident.

His fame is spread by word of mouth. But more than likely, if you do run across him, you'll remember his name and return often to hear him sing and strum his guitar.

The contemporary folksinger, who is an assistant in the learning laboratory at Harper College, has only been sharing his ballads with the public during the last year and a half.

His following until then was mostly private, friends who rallied around whenever he offered to give impromptu living room concerts.

DEBUTING AT Butch McGuire's in Mount Prospect, Ryan in the last year has been playing intermittently at the Black Fox, a lounge in Rolling Meadows Holiday Inn that has mellowed into a listening den.

"Music is something everyone can share in," said Sean during a break one day between classes.

"There isn't a person around who hasn't liked a song."

Admitting to great admiration for such entertainers as Gordon Lightfoot, John Denver and Chicago's John Prine, Ryan believes that folk singing currently is gaining in popularity.

"People are again ready to sit down and listen. But they're tired of hearing about the bad things. . . they just want to feel good. At one point there was a lot of anti-war music. Have you noticed though? There are very few of those songs out now. People want to hear funny, happy songs. . . ones with nice words and pretty melodies."

Ryan, who is originally from County Cork, Ireland, moved to San Francisco in 1960. Two years later his family moved to the Chicago area.

"IN IRELAND I was a member of the pipe and drum band," said the Schaumburg resident in recounting his musical origin.

"I more or less stayed away from music then until I was 15 or 16. When the Beatles were a big thing, I hoodwinked my mother into buying me a bass guitar."

In the mid sixties Ryan formed the Shandells, a local four-piece combo that played mostly rock and Beatle tunes.

"I bought a six-string guitar when we split up in '68 and just learned to play it. . . sitting around the room kind of thing."

"I was really disappointed with the direction music was heading and since I had always liked folk music and single vocalists were returning, I picked up the acoustic guitar. It has been my favorite instrument anyhow."

RYAN, WHO has had no formal training in voice but laughs, "I was singing in the shower one day and decided it wasn't half bad," writes some of his own material.

"I like to write. I can feel music in everything. But my songs originate from my own personal experiences. Everything has to naturally come out. . . even though it may take two or three or even four months to complete a song."

"I wrote a lot of anti-war songs when my brother got drafted and sent to Vietnam. I was never really happy with them though, because other people had much better ways of expressing things than I could ever say."

"I don't do many of my own songs on stage," he continued, "at least not until the last set of an evening. All the diehards who stick around to the end ask me to do my own material."

RYAN IS leaving for Hawaii sometime this summer and it may be a long time before area residents have an opportunity to hear him again. . . unless they vacation in Oahu.

"I've learned to take one day at a time. Right now I want to play. It's essential with my music that I maintain close contact with people."

And that's just what Ryan will be doing on the island, playing in small supper clubs away from Waikiki and all the tourist confusion.

He doesn't know how long he'll stay. For one thing, the school year no longer has a bearing on him. He won't be returning to Harper in the fall.

"I'm a little disillusioned with teaching, I guess. I feel the lab is really essential to the students who need it. But the budget is tight and they've cut back our staff. I really couldn't survive here working only part-time," he said.

HAVING BEEN to Oahu a number of times before, Ryan continued, "I love the outdoors, the wide open spaces and the sea. I was born and raised by the sea and I've got to get back. Jobs are really hard to find anywhere. Teaching won't take me back. . . but the guitar will."

Yet the folksinger also admits that someday he eventually would like to return to education, work toward his master's degree in English and become a full-time college professor.

"I think I could make classes interesting," he said. "Music and English go so well together. It's a pity I can't do both."

SEAN RYAN will be featured at the Black Fox in the Holiday Inn at 3405 Algonquin Road Sunday and Monday and next week, May 27 and 28. He will return for two short engagements, June 5-9 and June 12-16.

FOLKSINGER SEAN RYAN has quite a following at the Black Fox Lounge in the Holiday Inn located in Rolling Meadows. A resident of Schaumburg, Ryan, who by day is a learning laboratory assistant at Harper College, believes that folk singing is growing in popularity. "People want to be happy again," he said.

Jazz, big name bands attract suburbanites

Sunday nights, entertainment seekers can enjoy an inexpensive supper at Fiddler's before stopping in the lounge downstairs to partake of dessert in the form of a 16-piece jazz orchestra.

The Frank Derrick Total Experience is the shortest route to downtown formal entertainment without the investment of gas and mileage.

Frank Derrick Jr., lead alto player and arranger for the group, has played with such jazz giants as Duke Ellington. His son, Frank Derrick III, is on drums.

Based in the Chicago area, the jazz band is cutting a record live this month at Fiddler's, according to co-owner Joe Levko, who added that the Frank Derrick Total Experience will continue to play 7-9 p.m. each Sunday for several more months.

He and his partner, Bob Allweiss, first opened Fiddler's downstairs lounge about six months ago. They proudly advertise entertainment seven nights a week.

Now through May 28, the Bob Perna Group featuring a six-piece band and female vocalist, is the current attraction Tuesdays through Saturdays. Opening May 29 for an extended engagement is the Stardust Green & Trio.

The owners' sons, Phil Levko and Allan Allweiss, are also into jazz and play with the Bill Pollack Trio that performs at Fiddler's on Monday evenings. Phil plays bass and Allan is on drums.

Fiddler's Restaurant and Lounge is located just south of the Algonquin and Busse intersection in Mount Prospect.

Big bands are also spotlighted on weekends at Lancer's Steak House located at Algonquin and Meacham roads in Schaumburg.

The large ballroom addition attracts suburban couples who in the past months have danced to such big names as Guy Lombardo, Glenn Miller, Norm Ladd and Dick Jurgens.

Opening in the ballroom tonight for three weekends through June 1 and 2, is Gay Clarkidge and his 10-piece band. Dancing begins each Friday and Saturday at 9 p.m. There is a $2 admission charge although persons eating dinner at the restaurant can dance for $1.

Upstairs in the piano lounge Emil Flaim continues to entertain guests nightly, Monday through Saturday.

A BANDS EYE VIEW reflects some of the entertainment offered along Algonquin Road. Each Sunday night Fiddler's is hosting a 16-piece jazz band, and on Friday and Saturday nights ballroom dancing is drawing patrons to the Lancer's Steak House. Who says suburbanites have to go downtown to enjoy big name entertainment?

THE CURRENT ATTRACTION in the Sheraton Inn Walden's Sole Mates Lounge is the Evans Brothers. They are Frank, Dale, Ron and Gary. The group begins to play at 7 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday and 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday. The lounge is located at 1723 Algonquin Road, Schaumburg.

The Evans Brothers

To the tune of light rock

In the beginning they played the "sleazy" night spots and cheaper bowling alleys. They often performed to the deaf ears of a barroom filled with drunks who needed only noise to drown out the frustrations of their day-to-day existences.

But the Evans Brothers — Frank, Gary, Dale and Ron — are now on their way. From backroom clubs the Chicago musicians have climbed to legitimate bookings at the Cow Palace and Pickwick House in Palatine, Union Hotel in Wheeling and the Marriott Motor Hotel's Windjammer Lounge.

Currently through June 9 they are playing at the Sheraton Inn Walden's Sole Mates Lounge located at 1723 Algonquin Road at Route 63.

WHEN THEY FIRST organized about three years ago, the four called themselves the New Salvation Band. The name was dropped at the suggestion of one nightclub manager who didn't feel customers "appreciated being reminded of any religious intolerance."

Today they answer to the Evans Brothers with Gary Evans on bass, Dale Evans on organ and Frank Joseph on drums. There's also Ron Evans who fills in several nights a week on guitar.

They play mostly rock, but control it so it doesn't smack of acid or the psychedelic scene. It's the type of sound that occasionally transcends to blues or jazz.

"Maturity has a lot to do with the sound," said Joseph. "Gary and I played the jazz spots back in the early to mid-sixties."

"A lot of kids get into this real hard rock with all the noise and vibrations. . . but there's no control, no sense of feeling."

"OUR STUFF IS not all that funky," added Gary. "It's like a jazz rock. It's clean. . . white jazz with a rock beat."

But having a good sound and making good do not always coincide.

Until last year the Evans Brothers worked from week to week, picking up whatever odd jobs they could find.

Complicating matters was trying to match the kind of music with the type of lounge.

"We'd play at a lot of places and do a bang-up job," continued Joseph. "But at the end of the week the manager would come up and say, 'Gee you guys are good, but you're just not right for this place.'"

"Preferably you aim at getting about six months' advance booking," said Gary. "You like to get enough places lined up so you know you'll be working awhile. But on the other hand, you don't want to get booked too far in advance in case something does come up."

RIGHT NOW THE future looks pretty bright for the combo. Not only are they receiving good bookings, but they are, for the most part, also playing the type of music they like.

"We like to consider ourselves entertainers," said Gary. "If we had our way the audience wouldn't stand up and dance, but just sit and listen."

Joseph at 38 is the oldest of the group and appointed leader. He knows from experience what it takes to put on a good show and is the chief MC for the weekend "ding-a-ling" comedy routines used between numbers.

"IT TOOK A long time, but we're finally getting things together. There are a lot of intangible things that make a band a success. There's maturity and stage presence and professionalism," said Joseph.

"For a while there I was hung up thinking here I am, 38 and putting on with all the corny noises for laughs. I was really wondering where I was going musically."

"But hell, if this is what we do best. . . why not do it?"

Collecting

with Grace Carolyn

If it looks metallic but is actually china, it is probably "luster" such as that shown in the picture above. Luster glaze was made with real ore pigments or salts of platinum, gold or copper. Gold pigment made pink or purplish color glaze.

Believed to be the invention of the Persians as early as the Ninth Century, lusterware was brought to Spain by the Moors, and thus began its European history. The spotted or mottled wares which bear such high prices at shops are usually English, popular in the early 19th Century. Some have pictures or long mottoes in tribute to the agrarian life or may depict naval heroes or exotic Moorish scenes.

PINK LUSTER tea sets were highly prized by Victorian ladies throughout the 19th Century. Often these were decorated with handpainted strawberries or roses in naturalistic style. Tea sets and "fancy" china were generally of porcelain, but more utilitarian wares were of earthenware.

The 1900 pink luster mustache cup shown above is of porcelain, decorated with gilt paint. It was a gift from my husband on our 10th wedding anniversary. My friends were a bit surprised when they asked what I received for the anniversary and I told them. Probably because neither my husband nor I have a mustache.

The little shoe is of silver luster, also of 1900 vintage, but the mug and pitcher are somewhat older, about 1870, and are of copper luster. Both have blue banded decorations.

Most lusterware seen in shops is English, for Josiah Wedgwood started experimenting with the metallic china in the late 1700s, and by the early 1800s potters throughout the Staffordshire District were making lusterware. Silver luster, achieved by the application of a pigment made from platinum, was made as a less costly imitation of real silver pieces. Sugar bowls, teapots, creamers and the like were solidly covered with luster. When found today, they are likely to be darkened with age.

COPPER LUSTER is being reproduced, but the new pieces usually have the maker's name on the bottom, which the old do not. In addition, the new pitchers will have a very narrow, not deep nor indented "foot" or pedestal. In addition, the new wares are rather heavier and brighter than the old.

I realize that the comparatives "heavier" and "brighter" are of little use unless the actual examples are before the eyes, but you may examine old pieces in antique shops and compare them with new ones found in department or gift stores.

A wise thing to do is to have a guarantee from the antique dealer, with a written promise of "money back" if the piece is discovered to be a reproduced item. Some dealers get fooled, too.

Questions of general interest will be answered through the column, and all will receive a personal reply. Please enclose self addressed, stamped envelope or telephone number.

Many Americans wouldn't dream of traveling abroad without taking Myra Waldo along in book form. Twombly's thesis is that Frank Lloyd Wright's turbulent personal life helped shape his work as an architect and it's an interesting point. This is a solidly — perhaps too solidly — researched exploration into the life of a giant of modern architecture.

What Mike Landress made was money — counterfeit. This truth is more exciting than fiction tale tells how a legitimate printer turns to making bogus bucks and learns to enjoy it — and how he gets caught and goes straight.

Ski chalet, home of new theater

A ski chalet in Cary, Ill., will be the home of the new Fox Trails Theatre Company, a resident summer theater that will stage provocative contemporary plays in a 12-week season from June 20 through Sept. 9. June Pyskacek of Barrington will direct the new company.

Miss Pyskacek, who was the founder of the Kingston Mines Theatre on Lincoln Avenue and was one of the original directors of the Chicago City Players, is well known for her experimental theatre and Off-Broadway productions in Chicago. She has also directed in New York and has had a long association with the theater departments of Goodman Theatre and Columbia College.

THE OPENING production of the Fox Trails Theatre Company will be the mid-west premiere of Harold Pinter's early comedies, "Night School" and "Revue Sketches." The Pinter plays will run for four weeks (June 20-July 15) to be followed by a new American drama "Rosebloom" by Harvey Perr (July 16-Aug. 12).

An original production, a comic act with music developed by the company called "The Influence Show," will close the season (August 15-Sept. 9).

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

Bobby Russell is a master at putting soap operas to music. Listen to the dripping pathos of "Honey" or even "Little Green Apples."

Now he has another hit song, "The Night the Lights Went Out in Georgia," sung by Vicki Lawrence who is also his wife. It is a soapy epic of murderous melodrama and miscarried justice that really pales when compared musically with epics of the past such as "Ode to Billie Joe."

Miss Lawrence, who plays Carol Burnett's kid sister in the television series, can sing — her three years with the Young Americans group proved that —

Vicki Lawrence

Dream." In all, the music reminds me a lot of Crosby, Stills and Nash's early work together as a group. Deheny need not be ashamed by the comparison. This is a highly recommended album.

Mac Davis and Anne Murray, dissimilar as they are, have recently accomplished something similar. Both have put out albums that I would recommend to their most devoted fans.

"Mac Davis" (Columbia KC-32206) is okay as a bland collection of simple melodies and predictable sound, but if you are not already "hooked on" him, this won't do it. He wrote most of the easily forgettable tunes.

Miss Murray fares a little better in "Danny's Song" (Capitol ST-11173), particularly because one of the sides was recorded live in Ottawa.

YET IF you do not already appreciate her singing, you probably won't think much of the album. Indeed, one has to listen hard to get rid of the perfunctory, like "Killing Me Softly with His Song," to get to the good, like Bruce Cockburn's "One Day I Walk" and "Put Your Hand in the Hand." But the rest is really ho-hum and disappointing.

but the choice of songs on her first album, named after the single (Bell-1120) helps hide the fact.

THE OCCASIONAL good moments, such as in "Sensual Man," are far outweighed by the strained excesses of the likes of "Little Green Apples." For future albums, more attention should be paid to what she sings. Snuff Garrett (Sonny and Cher) produced the album.

In contrast, an outstanding debut album is "Ned Doheny" (Asylum SD-5089). The 25-year-old Doheny has played guitar for saxophonist Charles Lloyd and the Dave Mason-Cass Elliot duo. In this album, he has put together a well polished collection of 10 original songs.

The voice is pleasing, the music well played and the songs have a depth of feeling to them. For sure, the main emphasis is on soft rock, but there are very discernable traces of jazz and some of classical influences.

THE BEST songs are "On and On" (with Graham Nash doing harmony vocals), a soft and pleasing "Lasham-beaux" and a slightly funky "I Can "Re-evaluation: The Impulse Years" is a new series of jazz album reissues that contains some fine, classic material. All are two-record sets.

"Freddie Hubbard" (Impulse AS-9237-2) is from the 1962-63 period when the trumpeter from Indianapolis played with large studio bands. Much of the material is original. Other selections are from Oliver Nelson and Duke Ellington.

"Sonny Rollins" (AS-9236-2) features eight cuts from 1965-66. The tenor saxophonist's avant-garde playing is heard on the likes of "Blessing in Disguise" and "Alfie's Theme." Generally small to medium sized combos back him.

"McCoy Tyner" (AS-9235-2) includes the pianist's work from 1962-65. He is known for his assimilation of John Coltrane's innovations into piano. Coltrane plays on four of the songs.

"Charles Mingus" (AS-9234-2) is all taken from 1963 and includes his extended work, "The Black Saint and the Sinner Lady." His influences, heard throughout, ranged from Ellington to Debussy, from Ravel to Tatum. Mingus played bass and piano.

A Paddock review

'Rashomon' done superbly

by GENIE CAMPBELL

There is nothing "community theaterish" about Village Theatre's rendition of the intricate Japanese drama, "Rashomon." It's first rate professional theater and I highly recommend it to suburban audiences.

Tom Ventris, who merits acknowledgment for accepting the challenging directorship, is even more worthy of praise for turning out such a highly successful production. His job was made easier by a very dedicated, inventive stage crew and talented cast.

One of the drawing points to VT's production is that "Rashomon" is not the usual community theater offering. An excellent choice, it requires depth and aptitude on the part of the actors and is a play with which audiences in this area have not already been saturated. For many, it is something altogether new.

THOUGH THE drama takes place in Kyoto, Japan, about a thousand years ago, the enacted idiosyncrasies and indiscretions of the human mind are as familiar and relevant as if they had just happened yesterday.

The entire focus of the play is upon truth, something that has been continually distorted and abused since man was created.

"Rashomon" is a kind of courtroom drama. A rape is committed and though the characters and setting remain the same, the actual story immensely differs according to who is telling it.

We are first led to believe that the poor wife is an innocent victim who watches her husband die by the sword of the bandit. Or was she as her husband recounts . . . all too ready to run off with the bandit? An innocent bystander has an even different version to relate.

THE PLAY has more substance than serving as a simple Perry Mason mystery. The sins of human nature are laid bare, but not without the final subtle insinuation that hope and new life win over lies and deception.

Inspiring performances are given by Hank deGroh who plays the bandit and Kathleen Ramaker, the wife. Both characters are most convincing and powerful.

deGroh captivates the audience with the assured brute force of the bandit's personality. One might despise him as a person but at the same time respect his animal force.

THE STRENGTH of Kathleen Ramaker's performance, on the other hand, lies with her ability to display the gamut of emotions. She is the rejected, long suffering wife of a man who rejects her for something over which she has absolutely no control.

When her husband describes her, she is devious and pretentious. The bandit thinks her simpering. Kathleen is able to project all of these traits. Steve Smith as the priest, Arnold Silver as the woodcutter, and Dave Dove as the wigmaker, introduce the plot and tie together all the missing pieces. And Gene Kaczor is good as the husband. I can still recall the chilling sneers he aims at his wife.

Other members of the cast include Ledvinia Jessup, Doris Silver and Jack Behl.

Although I do not feel the cast could be improved upon, neither could the set be more authentic.

TOM VENTRIS called for a simulated rain forest. Dave Dove designed him one, complete with precipitation. The threesome of Roger Krupa, technical director, Barbara McKee, stage manager, and Ed Herman, lighting, expertly coordinate the scene changes. Costume design is by Ann Kennelly.

The only one who "acted up" was Mid-night Bubbles of Inverwood Horse Farm in Barrington, who perhaps because he didn't think his walk-on part big enough, made sure everyone would remember him by leaving something behind.

But it never hurts to laugh at the unexpected and maybe a few chuckles is all Bubbles was after. He will have the opportunity to repeat his performance when "Rashomon" is again staged tonight and tomorrow evening at Hersey High School in Arlington Heights. Curtain is 8:30.

What is the economic loss from digestive diseases in the United States? The National Health Education Committee says it was $8 billion yearly, as of 1963. The figure has mounted substantially since then.

How many doctors specialize in gastroenterology — a specialty devoted to digestive disorders? For every 100,000 Americans there is one physician specially concerned with digestive diseases. The National Health Education Committee says so.

Among doctors treating digestive disorders, fewer than 1,000 have been certified as of 1966 as specialists in digestive ailments. The rest of the doctors treating digestive problems include general practitioners, radiologists and even some doctors who are hospital administrators.

Symphony Orchestra to play

The Northwest Symphony Orchestra with Perry Crafton conducting, will hold its fourth and final concert of the 1972-73 season next Sunday, May 27, at 3:30 p.m., at the Maine South High School Auditorium, 1111 S. Dee Road, Park Ridge.

Crafton and the orchestra will open the program with George Bizet's "L'Arlésienne" Suite No. 1, a dramatic piece written in an operatic style reminiscent of his beloved opera "Carmen" and containing four movements, the second of which features a flute duet played by Diane Horban of Glenview and Sarah Birkhead of Rogers Park.

Following the Bizet work, Thomas Kuenster will perform the Greg Piano Concerto in A minor, a romantic composition with a particularly song-like second movement. Kuenster is from Crystal Lake and is presently a freshman at the Chicago Conservatory College where he has studied with Helen Engler for the past four years. He was a winner of the Oak Park Civic Symphony concerto contest and, as such, appeared as a soloist with that orchestra. He was also a medal winner for the Junior Contest at the Chicago Conservatory two years ago and winner of the Chicago Conservatory's Commencement Concerto Contest last year.

THE CONCERT will conclude with a rendition of Anton Dvorak's "New World" Symphony, a work inspired by a sojourn in Iowa, and written in four movements, the first and last of which are in the classical form with much rhythmic verve and impulse. The Adagio movement is familiarly known as "Going Home" and the Scherzo movement is similar to one of the Slavonic Dances.

Tickets may be purchased at the box office prior to the performance or by contacting Mrs. Elizabeth Brown at 823-2293. Children under 12 will be admitted free if accompanied by an adult, and Golden Agers will be admitted for $1.50 upon presentation of their membership cards.

Natural look

Even if you like the natural look, some sort of foundation should be used. A clean scrubbed face won't stay that way very long if the pores are left unprotected. If you shun all makeups, including a light foundation, a thin coat of moisturizer will still protect the skin.

Plays to alternate weekly at Country Club Theatre

by GENIE CAMPBELL

COUNTRY CLUB THEATRE in Mount Prospect recently announced its spring and summer offering of plays.

Beginning this week through Sept. 30, plays will alternate each week, changing on Wednesdays.

Under the direction of ARNOLD GIE-DRATIS, the first production is "TAN-GO" by Slawomir Mrozek. The comedy drama that is having its midwest premiere at Country Club is not recommended as entertainment for children.

The comedy hit "LUV" opens Wednesday for the first time of its summer run. Then on May 29, Moller's "IMAGINARY INVALID" will premiere. This 16th Century classic farce is being produced for the entire family.

A complete summer schedule for all three productions is available through the theater, 239-5400.

NICK NOBLE is a natural showman and he is currently turning dinner at the TOP OF THE TOWERS penthouse restaurant into a comfortable, very enjoyable experience.

The vocalist knows how to please an audience. His informal quips between numbers make everyone feel right at home.

But most of all, Noble knows how to sing. He chooses numbers that haven't been copied in almost every nightclub spot.

Yet even his most contemporary choices are beautifully arranged to express both originality and talent.

Noble sings a little country western. He does his old hit, "Faith, Hope and Charity," and then knocks out some heavier ones like "Stay with Me" from the motion picture "The Cardinal" and "My Way" which he dedicates to the men in the audience.

But there's also one for the ladies... "I Am Woman" (Just how many men would consent to doing that one?) and one appealing to just about everyone, "My Kind of Town."

Nick Noble will be at the Top of the Towers in the Arlington Park Towers Hotel for a three-week engagement through June 3. It's a great show to catch.

Sunday, RUNYON'S, a singles pub located at Northwest Highway and Hicks Road in Palatine, is hosting its first annual spring picnic beginning at noon.

Softball and volleyball games will be played all afternoon and a rock band will be providing the music under a circus big top.

But that's not all. Special guests have

Name 'Cat' Cast

The cast for "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," a Tennessee Williams drama which is the fifth and final major production of Schaumburg Festival Theatre's current season, was recently announced by Lorraine Swiatek of Palatine, assistant to the director.

Performing the role of Maggie will be Betty DeGroh of Arlington Heights. She has directed several productions for Village Theatre and has appeared on stage in such plays as "A Streetcar Named Desire," "Hedda Gabler," "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie" and "Here Lies Jeremy Troy."

Bob Fennell of Streamwood will play opposite Betty as Brick. Fennell has performed on television, appeared in the movies "Torn Curtain" and "What Did You Do in the War, Daddy?" and has had stage roles in "The Crucible," "Harvey" and "Lilom."

CAST AS BIG DADDY is John Cain of Arlington Heights who made his acting debut in Festival Theatre's production of "Rumpelstiltskin." He is a writer of short stories, song lyrics, plays and poetry.

Sonja Loraas of Schaumburg has been cast as Big Mama. She is the current president and resident director of SFT and has locally acted in "Period of Adjustment," "The Night of the Iguana" and "Macbeth."

Playing the other two prominent members of Big Daddy's household are Tom Gulczynski of Hoffman Estates as Gooper and Sandy Reimann of Schaumburg as Mae.

Tom also made his acting debut in "Rumpelstiltskin" and Sandy has appeared locally in "A Christmas Carol," "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "A Thurbur Carnival."

OTHER MEMBERS of the cast include Dan Carrigan of Streamwood as Rev. Toker, Bill Jackson of Schaumburg as Dr. Baugh, Rita DeMarco of Schaumburg as Sooky, Susan Ahlert of Schaumburg as Trixie, Colleen Kelly of Hoffman Estates as Dixie, Mike Kelly of Hoffman Estates as Sonny, David Sherwood of Schaumburg as Buster, and Diana Sherwood of Schaumburg as Polly.

"Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" is being staged June 8, 9, 10, 15, 16, and 17 in the Schaumburg Township Library Theatre, 32 W. Library Lane. Tickets, 882-1894.

AN EXASPERATED Nurse Ratched tries to keep her mental ward patients from watching an imaginary World Series baseball game after she has turned off the television set. They continue to pretend anyhow. The scene is from "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" now playing for an extended run at the 11th Street Theatre. The Dale Wasserman play is performed every evening except Monday and Tuesday. Producer of the celebrated drama is Norman Rice of Palatine.

The Left Bank is located at 34 N. Brockway.

Young Footlighter crew hard at work backstage

The Des Plaines Footlighters are now in rehearsal for "The Princess and the Swineherd" being staged June 1-3.

Over 20 students will be appearing on the Rand Park stage and just as many will be working backstage, on makeup, scenery, lighting, sound and other jobs essential to a successful production. Most of the technical "chiefs" for this show have appeared on stage sometime in their Footlighter careers.

Assistant to the director, Betsy Forkins, a freshman at Maine West High School, just completed the role of Anne Sullivan in the Footlighters' last show, "The Miracle Worker."

MAINE WEST freshman Rollyn Meyers Jr., stage manager, first appeared with the Footlighters as Prince Eric in "Rapunzel." He was assistant to the director for "The Red Shoes" and the villainous Munroe Murgatroyd in "Dirty Work at the Crossroads."

Set designer Matthew Miodoch has worked on every show since "Rapunzel" when he was in charge of lighting. And for the Footlighters' last show, "The Miracle Worker," he held down two jobs. He worked the lights and also appeared on stage as the doctor. Matt is a Maine West sophomore.

Megan Peterson who is designing the wardrobe for "The Princess and the Swineherd," is a newcomer to Footlighters. In the eighth grade at Algonquin Junior High, she has been attending Saturday morning drama workshops held at Rand Park. Her most recent stage performance and also her Footlighter premier was as Kate Keller in "The Miracle Worker."

MAKEUP CHAIRMAN Darice Quintet began her Footlighter career as stage manager for "Rapunzel." She was also a member of the "Red Shoes" dance chorus and in "Dirty Work at the Crossroads" she played the sweet, gentle Widow Lovelace. In the eighth grade at St. Emily's, she was last seen as Aunt Ev in "The Miracle Worker."

Vanessa Dunavant, who is properties co-chairman and in the eighth grade at Algonquin, has not been seen too much on stage although she has been as busy as any Footlighter. Her last appearance was in "The Red Shoes" as a dance chorus member.

Further information about "The Princess and the Swineherd" is available through 296-6106. Resident director of the Footlighters is Ken L. Johnson.

"Oscar" Notes

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The Motion Picture Academy's nine-pound, 14-inch tall "Oscar" statuette is made of a combination of metals and coated in 10-karat gold.

They were first presented in May, 1929, to Emil Jannings and Janet Gaynor, and to the film "Wings," a silent film. The next year, 1930, a "talkie" won the title.

Until 1968 the only female player to win two Academy Award "Oscars" was Luise Rainer, the star of "The Good Earth," in 1930.

Screen Gems reports that 116 program pilots were developed during the past year by various studios as possible network series for the 1973-74 season, and that only 18 made the grade. Screen Gems says it scored five out of 10, in addition to which its "The Partridge Family" and "Temperatures Rising" will be back for their fourth and second seasons, respectively.

BUILDING SUPPLY STATION

It's nest building time again! Lend your friendly neighborhood birds a helping hand with this project. You'll need a coat hanger, a piece of cardboard, and some of the following: colored thread, string, pieces of yarn, thin strips of paper or aluminum foil, ribbon, thin strips of cloth, rubber bands, raffia, rick rack, excelsior, tiny twigs, and feathers.

Cut the cardboard so it is the same width as the bottom wire on the coat hanger. Bend the cardboard over this wire like a roof. Tie the two sides together with string. Poke small holes in both sides of the cardboard beneath the wire. In each hole, stick a piece of nest-building material.

Hang your supply station from a tree or post in your back yard. Your neighbors may wonder about it, but the birds will appreciate the help. They'll also supplement your supplies with leaves, moss, dried grass and weeds, mud, and vines.

Watch them from your window. What birds come for materials? Which materials do the different birds take? Where do they take them to build their nests? Maybe later this spring you'll see baby birds enjoying this new nest, too.

Cast of Guild Players sacrifices for stage

No one would dare call Louise Parenti of Roselle a scatterbrain. She is neither disorganized nor frenetic. Most of all, no one has ever heard her utter a "naughty" word.

But people will say that Teresa Phillips is all the things that Louise Parenti is not. That is why Louise is working very hard to transform herself into Teresa Phillips, the rambunctious wife in Alan Ackbourn's madcap comedy, "How the Other Half Loves."

The play is being staged by the Guild Players of Hoffman Estates, June 8, 9, 15 and 16, in the Vogeel Barn, 150 W. Higgins Road.

MRS. PARENTI admits she practices her lines by clenching her teeth and imagining that she is being pulled by wild horses running in opposite directions.

"This is the only way I can build up the tension that I feel in Teresa Phillips — and I think she is a little crazy too," she added.

Mrs. Parenti's co-star in "Loves" is Bill Schumacher of Hoffman Estates who finds that he must make some sacrifices for his role.

"When a guy must appear on stage with his midriff showing, he is obliged to go on a diet," said Schumacher.

In his 13 years with the Players, Schumacher has played doctors, murderers and old men.

"But this is too much," he said. "I never thought I would have to give up my midnight snack for the stage."

If Hoffman Estates neighbors are seeing Bob Moriarty jogging around the block — it's for real. Moriarty was jogging even before he won the role of company boss Frank Foster in the comedy.

SOMEBODY in Frank's department is having marital difficulties. He decides to patch things up so that both his department and the marriage will again run smoothly. Nothing goes according to plan, however, and Foster's good intentions create a fiasco in "How the Other Half Loves."

Iris Tompkins of Lombard plays Frank's wife, Fiona. She is the ever youthful, sophisticated boss' wife who manages to set off the "fireworks."

Harding Stephens plays the innocent William Detweiler whose only ambition is to make good in the company and turn his painfully shy wife into a perfect hostess.

He is dragged into the triangle and before he manages to collect his sanity, both he and his shy wife undergo complete personality changes. Denise Lemcke of Hoffman Estates plays Mary Detweiler.

TICKET information is available through Louise Parenti, 529-9262.

A honeymoon in Florida

A two-week honeymoon in Naples, Fla., followed the nuptials of a Palatine couple, Linnea Sue Moravec and Frank Howard Berthlaume. They were married April 21 in Christ Lutheran Church, and after a reception at Casa Royale in Des Plaines they left for the sunshine state.

Both are graduates of Fremd High School, Linnea in the class of '72 and Frank in '70.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Moravec Jr., 519 W. Kenilworth Ave., and the groom the son of Mrs. Henry Berthlaume of 761 W. Hillcrest Rd.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Berthlaume

FOR THE afternoon, candlelight service, Linnea wore a white silk organza gown with french lace trimming the high neck, the Empire bodice and A-line skirt. Over it she wore a lace trimmed floor-length veil flowing from a lace band and carried a cascade bouquet of white orchids surrounded by white carnations and roses.

Her sister Ellie was maid of honor, appearing in a white and pale orchid chiffon gown and carrying orchid tinted gladiolus, orchid carnations and white daisies. The bodice of her dress was in white chiffon with orchid trim; the skirt was in matching orchid chiffon. She also wore a large straw orchid hat.

There were three bridesmaids in the procession, all gowned in white and dark orchid chiffon dresses to match the maid of honor's and wearing orchid picture hats. Their flowers were tinted in a dark shade to match their gowns.

Henry Berthlaume was his brother's best man and three other Berthlaume brothers, Kenneth, Gene and Wayne, served as ushers for the double ring rites.

Ruth Huey, the soloist, had also been the vocalist at the wedding of Linnea's parents.

After their honeymoon, the bridal couple settled in an apartment in Prospect Heights. Linnea works for Douglas Savings & Loan in Arlington Heights and Frank for Schuepfer Co., Des Plaines.

The Home Line by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I used a chlorine bleach solution to remove stains from a permanent press luncheon cloth and the whole area turned yellow. Any solution? — Mrs. Edward Hirschbrunner.

Because the cloth turned yellow, I assume it was a white cloth and the following treatment might work: Rinse the cloth thoroughly in water; then soak for 30 minutes or longer in a solution containing one teaspoonful of sodium thiosulfate to each quart of water. The hotter the water the better, if the fabric can take it. Then rinse thoroughly.

If this doesn't work, you can try a color remover, following instructions explicitly. One of our correspondents reported a similar yellowing and, with nothing to lose, added the article to the wash each time there was no chlorine bleach in it. The garment finally turned white.

Dear Dorothy: Intending to use a piece of meat that was in the freezer, I transferred it to the refrigerator just before going to bed. Next day that hunk of meat was as solid as before. I worried out loud to a neighbor and she asked if the meat was still wrapped in the freezer wrappings. It was.

She told me to unwrap it, and put it on a tray in front of a slightly open window. It took several hours but the meat was thawed in time to use in a special dish for dinner. — Janice Horriggan.

I've never heard of this trick — thank you very much.

Dear Dorothy: The toilet bowl cleaner that I use does a great job of removing water stains from glass vases. — Carolyn Gottschalk.

This is powerful stuff and calls for great care. I used it once and covered my hands with rubber gloves but still got a little on the water faucet. The stain almost didn't come off.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Palatine Juniors spread their $$$ all over town

The Junior Woman's Club of Palatine spread its money all over town this spring in supporting various organizations, schools and community projects. A total of $4100 was recently disbursed from the year's ways and means events.

"This represents the most financially successful club year ever," claims Mrs. Richard Komarewicz, head of the ways and means committee.

Recommendations for the donations were made by the allocations committee whose chairman is Mrs. Raymond Kivi.

The Bridge, a center operated by the Palatine Township youth committee, was given $250 for the purchase of a new duplicating machine.

NORTHWEST MENTAL Health Clinic received $200 for an 8mm movie projector; Countryside School for the Retarded was given $150 for two phonographs with microphones; Immanuel Lutheran School will use a $50 gift for its resource center.

St. Thomas of Villanova School received $50 for audio-visual equipment; St. Theresa School is purchasing a mud rug with its $50 donation.

A gift of $100 went to Palatine Public Library to buy accessories for a movie projector and the same amount to Palatine Leisure Club to sponsor bus trips.

SCHOOL DIST. 15 will use $500 to purchase a Borg-Warner system 80 teaching machine for individual study. Another $500 went to the local Firemen's Memorial Fund toward outfitting the paramedic ambulance and $500 to Buehler YMCA for women's and girl's locker equipment.

St. Theresa's received $200 to help operate its day care center, the VMA cancer testing clinic was given $100 for needed equipment. The Junior Woman's Club was instrumental in organizing this clinic.

As in the past, the Juniors provide scholarships for area students through local schools. Fremd High School and Palatine High each received $500 for scholarships; Harper College will distribute $350 to area students.

Investigation into Identity will begin June 5 at Harper

Women of all ages who are puzzled about the roles they are asked to play in today's fast moving society will have an opportunity to examine their lives and innermost selves at a seminar course in "Investigation Into Identity" at Harper College in Palatine.

Classes will be held Tuesday and Thursday mornings, June 5 through June 28, from 9 to 11:45. Tuition is $21 for district residents ($52.25 for out-of-district residents), and babysitting services are available for small children at a nominal fee.

"Investigation Into Identity" is not a far out women's lib program, and it is not geared to women with deep emotional problems. Its aim is to help the individual understand herself so she can find the answer to her own personal needs through self-awareness, self-understanding and self-identity. Optional testing is available to participants at a fee of $20.

"INVESTIGATION INTO IDENTITY" begins with the assumption that today's women have many reasons to be confused. The concept of women is rapidly changing in today's world. In the home, too, a woman's role changes as she moves from "diaper changer extraordinaire" to chauffeur, to financial manager, teenager counselor and dog trainer. A woman's role also changes as her children mature and her husband advances.

Today's woman is asked to lead several lives during her life span. It can become increasingly difficult for her not to lose contact with her real self — the person she is beneath the roles she is asked to play. Through guest speakers and small group discussions, "Investigation Into Identity" will help each participant examine her life and herself to find who she is beyond the roles she is asked to play by society.

Registration is in Room A213 of the College Center Building on the Harper campus at Algonquin and Roselle roads.

Further information may be obtained by calling 359-4200, extension 233. Harper's new phone number, after May 20, is 397-3000.

Natural dyes, weed control workshops at Botanic Gardens

Workshops on "Plant Dyes and Natural Dyeing" and on "Weed Control" will be offered Tuesday and Thursday at the Botanic Garden of the Chicago Horticultural Society, Edens Expressway, between Dundee and Lake/Cook Roads.

Dr. Michael Healy, instructor at Lake County College, will present a lecture on weed control Thursday at 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Dr. Healy will discuss control by cultivating practices, mulches and chemicals. The fee is $3.

Plant your favorite colors for indoor-outdoor beauty

The next time you buy garden seeds, take a close look at the display of flower seed packets. The arrangement will be more or less alphabetical by kinds, probably starting with African daisy or alysum and ending with zinnias. Within each kind you may find several varieties, and most varieties will offer packets of separate colors as well as a mixture of colors.

The range of colors in most flowers in their wild state is quite limited, zinnia elegans, for example, the parent of many doubleflowered zinnias, occurs mostly in dull red and gold shades in its native Southwestern and Mexican habitat.

The dozens of delightful shades and flower forms of today's garden zinnias have grown out of the patient, painstaking work of generations of seedmen, first in Europe, then later in the United States.

The new flower colors are developed one by one. Why, then, turn around and mix them for sale in a "mixed colors" packet? It's because some gardeners clearly prefer color mixtures. Seedmen are observers of people as well as plants and they check regularly on the buying habits of gardeners.

Beginning gardeners buy many packets of mixed color flowers, perhaps because they don't feel confident of matching a selection of separate colors into a harmonious color scheme. Undoubtedly, many young mothers choose mixed color flowers for the enjoyment of their children. There are those beautiful free spirits who just want a big splash of color, any old color, to brighten their lives.

Probably the largest group of purchasers is made up of gardeners who want lots of flowers for cutting and who want to be able to pick and choose colors from one flower bed. Seedmen are convinced of this because the increasing demand for king-sized packets of mixed color seeds that can plant beds of up to 300 square feet in area.

The homeowners who plant separate colors of flowers are not necessarily more sophisticated gardeners than the fans of mixed colors. But they are generally more sensitive to the effect of colors, not only in gardens, but in home interiors and in their choice of clothing and accessories. Colors affect many of these people strongly, especially when they see jumbled up mixtures of colors.

Certain color-conscious gardeners, mostly women, exhibit a decided preference for soft, muted colors. They will go to great pains to select just the right shade of lavender stock, for example, to combine with a pink annual phlox which they remember seeing in a neighbor's garden and which they "simply must have!" You have to hand it to them; they can accomplish delightful color combinations that even harmonize with the color scheme of their home exterior or with flowering shrubs or bulbs that bloom at the same time as the flower bed.

Men, in general, like the "sock it to 'em!" colors and will reach for the warm shades in the seed display. Here they run into difficulty, because the warm shades are relatively hard to combine.

The "warm hearted" gardener can get out of his predicament by sandwiching a swath of white or primrose yellow flowers between bright red and robust orange flowers. Men, too, will often go the patriotic route and combine drifts of red, white and blue flowers, or follow a fiscal inspection and plant a solid gold garden of various kinds of marigolds.

Finally, there are those intrepid souls who deliberately, but not always successfully, put together wild combinations of color to achieve dramatic effects with flowers. These are the people who conjure up a vision of cobalt or teal when they hear the word "blue," who see tangerine when they hear "orange," and a watermelon shade when they hear "pink."

Most of them end up buying a color wheel or other key to color harmony after a few hilarious boo-boos such as combining yellow with magenta flowers. Seedmen can spot these gardeners quickly by their habit of holding up two or three packets together to see how the colors combine.

Not until they have checked out the color harmony do they get down to the nitty-gritty of whether the kinds they have selected will bloom at the right time or are of the correct height for combining.

All of this keeps the seedman hopping. He can't just turn on a spigot and get flower seeds. He has to schedule crops years ahead, and even then Nature doesn't always cooperate. Where he really gets tripped up on the game of guessing colors is by the peculiar fact that flower colors look different in various parts of the country.

Visitors of Oregon, for example, "oooh" and "aaah" over the petunia colors, yet the same hybrids draw no special attention in the 48 other states. Heat and humidity make or wash the intensity out of flower colors.

All of this may not ease your mind about whether to plant separate colors or mixtures. Really, you shouldn't worry.

Whichever choice you make, certain friends will sincerely praise your garden while others will change the subject and begin talking about the weather. You can always please both sides by compromising and planting a drift of mixed colored flowers between two agreeable separate shades.

The final considerations hinges on the people for whose enjoyment you are growing the flowers. If you aren't sure, just keep gardening — the truth will out. When you find yourself smiling for no apparent reason while looking at your flower bed — the complex creation you helped bring to life — then that's the right set of colors for you!

Brighten up garden area with outdoor light fixtures

It's difficult to improve upon summer's beauty but it can be done — particularly in the evenings. Inclined as they are to live outdoors as much as possible, people can make the living more enjoyable through the use of outdoor lighting fixtures. Available in many shapes, sizes, styles, and colors, they will impart exciting glamor and entrancing beauty to yard and garden.

While some of the many fixtures obtainable are strictly functional, all are works of art.

The addition of lighting will make the outdoor barbecue grill an even more attractive gathering place. Fixtures hung from branches or affixed to the trunk of a tree near the grill will add a cheerful glow to the scene.

Portable lamps, complete with cord, plug and ground spike which may be pushed into the earth, are admirable for this purpose.

Floodlighting fixtures are available with attractive cone-shaped shades to shield the light bulbs, but they may also be used without shades because the bulbs have built-in reflectors. The bulbs are obtainable in various wattages and several colors.

Place fixtures on the ground and aim them upward for interesting lighting of trees, shrubbery, walls and fences. Hide a bulb in a flower pot, a birdhouse or stoneware garden ornament for a dramatic effect.

Fasten a fluorescent bulb to the underside of a garden bench to light a path or plants, or to reflect light from colored stones. A do-it-yourselfer, with a little ingenuity, can do many cute tricks like this inexpensively with pleasing results.

Prize blooms and shrubs may be enjoyed longer throughout the summer under artificial light. Floodlights concealed in shrubbery or trees capture the mystery of nature at night. A backdrop of light forms a pleasing silhouette while front lighting adds a new dimension and lustrous tint to the color of flowers and leaves.

String a series of lantern lights, in gay pastel colored shades, over the outdoor dining table. They will enhance everyone's fun at cookouts and get-togethers.

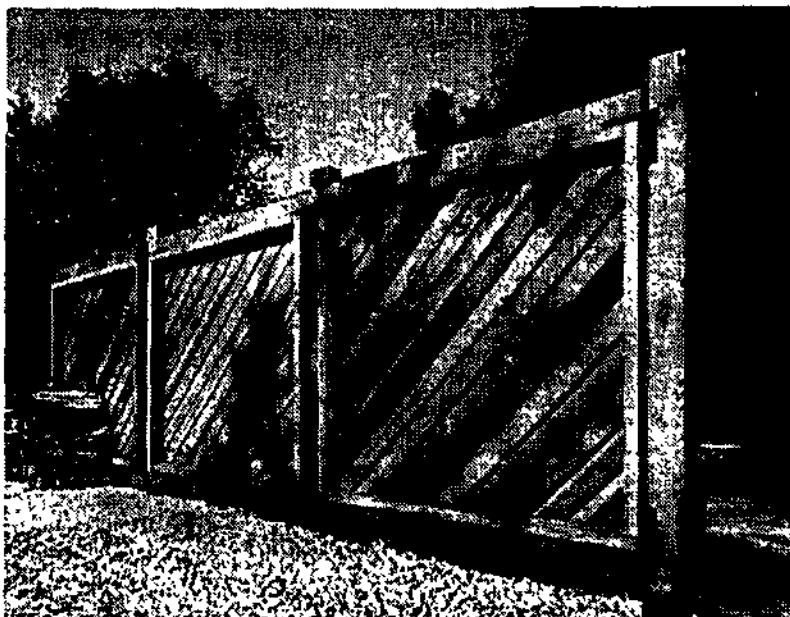

Outdoor living literally makes the yard an extra living room where family and friends can enjoy games, parties, picnics and other activities.

With outdoor lighting the garden at night takes on a charm uniquely different than it presents during the day.

There's no reason why enjoyment of outdoor lighting should be restricted to the summer months. For a thrilling delight, see your garden in its full dress of vibrant reds and yellows.

Under a blanket of winter snow it will become a wonderland of quiet magic. Spot and floodlights, placed to create shadows, will reveal frostings of snow on tree boughs or the jewel-like sparkle of ice crystals in scenes well worthy of any of the great master painters.

A final and most important consideration is the protection that outdoor lighting affords. A home well lighted, from either outside or inside, is a great deterrent of potential prowlers. Even when you're away for an evening or on vacation, automatic timers will turn lights on or off at staggered intervals and discourage the most ambitious burglar from entering.

Careful landscape planning includes knowing family's habits and needs

Good landscaping doesn't just happen. It is planned. The amount of planning that has preceded installation of the first shrub, not the amount of money invested, is the major factor in the end result.

Local members of the American Association of Nurserymen are experienced in developing comprehensive designs for any style home on any size and shape of lot, and for any budget. But the first step is up to you, the homeowner.

No one knows your family, their habits, and their leisure time interests better than you do. And no one knows the hopes and ideas you have for the development of your property as well as you do. These must be major considerations in arriving at the final plan.

Before consulting a nurseryman, make a rough sketch of your lot, showing the relationship of your house to the land, trees or shrubs already in place, and the approximate proportions of front, side and back yards.

If you have drafting or graph paper, you can be more accurate in portraying the size of spaces you have to work with. Or you can make your own scale by drawing cross-sectioned lines on plain paper.

To begin with, direct your attention to the public sections of your lot. For most houses, this will be the front yard, or it might be front and side yards. Your primary concern in this section is to plan landscaping that will enhance the appearance of your house and properly relate it to the entire lot. You should also take into consideration the appearance of adjoining lots, in order to have your yard blend well with the neighborhood.

Consider the style, height, and width of the house. Think of the vantage point from which most persons will see it. Is it from the street, when pulling into the driveway, or from a block away as passersby round a bend in the street?

Before sketching in possible additions to the landscape, sketch existing trees and shrubs or flower beds that you want to keep. If trees or shrubs hide the house or cover the windows or entrance, you should have them removed before investing in additional landscaping.

You will want to use trees to frame the house and give it a background. Taller shrubs should be used at the corners to soften vertical lines, and lower shrubs will provide a transition between building and ground.

Although you will want to spend a large part of your landscaping budget on the public section, you probably won't use it as much as you will the private areas. You will, therefore, want to divide your attention and money between the two areas.

It is much more fun to do gardening in the privacy of a backyard, where you can wear your oldest clothes and take an occasional break to relax in privacy. Consequently, most nurserymen recommend using plantings in the front that require a minimum of maintenance.

Before making a sketch of the private, or activities, section, call a family council meeting to discuss possible uses. Will you want to invest in a swimming pool, a patio, a barbecue pit and picnic table? Perhaps you have volleyball or croquet players in the family, requiring lawn space.

Are you interested in a nook set apart from the rest of the yard where you can sleep in a hammock or have a cool drink on a busy afternoon? Will the teenagers in the family want an area where they can string up Japanese lanterns and have a party?

Is there a veteran flower or vegetable gardener in the family that will want some planting beds set apart? You might even want to consider a small greenhouse or toolshed.

If your yard is big enough, you will want to divide it into areas for different activities. If it is a small yard, plan your landscaping for dual purposes. A volleyball green, for instance, can double for the site of a lawn party. A patio can be used for sunbathing by day and dinner parties at night.

When your family has agreed on the activities for the yard, you can divide your yard into activity groupings. Look at your sketch carefully to make sure you haven't sectioned it off to the point of cluttering it or detracting from the overall appearance.

At this point, add indications of sights you will want to hide, such as telephone poles, garbage cans, and compost heaps. A careful selection of a tree, high shrubs, or an attractive screen will not only hide them but add to the appearance of the yard.

Now is when the fun begins. Starting with trees, then moving to the large shrubs, then the smaller shrubs and bushes, then to small plants and flowers, try your hand in completing the landscape. Be sure to leave plenty of space for roots — at least 30 feet between large trees and 15 between smaller ones. As you draw, and when you're buying the plantings, consider the size and appearance of each item when grown to maturity.

In selecting trees and shrubs, think of their shapes. Do you want the dome of a beech tree, the pyramid of a fir, or the droopiness of a weeping willow?

Each section of your landscape should have a focal point, with the remainder of the yard flowing in easy, sweeping lines toward it. You'll also want color year-round, through variations such as evergreens, a white birch tree, or a holly bush, as well as flowers.

Think about the function of each item. Is the tree for shade, to cover an unsightly view, or to provide proper framing for the house? Are the shrubs for keeping people and animals out, for privacy, for hiding the foundation or to round the corners of the house?

Now is the time to call in professional help. Members of the American Association of Nurserymen will be glad to go over your sketch with you, point out ways to improve it, and recommend the best buys for your objectives and your budget.

He will also be glad to help you divide your plan into phases, to be implemented over a period of several years, if necessary. And you can count on him to stand behind his work and recommendations for the lifetime of enjoyment you will receive from them.

MORE IMPORTANT than the money invested in landscaping is the amount of planning done before the actual work begins. After sketching your own plan to show your family's need and desires for landscaping call in an expert for help.

Summer care of rose garden

This is a non-conductor of heat and cold and will not only keep the moisture in the ground by protecting it from the sun's absorbing rays but will also greatly reduce the actual temperature of the bed. Peat is very neat looking and we recommend its use not only for appearance sake, but also because it keeps down all weeds.

Throughout the summer the surface of the rose bed should be cultivated. If this is done, watering will rarely be necessary, or if you cannot or care not to cultivate during the summer, it is a good plan to cover the bed with two inches of peat early in the summer before the weather becomes hot.

Vegetable gardening book gives gardeners specifics

Gardeners everywhere, particularly vegetable gardeners, will be interested to know that a new book on vegetable gardening, All About Vegetables, has been published by The Chevron Chemical Company — Ortho Division and edited by Walter L. Doty.

All About Vegetables does not limit itself to one locale or climate, nor does it try to cover them all. To meet the specific needs of home vegetable gardeners throughout the U.S., the book has been published in three different editions — Midwest/northeast, South and West editions. Each edition contains vegetable planting-growing information for that particular region.

The book is designed to make the vegetable gardening as uncomplicated as possible. It presents ideas and suggestions to help gardeners avoid errors. The format is uncomplicated as well. It is divided into several chapters, has easy to read bold headings and for quick reference the chapter titles are designated in the right-hand margins of each page.

Much of the content in All About Vegetables was gathered from the firsthand responses given by 237 gardeners — both experts and beginners — in interviews, tapes and questionnaires.

Ortho experts went a step further and set up test gardens with which to make their observations and discoveries.

All About Vegetables contains many diagrams, charts and color photos to help guide the gardener. Among the charts and diagrams you'll find a planting chart, which also helps the gardener plan his garden.

The Spoilers is an enlightening section which centers on the disappointments and successes of many gardeners. The chapter, Good Ideas From Good Gardeners, tells of many gardening discoveries. For good cooks as well as good gardeners, one section devotes itself entirely to recipes for fresh garden vegetables. Another chapter focuses on the vegetables themselves, their qualities, characteristics and traits.

Included in All About Vegetables is a listing of other publications concerning vegetable gardening for those persons interested in further reading on the subject.

CHILDREN HAVE been some of the most enthusiastic supporters of Green Survival, the American Association of Nurserymen reports. They enjoy planting and watching things grow, and they learn rapidly about plant-life and its benefits to man from first-hand experiences.

All cabbages grown much the same

Broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower and kohlrabi are all members of the cabbage clan and all grown in much the same way.

Cabbage is the hardest of the five transplants able to survive even zero temperature. Broccoli, cauliflower, sprouts and kohlrabi should be planted ten days later than cabbage and transplanted a bit later too.

Depending on how early you wish to harvest a crop, seeds of all the clan may be sown in a hot bed, cold frame or in one corner of the garden, covered by kot-kaps, then, after seedlings have been thinned and weather moderates, transplanted to the garden row.

However, both broccoli and kohlrabi need no transplanting and can be sown as soon as soil is workable where they are to grow. Thin the seedlings to allow six inches between plants for kohlrabi, eight or ten inches for broccoli.

After the center heads of broccoli are picked, side branches produce smaller heads, thus prolonging the yield. But successive small sowings, every two or three weeks, of either vegetable, will keep them on the table until frost.

Harvest all crops when young and tender, cabbage beginning when heads have formed, kohlrabi when stem enlargement is golf-ball size (no larger), broccoli while flower buds are still tightly folded, cauliflower while curd is firm

Special care for cauliflower includes tying leaves up around the curd when it is half-dollar size to keep out light and blanch it.

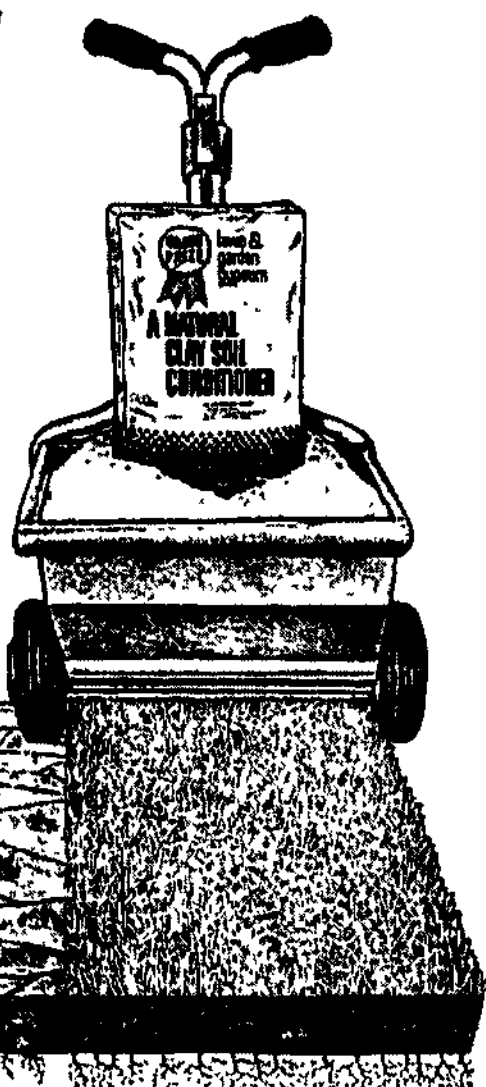

All of the cabbage clan are beloved of pests. Cutworms are controlled by placing stiff 3-inch-wide cardboard collars around stems, one half inch from stem and extending one inch below the soil level.

Cabbage loopers, cabbage maggots, cabbage worms are kept at bay by a weekly dusting with rotenone and aphids yield to malathion.

GRAND PRIZE® Lawn & Garden Gypsum breaks up hard clay soil.

Now you don't have to hack and hoe your head off to cultivate your hard-pan soil. With adequate water, GRAND PRIZE works itself into the ground to loosen clogged soil. Just run it on your lawn or spade it into your garden. Jerry Baker says: "Gypsum should be applied to all lawns, flowers, tree and shrub beds if the soil is the least bit hard or compacted. It will break up clay and render it useful, improve drainage, increase fertilizer efficiency."

Before you bust another blister, give GRAND PRIZE a try. Pick up what you need at your garden center or hardware store this weekend.

Before Gypsum:
Heavy, compacted soil slows root penetration; restricts development of plant roots and foliage.

After Gypsum:
Plenty of pore space for air and water; better utilization of rain and sprinkler water; possible savings on water bills.

The Liberated Gardener

A SERIES BY Frank J. Taylor

"Way back yonder I had a magazine assignment to do a profile of Dr. W. F. Gericke, the University of California professor who had invented hydroponics, gardening without soil. The story touched off a rash of "bathtub gardening," as the editors nicknamed it. Dozens of clubs of "hydropondriacs" sprang up and the professor, who wanted only to be ignored so that he could perfect his system of growing bumper crops of vegetables and flowers without soil had over 30,000 letters to answer.

Of course I had to turn hydropondriac with the rest of them, to see whether or not I was an honest reporter when I said soil-less gardening would jump the tomato crop tenfold from the same space and increase spud yield up to twenty fold. After installing a dozen small asphalt-lined wooden tanks in my makeshift greenhouse, I tossed some of the professor's magic salts, a mix of plant food ingredients into the water and planted seeds in the damp peat and shavings piled two inches deep on small-mesh wire stretched over the tanks. I was an eager bathtub gardener.

The tomatoes, beans and corn and the flowers sprouted and the plants grew like Jack's proverbial beanstalk. It kept me busy tying them up to strings. The potatoes and cucumbers grew apace and I let them loll on the netting. Outdoors I had comparable soil plantings to compare the yields.

Well, the bathtub garden out-yielded the dirt garden, yard for yard, and the vegetables were top quality. But the fabulous crop didn't make an aquaculturalist out of me. I'm a dirt gardener who likes to dig in the loam. I didn't dig gardening with clean hands. I like dirty thumbs and I revel in scooping up a fistful of friable soil and letting it sift through my fingers.

So, after proving that I could get along without soil, I dismantled the bathtub garden and went back happily to dirt farming. Most of the other hydropondriacs of the 'thirties did likewise. The fad just died on the vine.

Today, it is another story. Commercial greenhouse growers perfected the soil-less gardening technique, making it a profitable way to produce winter vegetables and flowers. On the market now are compact home aquaculture units. A ten by fourteen plastic covered backyard greenhouse will yield as many flowers and vegetables as a sizable outdoor soil garden.

These "magic gardens" come equipped with pumps to circulate warmed nutrients, thermostats that make automatic climate, electric sunlight for overcast or short winter days. Just drop in a few capsules of plant food, sow the seeds, push a button and you're a gardener liberated from toil. Great for busy people with today's miniature backyards.

But not for me; I'm still the dirty old Lib Gardener.

Pest population

The California Department of Agriculture identified 39,201 insect specimens from throughout the state during 1970 — a 17 per cent increase over 1969. The most serious pest new to the state was the Gypsy Moth, which has been found on shipping crates and house trailers entering California.

Insect and mite pests caused an estimated $281 million in crop losses in California last year. Structural pests cost California an estimated $118 million in structural repairs, control work and inspections.

Consider garden location when growing vegetables

The success of your vegetable garden depends greatly on the choice of location. Choose a place in full sun, away from trees and shrubs (so vegetables needn't compete with their roots) and on as level an area as possible.

Consider this garden part of your landscape. Possibly you will want a low fence to set it off from the other sections of your grounds. If so, remember that tomatoes, cucumbers, peas and some beans are all vines and can be supported on the fence so build accordingly.

Think also of the nearness of a water supply for, if the summer is dry, artificial water will be necessary. And don't make your garden too large. Once soil is prepared and seeds are sown, a garden that is 20 by 50 feet in size takes only an hour a week to maintain.

What will you plant in your garden? Ask each member of the family which vegetables he likes and plant only those. There's no sense in planting something that won't be used.

Unless you have plenty of room it's better not to grow the vegetables that need a lot. Make a list of the ones you want to grow and group them according to the number of days they take to reach edible size. You'll find this figure in the seed catalogs and on the seed packets.

Then, on a piece of paper, lay out your garden. The short season vegetables that mature quickly, like radishes and onion sets for green onions, should be planted at one end so another vegetable like beans can be sown as soon as they are harvested.

Spacing between rows is important.

Consider it when you plan. The closest that rows can be planted, even with up-right-growing vegetables like carrots or beets, is a foot. Eighteen inches would give you more room to maneuver.

There are two practices you can use to advantage when you plan your garden: succession planting and intercropping. Both insure greater production from your garden space.

Succession planting means both planting the same vegetable several times during the season for continuing harvest and, as indicated above, planting one vegetable in a space vacated by the use of another.

Intercropping means planting early-maturing crops between rows of long season plants. You can first set out plants of tomatoes or peppers, which need several feet in which to mature. While small they don't need the space, so grow rows of peas between them and harvest the peas before the larger plants need all the space allotted to them.

Spend some time choosing varieties of the vegetables you have decided to grow. There's a world of difference between them. In general, hybrid varieties are sturdier, produce more and have superior flavor. There are also varieties that are resistant to one or several common plant diseases. These are plainly indicated in catalogs and on seed packets.

Just because grandpa grew a certain variety is no reason why you should since newer ones are generally so greatly improved. If in doubt whether a variety thrives in your area, realize that seedsmen serve the country and usually handle only widely adapted varieties.

Planning a vegetable garden is fun — planting one is too. It can be a family project, as can the later care of the garden and harvesting the crops.

New lawn fescues

Fine fescues are especially admired for their deep color and delightful texture. They are great in seed mixtures for colonizing poor soils, shaded spots, and dry habitats. Several new discoveries are ready for the 1973 market.

In the Chewings group, those especially dense fescues with restrained rhizome growth, Highlight and Jamestown are making their marks.

Highlight is a disease-tolerant selection from Holland, bright green and durable. Jamestown is an unusually low-growing find from the University of Rhode Island, a very dark green and most attractive.

Fescues of the creeping red group grow less densely than do the Chewings sorts, and spread a bit more exuberantly by rhizome. They are quite effective in bluegrass mixtures, and are reputed to be durable farther south than might be a Chewings fescue. Ruby, a top-quality selection from Holland, is now becoming available.

GROWING LIKE miniature roses, portulaca is sometimes called "moss rose." Unlike roses, however, portulaca thrives in hot weather and continues to produce a brilliant display even during drought.

laca thrives in hot weather and continues to produce a brilliant display even during drought.

Portulaca: perfectly suited for hot, dry garden area

If you have a hot, dry area of your garden that needs brightening up, then portulaca would be right at home there. Portulaca — sometimes called moss rose because of its resemblance to miniature rose blossoms — is a low growing, succulent annual from the desert regions.

It loves an open, sunny location, where it spreads its dainty shimmering flowers in a veritable carpet of color.

Even a poor, dry soil will suit portulaca. In fact, it hates cool weather, and if shade falls on it during the course of the day it will close its flowers.

Seed is best sown where you want the plants to bloom, well after danger of frost. The flowers soon appear in colors ranging from white and yellow to pink and red.

The seeds are tiny, need scattering very thinly, and a packet will sow hundreds of low-growing plants which never attain more than six inches in height.

In recent years, plant breeders have been trying to develop new varieties with larger flowers, and there are now several hybrids available. Although separate

THE APPROACH to landscaping the "private area" of the yard is different from that of the "public area" says Techny Arboretum provides the family with plenty of recreational privacy.

Beautify an empty balcony: grow a miniature garden

There's a bald and barren look to many balconies these days.

There they are at every new apartment site — hundreds of balconies in steep and geometric ascent from earth to sky. Cold and bare, harsh with glare, balconies and more balconies confront the eye.

But nature has a simple solution to the empty balcony.

Nature, as anyone knows, invites... and excites. If there are no trees, find them! No flowers? Transport them straight to the spot in planters and pots.

How? Through one thoughtful visit at the florist shop. Choose the appropriate portable growing flowers and indoor-outdoor trees, and the barest balcony can become a lush green and blossoming place — a miniature garden.

Obviously, privacy is of first importance on any balcony garden.

From the Society of American Florists comes a list of potted and moveable trees that provide excellent screening between balcony rails and — depending upon height — sky or street. The names of these versatile trees, suitable for both indoor and outdoor use, will become more and more familiar as individual land sites continue to vanish and the number of apartments with balcony garden space increases.

There is the lush and beautiful schefflera, a tree, famed for its tall, rounded outlines and relaxed "hands" of grouped, dark green, shiny, oblong leaves. And there is that most graceful of evergreens, the podocarpus, elegantly slender and bearing green needle-like leaves. Arrange several of the potted podocarpus in one long, straight row, and they have the neat and classical borderline look of Italian cypress trees.

A grouping of Norfolk Island pines casts another spell. They resemble airy and exquisitely-proportioned Christmas trees.

What can compare with the fragrance of orange blossoms in the summer evening air?

Miraculously, the potted orange tree will bear its fruit and proudly blossom indoors or out — in the living room in winter, in the summertime on the balcony.

Why not enjoy the fruit, sight, and fragrance of a tasteful variety of balcony trees? Other members of the citrus family now potted and available at many florist shops include the pendorosa lemon with fruit halfway between the size of a grapefruit and an orange — and the lemon and kumquat trees. Your florist may not have these on hand immediately. However, he can special order them.

Portable trees described so far, incidentally, have a distinctly temperate-zone appearance. For the balcony with an all-out desert island look, consider these indoor-outdoor varieties: kentia and bamboo palms, fiddleleaf fig, Java fig, and dwarf dragon trees.

A little horticultural know-how is necessary, of course to assure the healthy survival of potted trees. The task, however, is not formidable.

First, do not overwater. Roots must have air as well as moisture. Water only when the topsoil appears dry. Then, and only then, water thoroughly. It is safe to say that most large plants should be watered once a week.

To feed, use half the quantity of fertilizer recommended for your indoor-outdoor plants during the summer and administer this quantity only half the time. You are thereby reducing the total recommended dose to exactly one-quarter. Overfeeding kills, or causes tall and spindly growth. In winter, do not feed at all. Plants are naturally dormant during this period. they may die if forced to grow.

Light is a variable factor. Fiddleleaf figs and bamboo palms demand shade only. Other species? The general rule is that those indoor-outdoor trees grown from seed or cutting in a shady greenhouse will thrive best in soft and filtered light rather than direct sun. By the same token, trees grown in the sun will continue to thrive in full sunlight.

If you are in doubt about the origin of your plants, rest easy in the knowledge that nature is extraordinarily adaptable. Eventually, the trees will adjust well to whatever light conditions exist.

A bower of ferns and flowers can burst forth — low and lovely — beneath your balcony trees. Bedding plants available now and throughout the entire summer dazzle the eyes with their bright, brave beauty.

There are begonias and lantana: petunias, lobelia, ageratum, and verbena; impatiens, geraniums, chrysanthemums, and marigolds.

This is no time for fussiness. Think of the beauty of one great clump of color, your potted flowers, set in front of potted palms. Duplicate as closely as possible, but in miniature scale, the sweeping look of the banks and steeples of a natural, outdoor garden. And come autumn, move each and every potted tree indoors for your year-round indoor garden.

Dry weather and weeds give lawn real battle

Although late summer still is the best time to plant lawns, spring seedings can be successful. But you'll need to pay close attention to the kind of seed used, rate of seeding and seedbed preparation and use extra care in getting the lawn established.

Weeds and hot, dry weather give spring-seeded lawns a real battle says James E. Schuster, Assistant Extension Adviser, Horticulture, DuPage County. Kentucky bluegrass varieties and red fescue are suitable perennial grasses for most lawns in Northern Illinois.

The following time and effort saving ways will help get your spring-seeded lawn off to a vigorous start:

Grade the area to be seeded.

Plow or rototill the soil, six inches deep. However, do not work the soil when it's wet.

Use a starter fertilizer to give the lawn a boost. The fertilizers such as 10-10-10, 10-8-8 or a similar analysis should be applied at the rate of 15 pounds per 1000 square feet. If you use a fertilizer with an analysis different from those above, make sure you follow the directions on the package. Rake or till the starter fertilizer into the upper two inches of soil.

Smooth the soil before seeding making sure all clods are broken up or removed from the seedbed.

Seed two to three pounds of Kentucky bluegrass into every 1000 square feet. A mechanical seeder will apply the seed more evenly than by hand. If you apply the seed by hand, go first in an east-west direction and then in a north-south direction for a more even distribution of the seed.

Rake lightly to cover the seed, then roll or tamp the soil to firm the soil, stabilize the seedbed and induce better contact between soil and seed.

On steep slopes, the seedbed should be mulched with burlap or straw that's free of weed seeds to reduce erosion.

Keep the soil surface moist until the grass seed has germinated, says Schuster. As the grass becomes better established, you can apply more water each time and allow more time to pass between waterings.

Here's new weapon in war against weeds and crabgrass

The advent of spring in most parts of the country means the fight with snow and ice turns to war against weeds and crabgrass.

A new weapon in this war against weeds is a three-in-one specialty product developed for gardeners, landscapers and nurserymen. Called Fibrex Root Insulator/Weeder, it is the first decorative bark ground cover to incorporate a weeder.

Fibrex, a product of Masonite Corporation, is treated with Dacthal, an effective pre-emergence herbicide. Used as a ground cover around trees, shrubs, ornamentals, established flowers and even house plants, it will reduce evaporation of moisture from the soil, and at the same time, inhibit weed emergence.

In addition, the ground cover protects plant roots from extremes of heat and cold, stops soil splashing and washing, and doesn't "tie-up" nitrogen in the soil. It is safe for both people and pets.

It is recommended that Fibrex be applied at a 1-inch depth. This provides nearly twice the coverage and equivalent mulching effectiveness of conventional mulches. Early application in the growing season gives season-long weed reduction and protects plant roots from extreme summer heat.

One inch of Fibrex over root areas, according to the manufacturer, will reduce summer soil temperatures around plant roots. It will keep roots in a temperature range that promotes root development and plant growth.

In the winter, this insulating cover does double duty: raising root-zone temperatures, moderating fluctuations in daily soil temperature to reduce soil crusting and heaving, improving tilth or structure, lessening the risk of freeze damage.

TO BUILD A BARRIER around your yard against annoying mosquitoes that invade your summer evenings outdoors, the use of a compressed air sprayer with a capacity of 1½ to 4 gallons is recommended. Adjust the nozzle to deliver a fine spray into the shady foliage of shrubs, bushes, tall grasses and on the ceilings and walls of breezeways and under roof eaves. Repeat the application every ten days to two weeks.

Construct barrier to insure mosquito-free environment

"If you think it was bad this year, wait 'til next year!"

That warning, given last year by a U.S. Department of Agriculture official, refers to the mosquito problem that plagued parts of the Midwest and much of the east coast during 1972. The USDA official now has forewarned these sectors of the country to prepare for a worse siege of mosquitoes this year.

The H.D. Hudson Manufacturing Company, makers of garden sprayers and dusters, suggests that you build a "mosquito barrier" around the yard.

To build this barrier, first eliminate all breeding areas for mosquitoes on your property. Mosquitoes generally lay their eggs on the surface of stagnating water. Soon the eggs hatch into "wigglers" or larvae that pupate and turn into adults. Check your property and make sure that there are no containers of rain water, stopped-up roof gutters, or puddles in low spots. Change the water in the bird-bath weekly.

To complete the barrier, spray areas where mosquitoes rest during the heat of the day. This includes foliage of shrubs, bushes, flower beds, lawn areas, ceiling of porches and breezeways, and under the eaves around the house and garage. Use a mixture of malathion or any one of the other residual sprays recommended against mosquitoes. This spray application, depending on local rainfall, should be effective for 10 days to two weeks.

Choose a sprayer that is big enough for the job, yet easily portable. A compressed air sprayer with a tank capacity ranging from 1½ to 4 gallons will fulfill most application requirements for the average home. The long hose extension and adjustable nozzle make it easy to reach and spray all areas.

By following these simple measures you can maintain a relatively "mosquito-free" environment so that you and your family can enjoy your lawn and garden this summer.

Clover mites leave stains on furniture

Clover mites are tiny, orange-to-black, moving specks about the size of the period at the end of this sentence. They may cover furniture, curtains, window sills, and walls. Although harmless, clover mites leave a stain when mashed. These mites are now leaving their winter hibernation sites beneath siding and in cracks and crevices. As these mites are warmed by the sun, they move to window sills and walls on the east and south sides of a house or other structure in large numbers.

For control indoors, pick up clover mites with a vacuum cleaner; or, use a spray of 0.1 per cent pyrethrum or 0.5 per cent dichlorvos (DDVP) for a quick (but only temporary) knockdown.

To prevent further migration indoors, treat the foundation and house siding up to the first floor window sills and about a 10-foot strip of lawn adjacent to the house with 1 teaspoon of chloropropylate (Acaralate 2E), two teaspoons of dicofol (Kelthane 18.5-per cent wettable powder), or 4½ tablespoons of malathion (50- to 57-per cent emulsifiable concentrate) per gallon of water. Repeat the spray in seven to ten days, if necessary.

Later this spring, remove the grass and weeds next to the foundation for a strip 18 to 24 inches wide. Very few clover mites will cross this barrier of bare soil in the fall.

Ecology of nature harsh on mankind

Are the agricultural scientists' attempts to improve crop yield leading to disaster? Not according to Dr. Earl Butz, the Secretary of Agriculture. Speaking before the Foundation for American Agriculture, Dr. Butz observed:

"The plain truth is that the ecology of nature is pretty severe on man, and man is constantly trying to modify it. Let's be honest: God put the worm in the apple; man took it out. God put the potato bug on the potato; man took it off. God put the parasite in the pork; man took it out. How far back to Nature do our ecologists want to go?"

Two new lawngrasses promise greener lawns

The old saying, "The grass always looks greener on the other side of the fence," doesn't need to apply anymore to your lawn.

The reason is the blending together of two new varieties of Kentucky bluegrasses that are greener and tougher than regular Kentucky bluegrass. The varieties, Bonnieblue and Sydsport, are available from Sears in its 1973 Premium Lawn Seed Mixture and Elite Bluegrass Mixture.

The Premium Lawn Seed Mixture contains equal percentages of Bonnieblue, Sydsport, Park and Merion bluegrasses, plus Pennlawn red fescue. The Elite Bluegrass Mixture is a 50-50 mixture of Bonnieblue and Sydsport. No other varieties are represented.

Bonnieblue has a unique combination of characteristics including: good resistance to leaf spot, crown rot and stripe smut diseases, each produced by a different fungus; a rich dark green color that is maintained throughout the growing season, together with a moderate leaf texture and large spikelets; good rhizomes and tiller development under turf maintenance, which produces a dense turf with a very good horizontal spreading ability; and excellent turf performance that has been proven during a four-year test at New Brunswick, N.J.

Sydsport was selected by Sears lawn and garden experts in southern Sweden through isolation of plants with distinctive growth habits. It has very good creeping ability with rapid growth, especially late in the growing season.

Sydsport's resistance to rust and powdery mildew is very good. And it offers good resistance to leaf spot, crown rot and stripe smut. The variety says Sears, has excellent density and turf performance.

The unique combination of Bonnieblue and Sydsport Kentucky bluegrasses in Sears Premium and Elite mixtures will produce a lawn that is resistant to most common turf diseases and has a deep green color throughout the active growing season.

Sprinkling will keep lawn looking its best in summer

While any good lawngrass can withstand reasonable drought, the elegant new varieties deserve a better fate. They should be watered at the first signs of wilting to keep them looking their best. Typically this is when the grass turns bluish, and footprints remain visible for some time after the lawn is walked upon.

The amount of water that the lawn uses varies with its location. In windy habitat under full sun, such as might occur in western climates, water loss can reach two inches per week. In other climates half this is a more likely average during summer. At higher elevations, in cloudy weather, or where dew is heavy, the demand might be much less.

The total lawn water requirement for the year in Los Angeles may be 40 inches or more. In the Northeast perhaps only 30 inches will be required, almost all of which is taken care of by rainfall.

All regions experience some summer drought from time to time. Then watering capability makes the difference between having an attractive lawn or otherwise. Lawns on sandy soils should be irrigated frequently at ample rates for brief intervals. Light sprinkling over a more prolonged span is appropriate for lawns on heavier soils.

If you are making a new lawn, consider installing one of the inexpensive plastic systems underground. Then the water need only be turned on at the spigot. At very little additional cost time-clock valve regulators can be had to water the lawn automatically.

Plants help attract birds

Small landowners who like wildlife can attract animals and birds by planting shrubs and trees that provide their favorite food and cover.

There are a number of plants, according to the Ornamental Growers Association of Northern Illinois, which not only provide food for birds, but also add beauty to the landscape and do not require extensive care.

Two shrubs which are highly recommended are autumn olive and multiflora rose. Both are excellent for hedges, and provide excellent food, cover, and travel lanes for songbirds, grouse, pheasant, quail, and rabbits. Their red fruits are available from early fall till well into winter.

Silky dogwood, red-osier dogwood, gray dogwood, nannyberry viburnum, arrow-wood viburnum and highbush cranberry and other varieties that are favorites of songbirds and small game. All do best in wetter soils.

Don't overlook nut bearing trees such as black walnut and hickory, and the acorns of oaks are prized by chipmunks, squirrels, and birds.

For drier soils the O.G.A. recommends Staghorn sumac, fragrant sumac, Tatarian honeysuckle, wild plum, buffaloberry, and Indian currant. Virginia creeper, and wild grape produce food for more than 100 species of song and game bird, as well as rabbits, raccoons, and squirrels.

Roses yield fast results

Roses are a boon to the new homeowner searching for immediate effect to add a little finish to his new home area. With its thin, freshly planted lawn and sort of naked and self-conscious appearing new house, plants with an abundance of green foliage and bright flowers are needed — right now.

While the other newly planted trees and shrubs that he might use are cautiously putting out their first year's skimpy leaves, roses will give him the needed immediate and satisfying results. Almost at once mounds of foliage appear, soon to be set with beautiful roses of any of the brilliantly colored varieties that he may choose. Once started, rose bushes will increase in size and beauty throughout the rest of the summer and fall.

A few roses planted around the bleak new patio or along the gray-white, recently poured concrete walks and drives, will tie them into the surrounding grounds quickly and beautifully.

Even after the permanent shrub and tree planting becomes established, there will always be a need and room for roses.

Include several factors when making patio plan

Include several factors when making patio plan 2-36 bold

"Let's have a patio!" someone in the family exclaims enthusiastically. What makes the difference between a passable patio and a successful one that charms the owners with its pleasant atmosphere? Several factors combine to make the difference. A successful patio is:

The right size. It must not only relate to the house but to a service area, work center, swimming pool or garden. Designed to include children's activities.

Oriented to invite or evade the sun and avoid inclement weather. In cooler climates heating must be provided to take the chill out of cool evenings.

Fenced for privacy and paved with safe, durable surfacing.

Comfortably furnished and equipped for barbecuing.

The patio planner has some early decisions to make regarding the proper placement of permanent equipment such as a grill, lights, patio heaters and pool heater. Traffic patterns must be considered so that eating doesn't interfere with swimming or game playing. A grill may be portable instead of permanently installed if the family likes to dine in different sections of the patio. It is easily stored when not in use.

Lights are usually permanent. A well-lighted patio area invites the family outside at night. It also provides the viewers inside the house with the beauty of the patio. A combination of functional and esthetic lighting best achieves this.

Patio heaters may be permanent or semi-permanent. Spacing of heaters depends on how protected the area is. A minimum of two heaters is usually installed so that people are bracketed between them.

Unless the lot is very large, a swimming pool will dominate the patio and must be included in patio planning. Even in off season when the pool isn't in use it is an important visual part of the patio. Location of the pool heater and filtering system affect the landscaping plans for the patio area.

Don't ignore root system

We tend to overlook about half of our lawngrass — the roots below ground. Without a good root system topgrowth is not durable and often of poor quality. The root systems of bentgrasses, bluegrasses, fescues and perennial ryegrasses, — the top lawn species, — are confined mostly to the upper few inches of soil.

They grow more deeply in aerated soils that are porous and drain well. In compact soils grass roots tend to be near the surface. The lawn then suffers quickly from drought because there are no deep roots to tap additional water.

A complete fertilizer mixed into the soil before planting grass helps, so that roots are "tempted" to grow deeply for nutrients. Phosphorus is especially important since it moves only slowly downward when applied later. And urea-form will not be so quickly leached by seeping water as would be soluble nitrogen.

Philodendrons: adaptable plants

No house plant demonstrates Nature's amazing adaptability more dramatically than the philodendron. It is ideally suited to both its wild life in the jungles of Central and South America, and its captive existence as an ornamental plant in houses, apartments, and commercial buildings.

In the jungles, shade is more plentiful than bright sunshine, drenching rain can be followed by sudden droughts, and the hardy philodendron has learned to thrive in these conditions.

Astonishingly, it does just as well in towns and cities. Indoors it will live healthfully in warm, sunny locations, or in dim corners. If its owner forgets to water it from time to time, no matter. Those jungle droughts have taught it to survive our inattention. Finally, it will endure either dry or humid air, high or low temperatures.

The philodendron is as determined to please us with its beauty as with its hardiness. The Society of American Florists reports that there are two distinct families in captivity: the climbers and the self-heading philodendrons.

Fight crabgrass prior to sprouting period

Just as soon as soil temperature rises to around 60 degrees, crabgrass seedlings pop up in sunny parts of the lawn. Few are the lawns that do not harbor crabgrass seed. Crabgrass seed may lay hidden deep in the sod for many years, only to sprout when "released" by thinning of the grass or churning of the soil.

Incidentally, tests of lawnseed coming to market show definitely that crabgrass is not introduced by planting good lawnseed.

Crabgrass seldom grows in the bluegrass and fescue seed fields. Even were it there perchance, crabgrass does not set its seed until long after bluegrass or fescue seed are harvested! Moreover, again being fanciful, even should someone toss a bucket of crabgrass seed into a lot of bluegrass, fescue, bentgrass or perennial ryegrass — the premier lawn species — it would soon be detected during cleaning operations, so different is it in shape and size from seed of these desirable grasses.

The way seedsmen, to say nothing of inspection officials, abhor crabgrass, there would be quite a hue and cry should any crabgrass at all be detected as seed is carefully nursed along in cleaning and blending operations.

Thus, one is really fighting his local brand of crabgrass, the "toughest" of which seems to lurk where summers are characteristically hot and moist, especially in the "crabgrass belt" from Washington, D.C. to St. Louis. Crabgrass usually starts there in April. A bit farther south it may sprout in March, whereas way up in Minnesota and Maine it may not show up until June!

If your lawn has a history of summer crabgrass, the battle should begin at least a week or two before customary sprouting time, even though you won't see much evidence of the pest until summer.

Crabgrass preventers, such as Azak, Betesan, Dacthal and Tupersan must blanket the lawn before crabgrass sprouts in order to be effective; they kill only sprouting seed or seedlings. Prevention begins with careful spreading of a preventer over sunny parts of the lawn in early spring in southern portions of the bluegrass belt, to mid-spring in more northerly parts. Incidentally, crabgrass preventers, used as directed, are harmless to anything except sprouting seeds.

If crabgrass is rare, or you don't use a preventer, at least help your lawn fight the crabgrass menace by urging it on to as great a thickness and density as is possible before crabgrass sprouting time. Crabgrass will not grow in the shade of a dense sod any more than it will grow in the shade of a tree.

Overseeding thin turf, stimulating growth by fertilization and mowing consistently high can all help increase lawn density.

Lawn seeding-and-feeding should be undertaken just as early in the season as possible; bluegrasses, fine fescues, bentgrasses and perennial ryegrasses are all favored by the cooler weather of spring, while crabgrass won't put in an appearance until temperature warms.

If crabgrass does show up in spite of your best efforts, a mowing up in summer (by which time crabgrass will be clearly evident) is possible with arsenate sprays applied twice about a week apart.

Today,

But 102 million will read a newspaper.

For most people, reading a newspaper is an indispensable part of everyday life. 77% of us, 18 and over, read a newspaper on the average weekday, according to a recent nationwide study by Audits & Surveys, Inc.

And newspaper reading is such an ingrained habit that over a five day period, 89% of us read at least one newspaper and the average reader sees 4.3 issues. In other words, just about every one of us reads the newspaper just about every day.

On the average we spend 30 to 40 minutes with each paper we read, and we go through it so thoroughly that we open and read something on 84% of the pages.

We get involved with the newspaper, too. We quote from it, write letters to it, clip articles and ads out of it, buy things by mail on its say-so, and talk about what we've read in it. 93% of all readers have done these things at one time or another. Just about everybody.

So if you're an advertiser and your problem is to find a sure way to reach everybody every day, you've got the answer in hand. The daily newspaper.

Would you print a picture of Robert Conrad and tell me where I can write to him? Would you please tell me something about him?

R.E.
Arlington Heights

Robert Conrad

Send your letter addressed to Robert Conrad, in care of ABC-TV, 1330 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019. Born in Chicago as Conrad Robert Falk in 1935, he was educated in public schools prior to enrolling in Northwestern University's drama department. His first venture into the entertainment field was as a vocalist in a Chicago nightclub. Other engagements followed and during this period he met the late Nick Adams, who advised him to change his name for professional reasons.

As Robert Conrad, he set out for Hollywood where he was first employed as a stuntman. Having signed a long-term contract with Warner Bros., he was cast in numerous productions, mostly westerns. His first major break came when he was signed to co-star in HAWAIIAN EYE for four years. Since that time, he has starred in three other series—WILD WILD WEST, THE D.A., and his present series ASSIGNMENT: VIENNA.

When not before the cameras, Conrad, a former boxer, does road work. He is a full partner in a small chain of clothing stores in northern Calif.

Would you please tell me some information about Judy Norton who plays Mary Ellen Walton? How old is she and does she really like to travel? Please print her picture. How did she get her start in show business?

Jeff S.
Mt. Prospect

Judy was born Jan. 29, 1958 in Santa Monica, Calif. At the age of seven, she was taken by her father to the Screen Extras Guild after his friends had told him that she should be in pictures! After playing many brief roles she graduated to larger parts, particularly on FELONY SQUAD, THE TAMMY GRIMES SHOW and the motion picture "Hotel."

Judy Norton

Evidently, Judy is somewhat a home-body. Here interests, besides acting center around guitar playing, sewing, knitting, crocheting, and sports. She lives at home with her parents, sister, and brother.

I think Barbara Streisand is the greatest! She is a fantastic singer! Could you tell me if she plans to make any more movies with singing in it, like in "Funny Girl"? How old is she? Would you please print a picture of her?

R.D.
Arlington Heights

Barbara Streisand

Few people were surprised when Barbara turned out to be a co-winner of the 1969 Academy Award for her performance in "Funny Girl." Her life story sounds like one of those poor-little-girl-makes-good movie plots. Her road to success began back in Brooklyn, where she was born in 1942, and spent every spare minute of her time watching movies. As she watched the films, she decided that she too, someday would be a star.

Barbara's films have included "Hello, Dolly" and "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever" in which she has not only acted but sung as well. One of her sayings is "I'm an actress, not a singer." One has difficulty in remembering or believing that when one considers all her gold records that she has recorded on the Columbia Record Label! Barbara is always looking for more movie roles, and hopefully there will be a singing role for her in one in the near future.

We enjoy your column very much and read it every week. Several weeks ago you printed the address where we could write to THE WALTONS. Somehow the address got lost. We all like the program so much that we'd sure like to see it stay on. We need more family programs like that.

Mrs. J.L.A.
Mt. Prospect

You may send your comments about the show to: THE WALTONS, CBS-TV, 51 W. 52nd St., New York, N.Y. 10019. At the time of this writing the unique program has ratings enough to substantiate its return in the fall schedule! How about that!

Please print a picture of David Cassidy. Where may I write to him? How old is he?

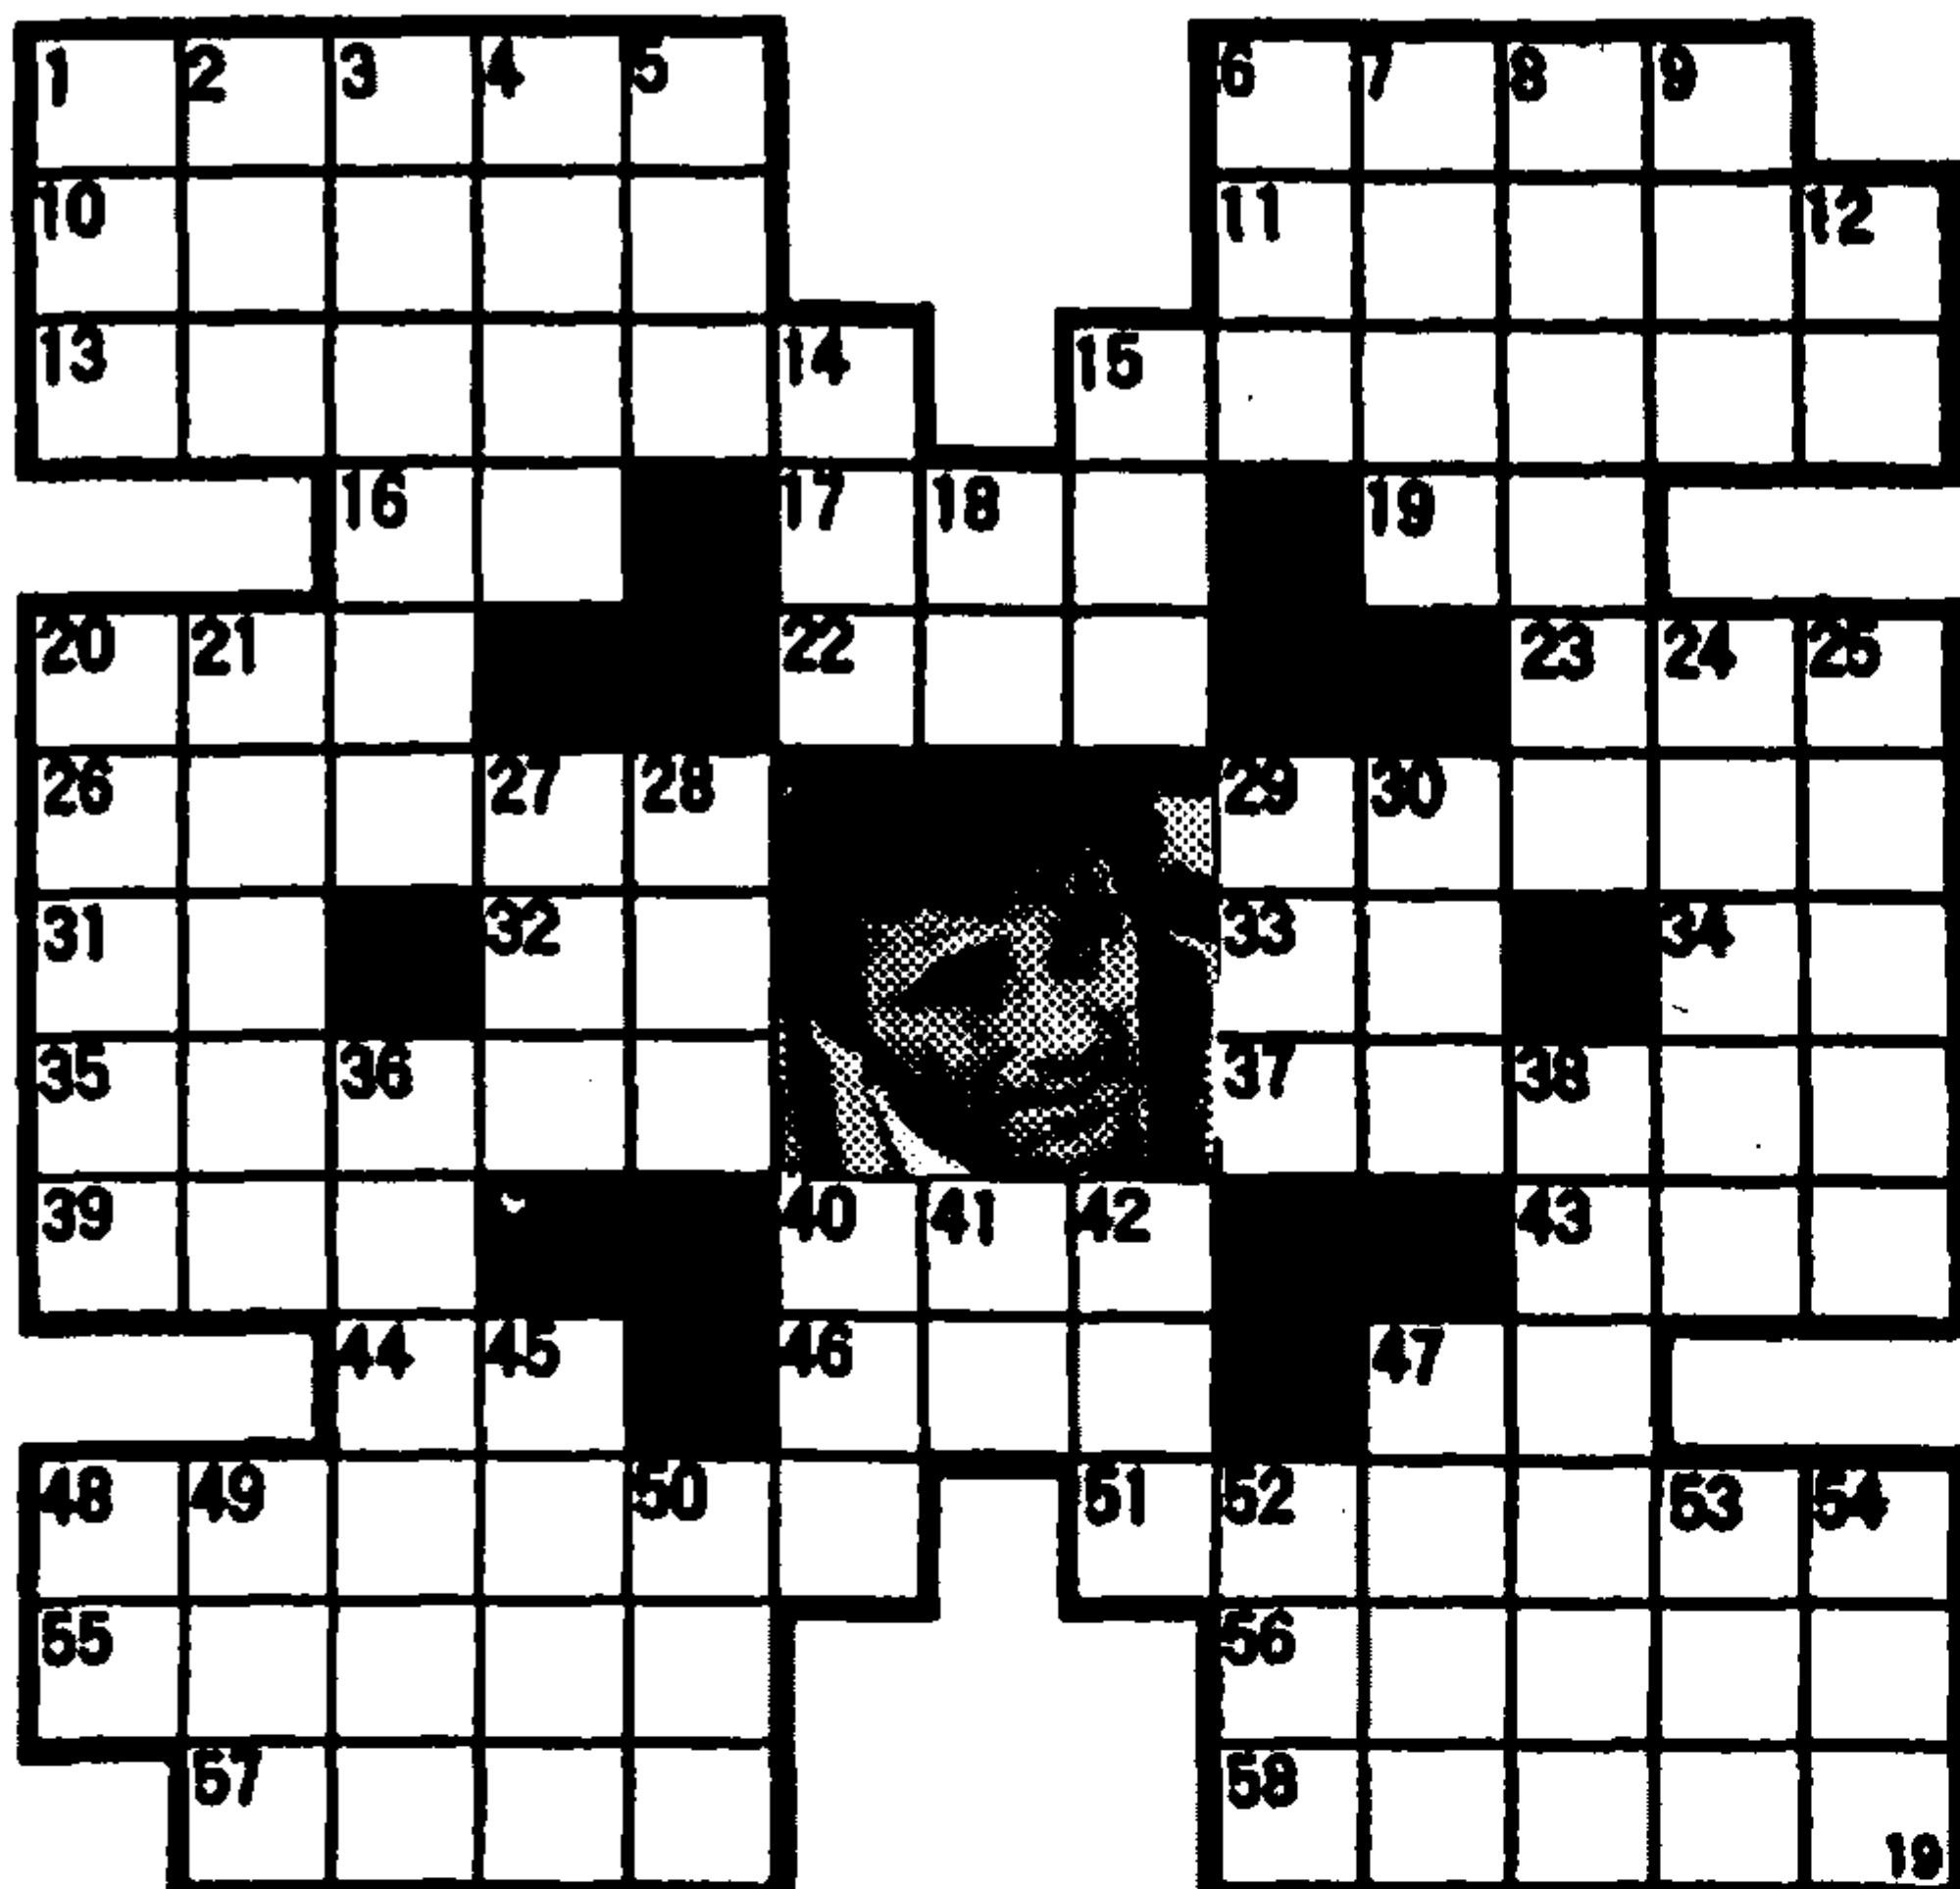

M.D.
Des Plaines

David Cassidy

Hope you enjoy the picture of David, who is 23 this year! You may send your letter addressed to him in care of ABC-TV, 1330 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019.

One more nominee, anyone?

By now, you've probably seen the nominations in many of the major categories for this Sunday's (May 20) Emmy Awards. It's fun to try to pick the winners. It's also very difficult, since most nominees deserve the recognition. What must have been as difficult a chore by members of the Television Arts and Sciences Academy was to limit the nominations. Where do you stop?

So, instead of "picking the winners," I thought it interesting to add a nomination in the major categories. In each division, I've put the genuine nominees in parentheses (one of those will win). Then...just for fun...I've cited a show or individual which very well may have been worthy of a nomination.

COMEDY SERIES: (All in the Family, Mary Tyler Moore, M*A*S*H, Maude, Sanford & Son). I'm adding "The Odd Couple," which has been honored before and continues to be one of TV's funniest half-hours.

DRAMA SERIES: (Cannon, Columbo, Hawaii Five-O, Kung Fu, Mannix, The Waltons). To this impressive list, I must add "Mission: Impossible." Time has taken its toll on this show (it's been cancelled), but over the long run, it's been one of TV's finest dramatic hours.

VARIETY SERIES: (Carol Burnett, Dick Cavett, Flip Wilson, Julie Andrews, Sonny & Cher). Oh, c'mon...he-e-e-r-e's Johnny! "The Tonight Show" with Johnny Carson has to be my additional nominee.

NEW SERIES: (America, Julie Andrews, Kung Fu, M*A*S*H, Maude, The Waltons). I've added "The Rookies." This show has come a long way...improved vastly...and is really much more than typical cops-and-robbers fare.

BEST ACTOR-DRAMA: (David Carradine, Kung Fu; Mike Connors, Mannix; William Conrad, Cannon; Peter Fulk, Columbo; Richard Thomas, Waltons). I'm going with Dennis Weaver. TV's "McCloud." Weaver's portrayal of the down-home cop in the big city is most admirable.

BEST ACTRESS-DRAMA: (Lynda Day George, Mission: Impossible; Susan St. James, McMillan & Wife; Michael Learned, The Waltons). What would "Gunsmoke" be without Miss Kitty, Amanda Blake? She's my addition in this category.

BEST ACTOR-COMEDY: (Alan Alda, M*A*S*H; Redd Foxx, Sanford & Son; Jack Klugman, The Odd Couple; Carroll O'Connor, All in the Family; Tony Randall, The Odd Couple). To this array of talent, I'm adding Paul Lynde. While his cancelled show wasn't much, he continues to be one of show business' most hilarious comedians.

BEST ACTRESS-COMEDY: (Beatrice Arthur, Maude; Mary Tyler Moore; Jean Stapleton, All in the Family). This is a toughie...what with not many women in starring comedy roles. An added nominee could be Loretta Swit, who portrays Hot Lips Houlihan on the M*A*S*H series.

BEST SUPPORTING ACTOR-DRAMA: (Will Geer, The Waltons; Scott Jacoby, That Certain Summer movie; Martin Sheen, That Certain Summer). Gerald S. O'Loughlin of "The Rookies" is my additional nominee. He plays the hard-nosed, yet compassionate, sergeant on the series and is the actor who ties that show together on so many occasions.

BEST SUPPORTING ACTRESS-DRAMA: (Ellen Corby, The Waltons; Gail Fisher, Mannix; Nancy Walker, McMillan and Wife). Honored before, Elena Verdugo—Marcus Welby's live-in nurse—is my addition.

Gerald S. O'Loughlin

Vernon Township library vote weighed Oct. 13

by JILL BETTNER

The Vernon Township Library Committee is tentatively planning a referendum Oct. 13 to establish a library district that would include the Lake County section of Buffalo Grove.

The committee will petition the Lake County Circuit Court to set the referendum for that day if it is not after the legal deadline for library districts to submit their budgets to the county. If the referendum is conducted after the deadline, the newly formed district would not receive taxes for two years, rather than the usual one year.

Justin Fishbein of Long Grove is chairman of the committee that is hoping to establish the proposed library district. Other members include representatives of most of the communities in Vernon Township.

Fishbein said yesterday the signatures of 100 residents in the proposed district are necessary on the petition for a referendum. He feels the signatures won't be difficult to get because residents of the area are anxious to form their own district.

"All of district library fees, all around us, either have gone up recently or will go up next year," Fishbein said. "I would be a savings to us to create our own district and besides that we want to control our own tax money," he added.

Presently residents of the proposed library district use nearby libraries in Mundelein, Libertyville, Barrington, Wheeling, Palatine and Arlington Heights, Fishbein said. He feels tax revenue gained from industries in the proposed district could tempt one or more of these districts to annex Vernon Township residents against their will.

"It is clear that because we have a developing area that is right now sparsely populated, it would offer districts around us the chance to annex us and increase their tax base without having to increase their services," Fishbein said.

If the planned October referendum to create the Vernon Township library district is successful, Fishbein said it may be possible for the agency to begin receiving taxes the following spring instead of having to wait until the next year.

"IN SOME INSTANCES under the law, an agency can establish a supplementary budget and begin receiving tax funds sooner than usual," Fishbein said. "I have to check on this because I really don't know if it would be possible for us to set up a supplementary budget or not."

In case the scheduled referendum is not successful, Fishbein said he is checking into the possibility of providing Vernon Township residents with some type of temporary library service. The service, he said, would demonstrate to residents the advantages of having their own library district and hopefully persuade them to pass another referendum later.

Fishbein said it may be possible to obtain funds for the temporary service from the Illinois State Library. He estimated an approximate $160,000 would be needed to operate any type of service for about two years.

Although the committee is considering locating the proposed permanent library near Prairie View and Half Day, the central portion of the proposed district, temporary service may be provided by a mobile unit or out of any existing building in the area, Fishbein said.

Burglars get cash, checks from office

More than $460 in cash and checks were taken Wednesday in a burglary at the Berkshire Trace apartment complex office, 890 Trace Dr., Buffalo Grove.

Police said the burglars apparently entered the office through windows in the northeast and southeast section of the building. The money and checks were taken from a desk drawer, police said. The burglars also thoroughly searched several closets and desks in the office, police added.

Several burned out matches were found discarded on the office floor. Police believe the burglars used the matches to light the office while they searched.

Residents living above the office told police they did not see or hear the burglars enter or leave the premises.

Public works garage funds included in new budget

Funding for the controversial $398,000 public works garage in Buffalo Grove has been included in the proposed budget for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson has proposed that the garage be partially financed with federal revenue sharing funds. Larson has suggested the village take out a $398,000 loan to finance the building and pay it back during a five-year period. The loan will be paid back with the revenue sharing funds as they are given to the village, Larson said. The entire cost of the garage includes $98,000 for acquisition of the needed land.

In a report released several months ago, Larson said lack of space for public works equipment hampers the efficiency of the public works department. He said because much of the equipment is stored outside, it deteriorates faster and is often subjected to vandalism.

Larson estimated the village loses up to $25,000 annually due to excessive deterioration and vandalism of equipment. A public works garage, where equipment could be stored will eliminate many of the problems, he added.

TURSTEES RANDALL Rathjen and Edward Osmon at a board meeting several months ago said they were concerned about the effect the garage will have on other village projects. Both said they were unsure whether the garage should receive a high priority. They said the project could create a shortage of money in other important areas.

Most equipment is now stored outdoors, while some is housed in a small garage connected to the park district building on Raupp Boulevard. There are also work and storage areas in a building on Arlington Heights Road and in the lower level of the village hall.

Larson has proposed the garage be constructed on a 5.1-acre site adjacent to Lake-Cook Road on Raupp Boulevard across the street from the village hall. William Davis, public works director, said the proposed garage will be capable of housing 35 vehicles. Judging by the present growth rate of the village, the garage will be adequate for the next five years.

Davis said the public works department currently has a difficult time servicing its vehicles because of the limited space. He said the new garage will provide enough room to service the police department's vehicles as well as those of public works. At the present time, police vehicles are serviced by a private garage, Davis said.

The budget and the proposed garage will be discussed Monday night by the village board in a workshop session following the regular board meeting.

White Pine Ditch repairs under way

by JOE FRANZ

The first phase of the renovation of the White Pine Ditch is under way and will be completed in several weeks if weather permits, said William Davis, Buffalo Grove public works director.

"If we keep getting the nice weather we've had the last couple of weeks, we should be finished in two or three weeks," Davis said. But if it rains it could delay us as much as a week."

The ditch repairs began May 1 following approval by the village board. The ditch, which lies directly west of White Pine Road, has been a subject of controversy for several years. The part being repaired is 1,200 feet long and affects 30 homes.

AT SOME POINTS the east bank of the ditch has eroded to within 10 feet of the lot lines of several homes. If the erosion were to remain unchecked, it would eventually wash away the backyards of these homes.

The repairs being done now include grading the steep west bank of the ditch and using the excess soil to fill in the eroding east bank.

The west bank is being graded to make a more gradual slope. The bank in some places is as deep as eight feet. Some residents have said the high bank is a hazard to children playing in the area.

The cost of the project will be between $20,000 and $21,000. Although the village will finance most of the cost, the park district has agreed to donate $2,500.

VILLAGE MGR. Daniel Larson said he consulted the Illinois Department of Conservation about obtaining funds for the project, but was told no money was available. The department, however, is providing engineering assistance, Larson said.

The project does not include repairing the ditch to the north, in back of Lincoln Terrace, Larson said. Some residents there have complained because the ditch sometimes overflows its banks and floods their backyards during severe rainstorms.

Larson said this problem should be eliminated with construction of the five-acre retention lake on the Arlington Golf Course near Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads. Construction on that project is scheduled to begin in October.

WATER FROM the storm sewers being installed on Dundee Road will be caught and diverted from the White Pine ditch into the retention lake, Larson said.

Larson said the ditch in back of Lincoln Terrace does not have the steep slope or the erosion problems evident in other parts of the ditch.

Following completion of the first phase, the village plans to install drainage tiles and plant grass to prevent erosion from starting again. This part of the project should be completed by July, Davis said.

At a later date, the village plans to develop the area into a park and wildlife preserve. At its completion the park will be attractively landscaped and will contain barbecue pits and picnic tables, Larson said.

Three of the six acres of the site will be devoted to the wildlife preserve. Corn, oats and berries will be planted there to attract wildlife, Larson said.

When the project is completed the area will probably be turned over to the park district which will be responsible for its maintenance, Larson added.

1 yr. supervision for teacher, 37, in morals case

by JOHN MAES

A year's court supervision was ordered yesterday in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court for a Cumberland Elementary School teacher charged with taking indecent liberties with children.

The supervision was ordered by Associate Judge John Gannon for Richard Archambault, 37, of 862 N. Golf Cul de Sac, a fifth grade teacher at Cumberland and a nine-year veteran of Dist. 62 schools.

Gannon made the ruling after defense attorneys Robert Deffenbaugh and Julius Sherwin, along with Assistant State's Atty. Daniel Mirabelli, moved supervision be granted and the charge against the teacher be reduced to a misdemeanor.

AFTER A LENGTHY closed-door discussion between attorneys from the two sides, Archambault stipulated to the complaint against him but did not plead guilty.

Gannon said stipulation to a complaint does not constitute a plea of guilty or mean there has been a finding of guilt in the case.

According to Deffenbaugh, supervision means that if after a year's time, Archambault is not found guilty of violating a state or federal statute, the record of the charge will be dropped.

Archambault was taken into custody by Des Plaines police March 23 after a complaint by a 10-year-old student that he had taken indecent liberties with her.

A HEATED DEBATE among Cumberland parents over the charges followed Archambault's suspension from his teaching duties by the Elementary School Dist. 62 Board of Education shortly after his arrest.

At a preliminary hearing, April 19, Gannon ruled a court psychiatrist be appointed to talk to Archambault. The interview, however, was never held. Attorneys for both sides agreed that the interview be cancelled.

Archambault later announced he was resigning from his post, adding he would move to either Arizona or Florida for his daughter's health. His resignation becomes effective June 15.

At yesterday's hearing, Gannon told the court the supervision ruling was geared at "maintaining peace and tranquility in the community."

"We made the supervision motion," Deffenbaugh told reporters after the court session. "to avoid a protracted lawsuit and vicious situation in the community."

Archambault told The Herald he was happy with the court decision. He could not say, however, when or where he would move with his family.

City seeking annexation of 21.8 acres

Des Plaines will begin involuntary annexation of 21.8 acres near Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street this week.

City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach mailed copies of the annexation proposal to city council members and the Elk Grove Rural Fire Protection District yesterday.

The annexation will include two sections of the corner in southwest Des Plaines:

- More than 21 acres of residential property on the northwest Elmhurst-Oakton corner;

- Less than an acre on the southwest corner that currently is occupied by a gasoline station.

The properties are surrounded by Des Plaines on three sides and Mount Prospect on the west edge. The move will straighten Des Plaines' west border along Elmhurst Road, Mrs. Rohrbach said.

The city council is expected to approve the annexation June 4.

State statute requires notification 10 days before ordinance approval to the fire district. Legal notification of the annexation will be published Thursday.

The area includes Lincoln Avenue, Ridge Lane and Short Terrace.

Buddy Poppy day May 24

Des Plaines Buddy Poppy day will be May 24.

Local Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2992, its Ladies Auxiliary and Des Plaines American Legion Auxiliary Unit 36 will sell the red cloth poppies, made by disabled servicemen in VA hospitals.

Proceeds from the day-long sale finance Legion and VFW activities, including the National Home, at Eaton Rapids, Mich. where 200 children of deceased or disabled veterans live, and hospitals throughout the country.

Local contributions also are distributed to post and state relief funds for the needy.

Mrs. James Radlein, unit 36 poppy chairman, said an estimated 12 million poppies will be sold nationwide "to pay homage and tribute to our nation's war dead."

In 1972, 84,327 veterans' cases were administered in Illinois.

Hospitalized veterans receive a nominal wage for assembling the poppies. "This gives them a little spending money and gives them the opportunity to keep occupied. Sometimes making poppies is a part of the therapy program for exercising fingers and hands," Mrs. Radlein said.

Schools balk at pact with architect

by REGINA OEHLER

Three and one-half months after voting to hire an architectural firm, the Elementary School Dist. 63 Board voted not to sign the contract due to an alleged conflict of interest of a new board member.

The firm of Anderson, Rehder and Yandre was hired Feb. 20 by the East Maine Board to add an addition to Apollo Junior High School, 10100 Dee Rd. Des Plaines. They already had started programming work when the board balked at the contract during the May 17 meeting.

Board Pres. Irene Luck said that since board member Larry Reiss worked for the architectural firm, the district could not hire the company without incurring possible conflict of interest charges.

REISS, ELECTED April 14 to the board, disagrees. He said in a prepared statement that he has "been in contact with attorneys who have confirmed that there is no conflict of interest."

He also said that the board was aware of his connection with the architectural firm before making their original decision. Mrs. Luck says the board members were not aware of the connection. "There seems to have been a misunderstanding," she said.

Reiss was a member of the board subcommittee that did the preliminary selecting for architectural firms. When he was asked for suggestions for firms that the committee should interview, he proposed Anderson, Rehder and Yandre.

"I responded that I have consulted for the firm of Anderson, Rehder and Yandre and consider them to be excellent school architects. Obviously I could not recommend a firm of whom I had no knowledge," he said. "I also made clear at that time that I, of course, would in no way involve myself with the design work on the Apollo school addition," he added.

LATER IN his statement, Reiss said that the architectural firm also told the board that they would not hire Reiss to do any consulting work, though they had worked with him in the past.

At the May 17 meeting, Reiss admitted that 20 per cent of his past year's income was derived from consulting work done for the architectural firm.

"The fact that I did consulting work for this firm in the past, present, or will do consulting work for them in the future is no basis for a conflict of interest," he said.

He continued that he would not vote on any matter dealing with the hiring of architectural firms.

Reiss is the only board member endorsed by the district's teachers in the last election. Teachers are now protesting and demanding more influence in determining working conditions. They picketed the May 17 board meeting.

Motorist charged in April fatality

The driver of a car in which a Des Plaines youth was killed April 12 has been charged by Mount Prospect police with involuntary manslaughter, reckless homicide and reckless driving.

Daniel L. Flerlage, 18, of 222 Anderson Terr., Des Plaines, who was critically injured in the accident, was charged by police Tuesday. He was released on $2,000 bond, pending a June 1 court date in Mount Prospect.

Killed in the Busse Road accident was Emilio Camodeca Jr., 17, of 575 Westmere, Des Plaines. Two other cars were involved in the 7:10 a.m. accident that police said was caused when Flerlage allegedly lost control of his car while traveling in excess of 50 m.p.h. The car, heading south, spun around and stopped in the northbound lane, where it was struck by the other vehicles.

On April 26 a Cook County Coroner's jury ruled the death was accidental. The jury said Flerlage "did not use the proper care and caution in the operation of his vehicle. However, we the jury believe the lack of said proper care and caution is not tantamount to criminal negligence."

Wheel tax opponents now hopeful of victory

Residents fighting Cook County's wheel tax on unincorporated areas are jubilant. They say a related Illinois supreme Court decision makes their case against the county airtight.

But a spokesman for Cook County Board Pres. George Dunne doesn't agree. He said the wheel tax isn't necessarily dead. No decision has been made yet if the county will continue the legal battle in support of the tax.

"We're happy as hell about the court decision. We have an airtight case and I don't think the county can afford to continue now," said Jack Gilligan, president of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA). The PHIA spearheaded the legal battle against the wheel tax, similar to charges for municipal vehicle stickers.

GILLIGAN was referring to an Illinois Supreme Court decision which came Tuesday on an Oak Park ordinance creating a special tax to finance a shopping center. Gilligan said Wednesday the case is similar because the justification for the wheel tax ordinance, like the Oak Park ordinance, is home rule power granted by the 1970 Illinois Constitution.

The high court turned down a request from Oak Park to rehear the issue of whether legislation was necessary for a home rule unit to create a special tax. The high court upheld its June 24 opinion and the opinion of a lower court that until the legislature acted to set procedure, a special tax could not be levied.

The wheel tax ordinance was declared unconstitutional in Cook County Circuit Court last August because Judge Raymond Sarnow said the tax does not provide any additional services for those taxed and thereby violates the home rule provision. The county has appealed the case to the Illinois Supreme Court and it is scheduled for a hearing June 15.

GILLIGAN said the Oak Park decision is important because the county did not have any enabling legislation for the wheel tax ordinance. The ordinance establishes a tax of $10 to $15 for cars with rates up to $95 per year for trucks.

Gilligan said the chances for the passage of enabling legislation are slim because several hours after the court decision the Illinois House of Representatives defeated two Senate bills that would have permitted the creation of special services tax.

Asst. States Atty. Paul Biebel, who is handling the case for the county, said he is not sure if the county will continue the appeal.

"It looks bad, but I don't know what we'll do," he said.

Frank Barth, an administrative assistant to Dunne, said the wheel tax "is probably still alive, if not well." He said that while the decision "may not be a boost, it doesn't necessarily knock it (wheel tax) out."

He said he and Dunne were disappointed that the enabling legislation for special taxes was defeated.

"The legislation means Cook County cannot create special service taxing districts for improvements," he said. "It also may prevent unincorporated area residents from improving their neighborhoods with a special tax."

Attempts to stop work of Colony project stalled

Citizen efforts to halt construction of the Colony project in Mount Prospect continued to be stymied this week at the village board level.

Norma Murauskis, 1826 Pheasant Tr., Tuesday night presented petitions with 934 signatures calling for the village board to reconsider its approval of the Oakton Street-Elmhurst Road project. The petitions also requested another public hearing on the development.

The village board unanimously approved annexation of and plans for the Colony April 26. The Colony is a multi-use development with 704 apartment units, a 236-room hotel, an office-finance center, a retail center and a gas station. Lincoln Property Co. will develop the 31-acre site.

The village board received the petitions but Mayor Robert D. Telchert said he would not accept any motion to reconsider the board's vote approving the project. "The only thing that could be done now would be a motion for disconnection," he said. A disconnection proceeding, if successful, would remove the property from the village.

DISCONNECTION, Telchert said, would probably not stop the project. He said it would then be built in the county or in Des Plaines.

Several statements contained in a preamble to the petitions contended the project is a "real and substantial threat to the health, safety, morals and general welfare" of the community.

The dangers mentioned in the preamble were a density higher than permitted by ordinance, incompatibility with existing uses and zoning of surrounding properties and the setting of a precedent that will allow further multi-family developments in the area.

Canoe marathon to be Sunday

The 16th annual Des Plaines River canoe marathon, sponsored by the Forest Preserve District of Cook County and Illinois Paddling Council, will be held at 9 a.m. Sunday at Oak Spring Road near Libertyville.

The marathon will climax Clean Streams Week, May 14-20. Gov. Daniel Walker, the board of trustees of the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago and the Cook County Board of Commissioners have proclaimed this week for the Cook County Clean Streams Committee. About 175 members of the committee serve without compensation patrolling the streams and their tributaries in the county seeking sources of pollution. The Forest Preserve District developed the committee 20 years ago and supplies office and staff.

About 1,000 contestants in 700 canoes will paddle downstream for 25 miles to the finish line at Dam 2, two and a half miles north of Des Plaines on the east side of River Road. George W. Dunne, president of the board of forest preserve commissioners, will present awards to those who qualify at 5 p.m. at Dam 2.

For further information call the forest preserve district headquarters, CO 1-8400, or Ralph Frese, SP 7-1489.

Committee calls for contribution to NW Center

Des Plaines human relations commission has called for a city contribution of $3,487 to Northwest Opportunity Center. Center officials requested the allocation in February to offset loss of $62,000 in federal aid last year.

The city council's health and welfare committee — chaired by Ald. George Olen (2nd) — will meet at 7:30 p.m. tonight to discuss the request. Olen resigned as chairman of the human relations commission Thursday. He was sworn in last Monday as an alderman after defeating incumbent Robert Sherwood in the city's April 17 election.

The commission stated that the center provides unique services here, including assistance to Spanish-speaking persons and that local poverty statistics support need for center services.

Bruce Newton, a center representative, told the commission that he favors assignment of a caseworker here to work with low and middle-income families. Center programs include food stamps, Operation Nutrition, housing assistance, counseling, legal aid referrals and employment aid.

The center, with an estimated operating budget of $130,000 this year, has requested about $32,000 from 14 area municipalities.

Cougars may build arena in Palatine

by MARCIA KRAMER

Owners of the Chicago Cougars professional hockey team have quietly initiated talks with Palatine officials about building an arena for the team on Northwest Highway, near the Arlington Park Race Track, it was learned yesterday.

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones confirmed that he was contacted last month by Jordon Kaiser, a part-owner of the franchise, and met with Kaiser and his attorney May 1.

Jones said that while Kaiser expressed an interest in two other, undisclosed sites in the Northwest suburbs, "I got the impression he was serious" about the Palatine location.

The likelihood of the Cougars' building a $20 million stadium in Palatine was disclosed in The Herald last July.

THE RECENT MEETING between Jones and Kaiser heightens the likelihood that Palatine will be the new home of the World Hockey Association team. An announcement is expected to be made this summer.

The Palatine Village Board will meet with Kaiser and his associates "within two to three weeks," according to Jones, for "a preliminary pooling of ideas."

The village president said that in his earlier meeting with Kaiser, "We discussed in generalities some of his ideas." Jones declined to elaborate.

Kaiser's brother Walter, also a part-owner of the team, told The Herald Wednesday night that the Palatine "seems like the most likely site" for the 18,000-seat arena.

The Kaisers own more than 40 acres north of the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club, which they built last year on Northwest Highway, between Wilke Road and Ill. Rte. 53.

The Cougar owners reportedly are attempting to buy another 16 acres stretching along Rte. 53 north of Northwest Highway. The land is currently owned by Polk Brothers, which had expressed interest a year ago in building condominiums on the site.

ANY PLANS TO build a sports arena would have to be approved by the village board because a special zoning use would have to be obtained.

Jones declined to discuss advantages or disadvantages of locating the arena in

Palatine, saying, "I don't know what all the ramifications are yet."

The village could expect substantial property and sales tax benefits from a major hockey arena. Attendance at Cougar games during the team's recently concluded first season in the Chicago Amphitheater, topped 200,000.

The Kaisers also have indicated that they would be interested in obtaining an American Basketball Association franchise to play in their new arena.

The desirability of the Palatine site is enhanced by its accessibility — Northwest Highway and Ill. Rte. 53 for automobile traffic and the Chicago and North Western Railway for train passengers. The depot being built at the race track is expected to be opened this fall at the latest.

Minibus a top priority for revenue sharing

by CAROL RHYNE

A $30,000 expenditure for a minibus transportation system will be a top priority item for this year's federal revenue-sharing money.

At a budget committee meeting Wednesday, Elk Grove Village trustees agreed to include transportation as one of nine federal revenue sharing expenses to be included in this year's budget, for a total of $304,000. Elk Grove Village is expected to receive about $600,000 in revenue sharing money by April 30, 1974.

Although no specific plans for the bus system were discussed, the committee indicated its first concern is an internal transportation system. Currently the trustees' transportation committee is considering proposals from Davidsmeyer Bus Service Inc., Elk Grove Village Cab Co. and Metron Systems Corp.

The trustees have promised the village will have its own mosquito abatement program to supplement the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District. The spraying equipment to fight the mosquitoes may be purchased with a $6,000 allotment from federal revenue sharing.

ANOTHER $7,000 expenditure from revenue sharing may be used to purchase the equipment for the village paramedic program. Medical and communications apparatus are needed for an ambulance firemen will use to give emergency medical care on the scene.

Flooding and sanitary sewage control also were named priority concerns of the trustees. A sanitary sewage improvement program for the Wildwood Road area would cost an estimated $200,000 of the revenue money. Last fall the residents in the area had persistent problems with storm water and sewage backing up into their homes.

The trustees said the sanitary lift station at Ridge Avenue also needs to be moved above ground and auxiliary power added to insure the pumps will operate during a power failure. This is estimated to cost $140,000.

The village may purchase television inspection equipment for sanitary sewers with $40,000. Village Mgr. Charles Willis said the equipment is necessary for proper maintenance of the sewage system.

Sidewalks for the health, safety and welfare of village residents were included in the top priority list. Sidewalks may be installed along Arlington Heights Road from Elk Grove Boulevard to Devon Avenue for $45,000 and adjacent to Elk Grove Park District land along Blesterfield Road for $6,000.

TRUSTEE MICHAEL Tosto suggested a guard wall be installed on the Kennedy Boulevard bridge over Salt Creek for $10,000.

The community blood program was considered for revenue sharing funds, but the trustees decided to take money for the blood program and a community health program from the general corporate budget. Through the community blood program, the blood needs of the village are covered by donations of village residents.

Other projects were suggested for federal revenue sharing, but were vetoed by the majority of the committee. One such proposal was a suggestion by Tosto and Trustee Ted Staddler to cover the drainage ditches along Elk Grove and Kennedy boulevards.

"The drainage ditches are an eyesore, a breeding ground for mosquitoes and a health and safety problem," Staddler said.

Village Pres. Charles Zettek said, "There's no safety problem — we haven't lost a life there yet. There's no health problem — no one has died of malaria yet." He said it would cost about $1½ million to cover the ditches, and there were worse places mosquitoes were breeding in the village.

Budget committee chairman Ron Chernick said federal revenue sharing will be discussed further with the general municipal budget.

Salt Creek Watershed gets U.S. OK

The U.S. Soil Conservation Service has approved the Upper Salt Creek Watershed program. But, two more agencies must act on the program before it is eligible to receive federal funds.

William Davey, SCS deputy administrator for watersheds, said the program has been sent to the Office of Management and Budget and the Council for Environmental Quality.

Included in the SCS program approval was the recently prepared report on the potential water pollution problems that may be caused by the construction of watersheds.

Davey said, "the program is moving along in an orderly fashion." He said since SCS has given final approval of the plan, "it is out of our hands."

The plan for the watersheds must now be filed with the environmental council. The agency will keep the plan for 30 days, during which no construction contract using federal money may be awarded.

AFTER THE 30-day filing period, the budget office will include funds for the program in the SCS budget for the next fiscal year.

The budget office must then submit the plan to both Congressional public works committees. The committees have to adopt a resolution authorizing the SCS to spend money on the project.

Congress will not appropriate any funds for the program, but can permit the SCS to use part of its total Congressionally approved funds for the project.

Federal funds for about half of the $26.5 million program are being requested.

The Upper Salt Creek Watershed work plan calls for six flood control structures to be built across the creek.

THE LARGEST of the structures will form a 589-acre lake in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve in unincorporated Elk Grove Township. The lake would be used for flood control and recreation.

Other smaller structures would be built in Palatine and Schaumburg.

The SCS final approval for the project marks the end of the shuffling and reviewing the plan has gone through among various federal agencies.

In Springfield, the legislature and governor's office have yet to agree on proposals for state-funded flood controls for the Salt Creek.

Village-on-the-Lake final phase started

The final phase of construction on the Village-on-the-Lake condominium development in Elk Grove Village is being started with three 5-story buildings on Leicester Road.

The three "Z-shaped" buildings will have 94 apartments each and share a 100-car garage. A swimming pool and tennis courts also will be added to serve the new apartments.

United Development Co. began building the condominiums in September 1970, and the first units were occupied in 1971. The project consists of one 3-story building and seven 5-story buildings with a total of 724 dwelling units. Apartments have one, two or three bedrooms.

The housing development is built around a 35-acre lake.

tomobile traffic and the Chicago and North Western Railway for train passengers. The depot being built at the race track is expected to be opened this fall at the latest.

CONSTRUCTION of a sports stadium in Palatine would have no effect on a planned $50 million convention complex at Arlington Heights Road and the Northwest Tollway, according to a spokesman for the convention center backers.

Included in the plans for the convention center was the possibility of a 20,000-seat indoor stadium.

But Daniel Friedlander, public relations manager for the proposed Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center, said yesterday if a stadium is built in Palatine it would not jeopardize the convention complex.

"We're primarily interested in building an exhibition hall and a hotel," he said. "If there's no demand for a sports stadium, we'll put off building one."

Can your child do these things?

Recent Illinois legislation calls for services to 3 and 4-year-old children with unique educational needs.

These needs include delays in speech and language development, social and emotional adjustment, and problems with vision, hearing, and physical development.

To help parents determine if their child should be screened for a program beginning in September, the following questions could indicate the child needs special help before he or she reaches kindergarten age.

Dist. 54 will hold screening from May 21 to June 5 for placement in the special program this fall. Parents may call Pat Burke, 529-4200, ext. 56 for an appointment.

Can your 3 to 4-year-old do these things?

1. Walk on a line.
2. Walk up and down stairs.
3. Throw a big ball.
4. Walk on tiptoes.
5. Touch thumb to each of the other finger tips on the same hand.
6. Cut paper with scissors.
7. Say at least one nursery rhyme, poem, or song from memory.
8. Whisper.
9. Brush teeth.

10. Wash hands unassisted.
11. Care for self at toilet.
12. Undress self.
13. Tell how simple objects are used (i.e., fork, crayon, ball).
14. Speak in three to four word sentences.
15. Copy drawings of horizontal lines, vertical lines, and circles.
16. Initiate own play.
17. Hold up fingers to signify age.
18. Count three objects.
19. Repeat three digits (say 1, 3, 9; 3, 5, 1).
20. Give an account of a recent event.
21. Tell his or her own sex.
22. Show five body parts: head, mouth, nose, ears, eyes, arms, hands, fingers, legs, feet, toes.
23. Be understood by playmates and adults.
24. Imitate movements (i.e., raise your arm; shake your head).
25. Listen attentively to short, simple stories.
26. Match some colors.
27. Play well with other children.
28. Solve simple play problems independently.
29. Show appropriate emotional responses (smiling, laughing, crying, anger).
30. Respond and relate to family friends and acquaintances without undue fear or shyness.

Early education for 'unique' needs

by JERRY THOMAS

Hurting himself into the haven of a teacher's open arms, three-year-old Paul shut his eyes tight and sought comfort.

He'd tried to speak, but the words were just not coming out. But someone was there, to hold him and let him try again later.

Paul and his classmates take part in an early education program in Schaumburg Township Elementary School Dist. 54, for children with "unique" needs.

IT'S NOT THE ordinary pre-kindergarten class.

Some children, such as Paul, did not speak when they first came. Others, spoke "gibberish" or had minor delays in language, said Jennie Swanson, early childhood specialist.

This is just one developmental delay that parents should look for in their preschoolers to determine if they belong in the early education program, she added.

Paul, drawn by the piano music and the singing of another teacher, rubbed his eyes open with a chubby fist and ran to sit again with the others.

AS EACH CHILD in turn was serenaded by the others and asked "How are you," some responded. Some answers were coaxing, but never forced and unusual behavior went unnoticed.

Paul's turn came — "I fine," he shouted out. His grin matched by his teacher's.

Now it was Vileen's turn. Pleased at first by the attention, she turned painfully shy and hid her head in her skirt.

Giggling as she peeked out, she said "I'm wet." Her skirt was damp from bathing a doll earlier.

No two classes are the same, said Miss Swanson, explaining "these very special children need very special personal attention."

"We believe each child is capable of learning and for children with special needs the most crucial years of developmental learning occur between birth and four," she said.

THE EARLY Development Program is designed to give children who need it, the extra help that will allow them to go into general education programs when they are kindergarten age.

ALTHOUGH recent legislation states schools must provide such help for children three and four, the practice is not new in District 54.

"We've been bootlegging kids in for years," said teacher Carol Cermak. "How can you turn down a parent who asks you for help?" she asked.

Miss Swanson said District 54 now has 35 youngsters in classes all taught by special education teachers working on their own time after regular classes. "While the legislation was being considered District 54 was developing its program and conducting sessions on a small scale on a volunteer basis," said Miss Swanson.

THE DISTRICT is now in the process of staffing the department and accepting registrations from parents who want help for their youngsters with unique needs.

Chicago Cougars of World Hockey Association

Pro hockey club weighing new stadium site in village

by MARCIA KRAMER

Owners of the Chicago Cougars professional hockey team have quietly initiated talks with Palatine officials about building an arena for the team on Northwest Highway, near the Arlington Park Race Track, it was learned yesterday.

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones confirmed that he was contacted last month by Jordan Kaiser, a part-owner of the franchise, and met with Kaiser and his attorney May 1.

Jones said that while Kaiser expressed an interest in two other, undisclosed sites in the Northwest suburbs, "I got the impression he was serious" about the Palatine location.

The likelihood of the Cougars' building a $20 million stadium in Palatine was disclosed in The Herald last July.

THE RECENT MEETING between Jones and Kaiser heightens the likelihood that Palatine will be the new home of the World Hockey Association team. An announcement is expected to be made this summer.

The Palatine Village Board will meet with Kaiser and his associates "within two to three weeks," according to Jones, for "a preliminary pooling of ideas."

The village president said that in his earlier meeting with Kaiser, "We discussed in generalities some of his ideas." Jones declined to elaborate.

Kaiser's brother Walter, also a part-owner of the team, told The Herald Wednesday night that the Palatine "seems like the most likely site" for the 18,000-seat arena.

The Kaisers own more than 40 acres north of the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club, which they built last year on Northwest Highway, between Wilke Road and Ill. Rte. 53.

The Cougar owners reportedly are attempting to buy another 16 acres stretching along Rte. 53 north of Northwest Highway. The land is currently owned by Polk Brothers, which had expressed interest a year ago in building condominiums on the site.

ANY PLANS TO build a sports arena would have to be approved by the village board because a special zoning use would have to be obtained.

Jones declined to discuss advantages or disadvantages of locating the arena in Palatine, saying, "I don't know what all the ramifications are yet."

The village could expect substantial property and sales tax benefits from a major hockey arena. Attendance at Cougar games during the team's recently concluded first season in the Chicago Amphitheater, topped 200,000.

The Kaisers also have indicated that they would be interested in obtaining an American Basketball Association franchise to play in their new arena.

The desirability of the Palatine site is enhanced by its accessibility — Northwest Highway and Ill. Rte. 53 for automobile traffic and the Chicago and North Western Railway for train passengers. The depot being built at the race track is expected to be opened this fall at the latest.

CONSTRUCTION OF a sports stadium in Palatine would have no effect on a planned $50 million convention complex at Arlington Heights Road and the Northwest Tollway, according to a spokesman for the convention center backers.

Included in the plans for the convention center was the possibility of a 20,000-seat indoor stadium.

But Daniel Friedlander, public relations manager for the proposed Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center, said yesterday if a stadium is built in Palatine it would not jeopardize the convention complex.

"We're primarily interested in building an exhibition hall and a hotel," he said. "If there's no demand for a sports stadium, we'll put off building one."

Watershed plan gets federal OK

The U.S. Soil Conservation Service has approved the Upper Salt Creek Watershed program. But, two more agencies must act on the program before it is eligible to receive federal funds.

Wynngate North project delayed

The Palatine Village Board this week postponed action on the proposed Wynngate North apartment complex until the village's master plan is updated.

The trustees voted 4-2 to delay consideration of the 208-unit project, which was given a favorable recommendation by the plan commission.

The postponement was recommended by trustee Bryan P. Coughlin Jr., who said the revised master plan may suggest a different use for the proposed site. The 8½-acre parcel is at the northeast corner of Wilson Street and Merrill Avenue (if extended).

The two minority trustees, Clayton W. Brown and Fred H. Zajonc, objected to the continuance. "We can't stop all building" until the master plan is revised, Zajonc said.

Regarding the Wynngate North project, he said that by approving the plans, the village can expand its tax base and also have half a mile of street improvements provided by the developers.

Noting the developers were before the plan commission for about eight months, and that engineering plans must still be reviewed by the village and Metropolitan Sanitary District engineers, Zajonc said, "Now we're going to defer, defer and defer, waiting for a so-called master plan that could take one month or three months or one year."

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said he hopes master plan revisions can be completed by Aug. 1.

The Wynngate North complex, proposed by developers Ralph and Ray Marotto, consists of two five-story Z-shaped buildings, with underground parking.

William Davey, SCS deputy administrator for watersheds, said the program has been sent to the Office of Management and Budget and the Council for Environmental Quality.

Included in the SCS program approval was the recently prepared report on the potential water pollution problems that may be caused by the construction of watersheds.

Davey said, "the program is moving along in an orderly fashion." He said since SCS has given final approval of the plan, "it is out of our hands."

The plan for the watersheds must now be filed with the environmental council. The agency will keep the plan for 30 days, during which no construction contract using federal money may be awarded.

AFTER THE 30-day filing period, the budget office will include funds for the program in the SCS budget for the next fiscal year.

The budget office must then submit the plan to both Congressional public works committees. The committees have to adopt a resolution authorizing the SCS to spend money on the project.

Congress will not appropriate any funds for the program, but can permit the SCS to use part of its total Congressionally approved funds for the project.

Federal funds for about half of the $20.5 million program are being requested.

The Upper Salt Creek Watershed work plan calls for six flood control structures to be built across the creek.

THE LARGEST of the structures will form a 589-acre lake in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve in unincorporated Elk Grove Township. The lake would be used for flood control and recreation.

Other smaller structures would be built in Palatine and Schaumburg.

The SCS final approval for the project marks the end of the shuffling and reviewing the plan has gone through among various federal agencies.

In Springfield, the legislature and governor's office have yet to agree on proposals for state-fund flood controls for the Salt Creek.

Developers sue for apartment zoning

Developers of a proposed 14.6-acre apartment complex in northwest Palatine Township will take Cook County to court June 6 in an attempt to get favorable zoning for the development.

Plans for the $12 million development, one-half mile south of Hicks Road on the west side of Rand Road, were outlined a year ago at a Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals hearing. Three months later, on the recommendation of the zoning board, Cook County commissioners denied the requested change from single family to apartment zoning.

According to the complaint filed with the Cook County Circuit Court, the developers are asking the court to reverse the county board's ruling on the rezoning.

Owners of the property hold a trust with the American National Bank and Trust Co. in Chicago. At last year's hearing, developer S. T. Herzel Amdur Jr. of Amdur Realty Agents, Chicago, described the complex with three Y-shaped buildings, each six stories tall.

No provisions for land or money donations to the elementary school district were offered by the developers, according to Joseph M. Kiszka, deputy superintendent of Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15.

Kiszka testified that it would cost the school district approximately $800 per year per pupil to educate the 110 children attending from the proposed apartment complex. Other developers have allotted either dollar donations or school sites to compensate for the tax lag school districts feel before they begin receiving tax revenue from new apartment dwellings.

Maintenance men, schools negotiating

Contract negotiations are currently under way between the 75 maintenance men in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 and district officials.

The two negotiating teams have met twice but have not really gotten down to specifics, according to Supt. Frank Whiteley. He said the maintenance crew is asking for salary increases over the entire salary schedule but dollar figures have not been discussed.

At the present time the salary schedule ranges from a low of $6,300 to a high of $9,950. Fringe benefits for the maintenance crew are comparable to those of the teachers, said Whiteley.

The maintenance crew employees belong to Local 11 Service Employees Union. They work district-wide year round making heating, plumbing, electrical and other specialized repairs.

NW Community is Trauma Center

Signs designating Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights as a "Trauma Center" will be posted soon along state highways throughout the Northwest suburbs.

Trauma cases are distinguished from other emergency situations because they involve more than one kind of bodily injury. Most severe injuries from auto accidents, for example, are classified as trauma cases.

Northwest was selected as a Trauma Center by the North Suburban Planning Association, a group of doctors and hospital officials responsible for coordinating medical care in the northern suburbs.

The hospital was chosen because of its staff, equipment and ability to handle serious emergency cases on a 24-hour basis, according to a spokesman at Cook County Hospital.

SIGNS MARKED with a large blue H and giving directions to Northwest Community Hospital, 800 W. Central Rd., will be posted along the Tollway, Northwest Highway, Rand Road, Dundee, Golf and Algonquin roads, said Jack Ryon, public relations director at the hospital.

Ryon said the number of emergency cases treated at Northwest so far this year is about 15 per cent ahead of last year when a record 38,000 patients were treated. The number currently is averaging over 115 daily.

The availability of 24-hour emergency doctor care and the success of the area's mobile intensive care program were other reasons why Northwest received the Trauma Center designation, he said.

The hospital's paramedic and ambulance heart attack treatments have attracted national attention and will be used as a model for a similar program to be started soon in Chicago, Ryon said.

Burglary ring suspect nabbed in Arlington Hts.

A man believed to be the leader of a burglary ring that has stolen thousands of dollars in goods and checks from Chicago and the Northwest suburbs has been arrested by Rolling Meadows police.

Police yesterday charged 22-year-old Michael King, 1616 Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, with burglary and forgery after a two-week joint investigation by Rolling Meadows and Arlington Heights police led to the recovery of several hundred blank checks, United States Savings Bonds, a rifle, and a television set found in King's possession.

The goods were found in the apartment of Dorothy Miraglia, 24, 4962 Algonquin, Rolling Meadows, with whom King's wife had been living. She has been charged with possession of stolen goods.

King is believed to be connected with a group of juveniles arrested Tuesday by Arlington Heights police for a series of burglaries near Hersey High School.

The youths reportedly staged the burglaries to pay gambling debts. They frequently played poker and other games for high stakes, according to Arlington Heights police.

ROLLING MEADOWS Det. Charles Smith said the investigation began two weeks ago when the Bank of Rolling Meadows reported a forged check, drawn on the account of St. Colette's Church, had been passed at the bank. Smith said a series of reports on similar incidents of the checks being passed were received. Smith said a party which had cashed one of the checks gave police a description fitting King.

Smith said King was traced through Arlington Heights police to Miss Miraglia's residence, where the stolen goods are being kept.

More than $4,000 in checks and savings bonds were found along with the rifle and black-and-white portable television, Smith said. The checks from St. Colette's Church had been stolen from a resident on Linden Lane who served as treasurer for church functions, he said.

Two other sets of checks from a Mount Prospect couple and a Rolling Meadows couple were also found, according to Police Chief Lewis Case. Only five checks had been cashed before the arrests were made, he said. They had been drawn solely on the church account at banks in Palatine, Lake Zurich, and Wauconda. All were for small amounts of $20 to $30, he said.

Case said the goods and checks had been stolen in three separate burglaries in Rolling Meadows in the past six months and in several others in Chicago and Arlington Heights. Most of the stolen merchandise has been recovered, he added.

CASE SAID King is believed to have worked with four juveniles arrested Tuesday by Arlington Heights police for a series of related burglaries there. Arlington Heights police said the youths were believed to be responsible for more than 30 thefts in recent months.

Police found the youths holding stolen goods which included shotguns, rifles, handguns, ammunition, jewelry, stereos, radios, tape recorders and coin collections. The goods were valued at an estimated $6,000, police said.

One of the youths is being held at the Audy Home in Chicago on other charges. The others were released to their parents, police said.

King was taken to Arlington Heights Court yesterday where he was ordered to appear in court June 1 with Miss Miraglia in connection with the case. Both have been released from custody on $5,000 bond.

Plan commission OKs construction for Gould Phase I

Final approval for the first phase of construction of the $30 million Gould Center in Rolling Meadows was recommended Wednesday by the plan commission.

The recommendation will be presented to the city council Tuesday for final confirmation.

The proposed center will house the world headquarters of Gould Inc., which manufactures electronic equipment, automotive parts, and the U.S. Navy's Mark 48 torpedo.

Plans for the center call for construction of a major office-sports complex on a 40-acre site south of the Northwest Tollway and east of the intersection of Ill. Rtes. 58 and 53. The first phase of development, which won the approval of the commissioners Wednesday, is scheduled for completion in November of this year.

ROY SOLFISBURG, an architect for the project, said Wednesday the first phase of construction will include the company's research and development building. Construction on the second phase should begin immediately after completion of the first phase, he said.

The major portion of the development, including a sports facility and a ten-story office tower, will be built in the second phase of construction, Solfisburg said. The sports facility will contain an olympic-size swimming pool, four indoor tennis courts, an indoor ice-skating rink, handball and squash courts and game rooms.

An outdoor pool and eight tennis courts also will be built on the site. Solfisburg has said management for the sports facilities has not been determined, but Gould expects to operate them on a "semi-public" basis.

The office tower, a four-story parking garage, a retention pond, and reflection pool also will be built during the second phase, which is expected to be completed 18 months after construction begins, Solfisburg said.

The third phase of construction calls for three additional office buildings to be built on tenant demand, he added.

"The intent is to create a park-like atmosphere," he told the commission. Solfisburg also said the company plans "no great lag between the continuous phases" of construction.

COMMISSIONERS HAD few questions about the project, which has been in the planning stages for several years. Clarification was asked on several points, however, including the type of signs that will be located on the property, planned landscaping, the installation of sidewalks around and within the site, and street lighting along Golf Road.

Solfisburg said arrangements had been made to comply with the commission's requirements in these areas. No building variations from city ordinances will be requested for any phase of the project, he added.

Gould plans to locate their international headquarters at the site. The company's headquarters presently are located in the International Tower Building, at 8550 W. Bryn Mawr Ave., in Chicago.

Estimates of projected sale tax revenue that will be returned to the city from the project have not been made. Present Gould sales amount to about $600 million yearly.

Pro hockey club leaning toward new stadium in Palatine

by MARCIA KRAMER

Owners of the Chicago Cougars professional hockey team have quietly initiated talks with Palatine officials about building an arena for the team on Northwest Highway, near the Arlington Park Race Track, it was learned yesterday.

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones confirmed that he was contacted last month by Jordon Kaiser, a part-owner of the franchise, and met with Kaiser and his attorney May 1.

Jones said that while Kaiser expressed an interest in two other, undisclosed sites in the Northwest suburbs, "I got the impression he was serious" about the Palatine location.

location.

The likelihood of the Cougars' building a $20 million stadium in Palatine was disclosed in The Herald last July.

THE RECENT MEETING between Jones and Kaiser heightens the likelihood that Palatine will be the new home of the World Hockey Association team. An announcement is expected to be made this summer.

The Palatine Village Board will meet with Kaiser and his associates "within two to three weeks," according to Jones, for "a preliminary pooling of ideas."

The village president said that in his earlier meeting with Kaiser, "We discussed in generalities some of his ideas."

Jones declined to elaborate.

Kaiser's brother Walter, also a part-owner of the team, told The Herald Wednesday night that the Palatine "seems like the most likely site" for the 18,000-seat arena.

The Kaisers own more than 40 acres north of the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club, which they built last year on Northwest Highway, between Wilke Road and Ill. Rte. 53.

The Cougar owners reportedly are attempting to buy another 16 acres stretching along Rte. 63 north of Northwest Highway. The land is currently owned by Polk Brothers, which had expressed interest a year ago in building condominiums on the site.

ANY PLANS to build a sports arena would have to be approved by the village board because a special zoning use would have to be obtained.

Jones declined to discuss advantages or disadvantages of locating the arena in Palatine, saying, "I don't know what all the ramifications are yet."

The village could expect substantial property and sales tax benefits from a major hockey arena. Attendance at Cougar games during the team's recently concluded first season in the Chicago

Amphitheater, topped 200,000.

The Kaisers also have indicated that they would be interested in obtaining an American Basketball Association franchise to play in their new arena.

The desirability of the Palatine site is enhanced by its accessibility — Northwest Highway and Ill. Rte. 53 for automobile traffic and the Chicago and North Western Railway for train passengers. The depot being built at the race track is expected to be opened this fall at the latest.

CONSTRUCTION OF a sports stadium in Palatine would have no effect on a planned $50 million convention complex at Arlington Heights Road and the Northwest Tollway, according to a spokesman for the convention center backers.

Included in the plans for the convention center was the possibility of a 20,000-seat indoor stadium.

But Daniel Friedlander, public relations manager for the proposed Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center, said yesterday if a stadium is built in Palatine it would not jeopardize the convention complex.

"We're primarily interested in building an exhibition hall and a hotel," he said. "If there's no demand for a sports stadium, we'll put off building one."

PTA council holds annual info meeting Wednesday

The Northwest Suburban Council (NSC) of PTAs will hold its annual school of information meeting on Wednesday at the Community Church of Rolling Meadows, 2720 Kirchoff Rd.

Learning and information workshops covering a variety of topics will get under way at 9:20 a.m. and will be held throughout the morning ending at 11:10 a.m. Among the different topics to be discussed in the workshops are preschool education, exceptional child education, education legislation, public relations, audio visual equipment and finance.

While the workshops are in progress, incoming and outgoing PTA presidents and school principals will be taking a tour of the recently completed Palatine Hills Junior High School.

NSC, the advisory and representative body for the 20 PTAs including those in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, will hold its annual meeting at 11:10 a.m. at the church. Supt. Frank Whiteley will be the featured speaker at a luncheon to follow at 11:45 a.m. The meeting will end with a skit portraying PTAs in every light except the one they would like to be in.

All interested PTA members and Dist. 15 parents are invited to attend the workshops and luncheon. Tickets for the luncheon are $2.25 and may be obtained by contacting Dea Graham, 359-0751.

School bands plan spring concert

A spring concert featuring the bands from five Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 schools will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Plum Grove School in Rolling Meadows.

The concert band, cadet band, intermediate band and jazz band at Plum Grove School will all be performing during the concert. The bands from Marion Jordan, Hunting Ridge, Stuart Paddock and Pleasant Hill schools, all in Palatine, will also be performing.

Orientation meeting set for new freshmen

Students who will be freshmen at Rolling Meadows High School this fall are invited to bring their parents to an orientation meeting at the school this Saturday.

The morning will begin with a general meeting at 9:30 a.m. Following the meeting student council members will conduct tours of the building.

Maintenance men, schools negotiating

Contract negotiations are currently under way between the 75 maintenance men in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 and district officials.

The two negotiating teams have met twice but have not really gotten down to specifics, according to Supt. Frank Whiteley. He said the maintenance crew is asking for salary increases over the entire salary schedule but dollar figures have not been discussed.

At the present time the salary schedule ranges from a low of $6,300 to a high of $9,950. Fringe benefits for the maintenance crew are comparable to those of the teachers, said Whiteley.

The maintenance crew employees belong to Local 11 Service Employees Union. They work district-wide year round making heating, plumbing, electrical and other specialized repairs.

"EXAGGERATED OBJECTS," in the form of B-zooka bubble gum and a flashlight battery, are displayed by Diane Doretti, left, and Jami Levins, students at Plum Grove School in Rolling Meadows. The original stuffed toys were made in Frank Feely's art class with material and stuffing.

City health unit urges new 3-year rabies shots for pets

The Rolling Meadows Board of Health is considering recommending to dog owners that they not inoculate their pets with a new three-year rabies vaccine.

Kenneth Johnson, board president, said yesterday the board may make the recommendation if talks with local veterinarians indicate the new vaccine may run the risk of causing the disease rather than preventing it.

Johnson said the board discussed the matter at a meeting Wednesday. Concern for the effectiveness of the three-year vaccine stems from reports of several isolated cases around the country of dogs contracting rabies after being given the new vaccine. Johnson said the new vaccine uses a small amount of live rabies bacteria to inoculate the animal, while the standard one-year vaccine does not.

Dogs which have contracted rabies from the vaccine may have been given too strong a dosage or may have been in a weakened condition when they were inoculated, Johnson said.

He stressed that there have been few instances of dogs becoming rabid from the vaccine, but added, "Our concern is that it could become a problem."

There have been no cases of rabies reported in the city or in Cook County in recent years, but Johnson said even one case could constitute a danger. He said the board would consult with vets in the area to learn more about the vaccine and would advise residents of any dangers of the vaccine in the city newsletter.

MOTORISTS TRAVELING on Palatine Road have inquired as to why the derrick near the Windsor Drive intersection has been erected. The derrick is assisting in emergency repairs for an Arlington Heights well. Several months ago, impure water was detected entering the well, forcing public works officials in that village to take it off the water supply. A special sleeve is being built for the well to block the source of the contaminated water, at its point of entry. Arlington Heights officials hope to have the repairs made by summer.

NW Community is Trauma Center

Signs designating Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights as a "Trauma Center" will be posted soon along state highways throughout the Northwest suburbs.

Trauma cases are distinguished from other emergency situations because they involve more than one kind of bodily injury. Most severe injuries from auto accidents, for example, are classified as trauma cases.

Northwest was selected as a Trauma Center by the North Suburban Planning Association, a group of doctors and hospital officials responsible for coordinating medical care in the northern suburbs.

The hospital was chosen because of its staff, equipment and ability to handle serious emergency cases on a 24-hour basis, according to a spokesman at Cook County Hospital.

SIGNS MARKED with a large blue H and giving directions to Northwest Community Hospital, 800 W. Central Rd., will be posted along the Tollway, Northwest Highway, Rand Road, Dundee, Golf and Algonquin roads, said Jack Ryan, public relations director at the hospital.

Ryan said the number of emergency cases treated at Northwest so far this year is about 15 per cent ahead of last year when a record 38,000 patients were treated. The number currently is averaging over 115 daily.

The availability of 24-hour emergency doctor care and the success of the area's mobile intensive care program were other reasons why Northwest received the Trauma Center designation, he said.

The hospital's paramedic and ambulance heart attack treatments have attracted national attention and will be used as a model for a similar program to be started soon in Chicago, Ryan said.

Too costly to meet zoning requirements

Strawberry condominiums won't be built in village

Strawberry One, a condominium development designed for singles and young marrieds, will not be built in Schaumburg.

Howard Farkas, president of Environmental Developers, Inc., a Denver-based firm, said the high costs of meeting Schaumburg's zoning requirements prohibited the project at this time.

The development was planned by the firm for 43 acres at the southeast corner of Schaumburg and Meacham roads, property owned by Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher and Chicago entrepreneur Jack M. Pritzker.

In a March hearing, inadequate parking and insufficient open space were the zoning board's primary objections. The development, as planned, would exceed the 50 per cent ground coverage guideline and also not provide the required two parking spaces for every one bedroom unit.

The zoning board also said setbacks from the roads must be increased to allow for future widening.

"We were not able to get the density to warrant the price of the land and units," Farkas said. A similar project is now under construction in North Chicago, he said. A unit in Schaumburg would cost several thousand dollars more than its counterpart in North Chicago, he added.

"In order to conform to the zoning board requirements, we would have had to cut the number of units down so critically as to make the units cost more than our potential buyers could afford," he said.

The developer, known as the Heather Ridge Development Co. in Illinois, began to design a different complex, with underground parking, and mid-rises blended in with the two story "Strawberry" units. But Farkas said that kind of development takes longer to build, and units would not have been ready for sale until mid-1974.

"We already have three projects for production on 1974. So this would have conflicted with developments slated already," Farkas said.

Strawberry One was to contain 720 units, a density of 16 units per acre. The townhouse style units would have contained an upstairs loft area, which the zoning board felt could be used as an extra bedroom. Counting the loft as a bedroom increased the number of parking spaces needed.

The difficulty in obtaining mortgage financing also was a factor in abandoning Strawberry One, Farkas said. The higher the cost of the unit, he said, the more reluctant savings and loan institutions are to provide 95 per cent or even 80 per cent financing.

"We're not scratching Schaumburg off our list. We liked the community and the cooperation of both the mayor and the zoning board. Someday we'd like to be back," Farkas said.

Hoffman Estates firemen find union going tough

No apparent headway was made Wednesday by firefighters in Hoffman Estates in their attempts to gain recognition for a union.

Despite more than six hours of discussion, which lasted well into the early hours of yesterday morning, the firefighters emerged from the marathon discussion claiming nothing had changed.

The firemen have attempted since mid-1971 to obtain recognition from the trustees of the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District. All of the full-time firemen are affiliated with Local 2061 of the International Association of Firefighters, AFL-CIO.

While most of the discussion was carried on behind closed doors, Union Pres. Richard Cordova petitioned the board to authorize an election supervised by the Illinois Department of Labor.

THE BOARD accepted Cordova's petition, but made no comment and took no formal action.

Cordova had said before the meeting that if recognition was not granted, the union might attempt to file charges against one of the district's senior officers. The union attempted to file the charges with the board, but the board refused, stating charges of misconduct could not be filed by a group of men.

Cordova did not detail the charges to the press following the meeting.

FIRE DISTRICT attorney Francis Kelley said the board has taken a "less said about the union matter, the better" position on the situation.

Board Pres. William Brilliant said he anticipates no new announcements concerning the union situation.

Cordova said he would call a general membership meeting of the union's 18 members within a week to decide what action should be taken.

He said he also plans to consult an attorney and a staff representative from the union's national offices.

"It seems to me that if the Village of Hoffman Estates can recognize a union for the public works employees and a bargaining agent for the police, we could be recognized," Cordova said.

THE VILLAGE, which is a separate taxing body from the fire district, recently recognized a fledgling chapter of the American Federation of States, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO to represent public employees. The village police department is represented by the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) in its salary negotiations with the village. The FOP is not affiliated with any national labor organizations.

Fire district officials have said it would "not be in the best interest of the taxpayers to recognize a firefighters union."

St. Hubert student art display Sunday

Art work by students at St. Hubert's School, Flagstaff Lane, Hoffman Estates, will be on display at the school from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday.

Painting, weaving, paper crafts, mobiles and other art forms will be on display in classrooms and hallways, a school spokesman said this week.

Special emphasis is being placed on projects of the Junior High art electives classes, a program initiated at the school this year.

New emergency phone numbers announced

A number of new emergency and public phone numbers will go into effect Sunday in Hoffman Estates.

The new number for reporting fires in the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District will be 882-2121.

The new emergency number for the Hoffman Estates Police Department will be 882-3131.

The Hoffman Estates Park District will be receiving calls at 885-7500.

The new phone number for Conant High School in Hoffman Estates will be 885-4366.

A phone company spokesman said that while old numbers will not be effective after Sunday, special operators will be on duty to transfer calls. He said all new area numbers, which total more than 15,000, will be listed in the new telephone directory which is now being delivered. The changes occur as part of the new Bell System switching station becoming operational in Hoffman Estates.

THE LIFE OF the Indian family was depicted in a play a "papoosa" in the play. The production told of the written and presented by 60 second graders at Collins Indians' customs and way of life. School in Schaumburg. Kim Paul brought her doll to be

by JERRY THOMAS

To the beat of the tom-toms 60 whooping Indians ran into the room circled the watchers and dropped crosslegged onto the floor.

"When I acted like a little Indian in school, my teacher tanned my hide," chortled Frank Williams, second grader Robbie Sakola's grandfather. "Now, look at that little stinker. Robbie can have fun and learn at the same time."

As Robbie and his classmates padded quietly out of the Collins School auditorium after putting on a play about Indian life, one mother sighed and said "Boy, I think I'll make him wear moccasins all the time."

Second grade teachers Miss Carol Schwarz and Mrs. Marty Roehm said the idea for an Indian show all started when the students began a study of Indian life. Instead of just reading about how they lived, the kids thought it would be fun to make Indian costumes, hunting shields and teepees, said Miss Schwarz.

"In order to do that you've got to read how it was done; so we went along with the kids idea," she added.

THE COLLINS Indians read up on the old ways and came up with some improvisations of their own. Cardboard and construction paper took the place of skins.

Most of the girls' Indian dresses were made of burlap but each dress had its own original design and decorations.

Waterpaints were used instead of greasepaint. "That was a dumb idea," said Donna Wiseman. "When the paint dried on my cheeks it started pinching me," she said as she scrubbed it off. "I'll bet the Indians never washed it off."

Jerry Schelberger was puffing hard as he scrubbed at the red paint on his bare chest. "It's the dancing that tired me out," he said. "All us boys are out of shape. Boy, those Indians weren't as soft as we are."

JERRY CONFIDED that a lot of the dancing in the show was for our parents. It made the play more colorful you know. But really Indians hunted and fished a lot and worked hard all day just to stay alive."

Jacki Sunde, couldn't wait to take off her Indian dress. "It itches," she said. "I wouldn't want to be a girl in an Indian village."

"They had to work many days to make a dress and it had to last them for a long time. I'd rather go to Woodfield and buy lots of pretty things," said Jacki. "But now I know why the Indians decorated their clothes with beads and berries."

"Us girls like to look different."

JULIE SCHOETTLER decided to be an Indian squaw and fixed her favorite doll a sling so she could take her to class as her "papoosa."

It sounded like fun but after carrying her on my back all day I'm tired, and I bet Indian mothers got tired too," she said.

Gary Troha said the best part of school this year was "learning how the Indians lived." They learned things by doing them and didn't have to go to schools. "Wish I could have been there," he said.

Chicago Cougars of WHA

Pro hockey club leaning toward stadium in Palatine

by MARCIA KRAMER

Owners of the Chicago Cougars professional hockey team have quietly initiated talks with Palatine officials about building an arena for the team on Northwest Highway, near the Arlington Park Race Track, it was learned yesterday.

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones confirmed that he was contacted last month by Jordon Kalser, a part-owner of the franchise, and met with Kalser and his attorney May 1.

Jones said that while Kalser expressed an interest in two other, undisclosed sites in the Northwest suburbs, "I got the impression he was serious" about the Palatine location.

The likelihood of the Cougars' building a $20 million stadium in Palatine was disclosed in The Herald last July.

THE RECENT MEETING between Jones and Kalser heightens the likelihood that Palatine will be the new home of the World Hockey Association team. An announcement is expected to be made this summer.

The Palatine Village Board will meet with Kalser and his associates "within two to three weeks," according to Jones, for "a preliminary pooling of ideas."

The village president said that in his earlier meeting with Kalser, "We discussed in generalities some of his ideas." Jones declined to elaborate.

Kalser's brother Walter, also a part-owner of the team, told The Herald Wednesday night that the Palatine "seems like the most likely site" for the 18,000-seat arena.

The Kalser's own more than 40 acres north of the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club, which they built last year on Northwest Highway, between Wilke Road and Ill. Rte. 53.

The Cougar owners reportedly are attempting to buy another 16 acres stretching along Rte. 53 north of Northwest Highway. The land is currently owned by Polk Brothers, which had expressed interest a year ago in building condominiums on the site.

ANY PLANS TO build a sports arena would have to be approved by the village board because a special zoning use would have to be obtained.

Jones declined to discuss advantages or disadvantages of locating the arena in Palatine, saying, "I don't know what all the ramifications are yet."

The village could expect substantial property and sales tax benefits from a major hockey arena. Attendance at Cougar games during the team's recently concluded first season in the Chicago Amphitheater, topped 200,000.

The Kalser's also have indicated that they would be interested in obtaining an American Basketball Association franchise to play in their new arena.

The desirability of the Palatine site is enhanced by its accessibility — Northwest Highway and Ill. Rte. 53 for automobile traffic and the Chicago and North Western Railway for train passengers. The depot being built at the race track is expected to be opened this fall at the latest.

CONSTRUCTION OF a sports stadium in Palatine would have no effect on a planned $50 million convention complex at Arlington Heights Road and the Northwest Tollway, according to a spokesman for the convention center backers.

Included in the plans for the convention center was the possibility of a 20,000-seat indoor stadium.

But Daniel Friedlander, public relations manager for the proposed Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center, said yesterday if a stadium is built in Palatine it would not jeopardize the convention complex.

"We're primarily interested in building an exhibition hall and a hotel," he said. "If there's no demand for a sports stadium, we'll put off building one."

Negotiations with village progressing

Negotiations apparently are progressing in an orderly fashion between the Village of Hoffman Estates and two groups of employees, police and public works personnel.

Although the village and the employee groups have all agreed not to discuss details of the contract proposals being considered, Village Mgr. George Longmeyer yesterday reported on the status of bargaining with the two groups.

Representatives of the public works employees, who have formed a chapter of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, were to present their proposal for economic contract items today.

The village already has received and has been studying proposals for non-economic items, which Longmeyer said deals with working conditions and procedures. While some discussion of the proposals might begin today, Longmeyer said the meeting, scheduled for 5 p.m., would be brief.

No actual discussions have been held yet, said Longmeyer, explaining the board has thus far only reviewed and begun evaluating the non-economic provisions. Longmeyer, Village Atty. Edward Hofert and Trustee Dyrle Rathman are representing the village in the talks. William Bunta, staff representative for the national union, and local union officials are representing the employees.

Representatives of the Fraternal Order of Police have submitted a proposal, which trustees have reviewed. The village representatives have made a counter proposal on some aspects of the FOP package, said Longmeyer, and still are considering other portions. A tentative meeting, which will be the fourth negotiating session for police, is planned for Tuesday.

Mayor Virginia Hayter and Trustees Bruce Lind and Dyrle Rathman are representing the village in talks with police, while three members of the FOP are bargaining for the employees.

Girl, 14, gets $200 fine, probation in car-bus crash

The young driver of a car that struck a loaded school bus in February pleaded guilty to several traffic violations Wednesday and was fined $200 and placed on probation.

The accident, which injured 35 students, five of them seriously, occurred

Feb. 27 at Wise and Roselle roads in Schaumburg.

The 14-year-old driver of the car, Elizabeth Wojcik, of 1432 S. Sunset, Schaumburg Township was convicted on charges of driving without a license and leaving the scene of an accident. A third charge of improper lane usage was dropped. In addition to the fine, she was placed on probation for three years.

The accident occurred when Miss Wojcik lost control of the car she was driving and struck the bus head on. Most of the students on the bus were from Hoffman Estates and were bound for classes at Jane Addams Junior High School.

After the early morning collision, Miss Wojcik left the scene of the accident and boarded another bus near her home to attend classes at Schaumburg High School, where she is a student.

Her parents later took her to Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village for treatment. She was charged with the traffic offenses later in the day.

Most of her injuries were not serious. Those who were seriously injured were passengers in Miss Wojcik's auto. They were hospitalized for about a week following the accident.

Your dog look like 'Snoopy'?

Prizes for the dog that looks the most like the cartoon character "Snoopy" will highlight a dog contest Saturday in Schaumburg.

The contest, sponsored by Rival Pet Foods, will begin at 10:30 a.m. at the Woodfield Commons Shopping Center, Golf and Meacham roads, Schaumburg.

In addition to the Snoopy look-alike, prizes will be awarded in several other categories, including greatest personality, longest ears, longest tail, greatest manners and the greatest costume.

The contest, called the "Rival-Snoopy Greatest Doggy Contest," will be held in the parking lot across from the Jewel Food Store in the shopping center.

All dog owners 16 years and younger will be eligible for the contest.

Every entrant will receive a prize and grand prize winners will appear on the popular television show Bozo's Circus.

The contest will be supervised by the National Dog Training School of Chicago.

Park district to offer class in belly dancing

The exotic art of belly dancing heads the list of new recreation programs to be offered by the Schaumburg Park District this summer.

Belly dancing has become one of the most popular programs in the Chicago area, according to Duane Hosmer, Schaumburg recreation superintendent.

"This is a new and stimulating way to shape up and slim down," he added.

Registration for this program and more than 50 other summer activities will begin on June 4 at the Meineke Community Center, 220 E. Weathersfield Way.

Brochures describing class schedules and age requirements for each program have been mailed to all park district residents, Hosmer said.

The district will offer a day camp program in the Busse Woods again this year. Basic outdoor living skills, such as fire-making and compass reading, will be taught.

THE TWO-WEEK camp programs will conclude with a special overnight session.

Fishing, canoeing, plastic model building, judo and gymnastics are among other programs that will be offered for area youngsters.

Adults will be able to learn the basics of tennis, golf, fencing and a host of other summer activities.

A number of special events, ranging from trips to baseball games to a Hawaiian luau, are being planned for both adults and youngsters.

Park officials hope that the programs will offer a summer of fun for area residents.

"We have designed this year's program with an effort to provide something for everyone," Hosmer said.

Watershed plan gets federal OK

The U.S. Soil Conservation Service has approved the Upper Salt Creek Watershed program. But, two more agencies must act on the program before it is eligible to receive federal funds.

William Davey, SCS deputy administrator for watersheds, said the program has been sent to the Office of Management and Budget and the Council for Environmental Quality.

Included in the SCS program approval was the recently prepared report on the potential water pollution problems that may be caused by the construction of watersheds.

Davey said, "the program is moving along in an orderly fashion." He said since SCS has given final approval of the plan, "it is out of our hands."

The plan for the watersheds must now be filed with the environmental council. The agency will keep the plan for 30 days, during which no construction contract using federal money may be awarded.

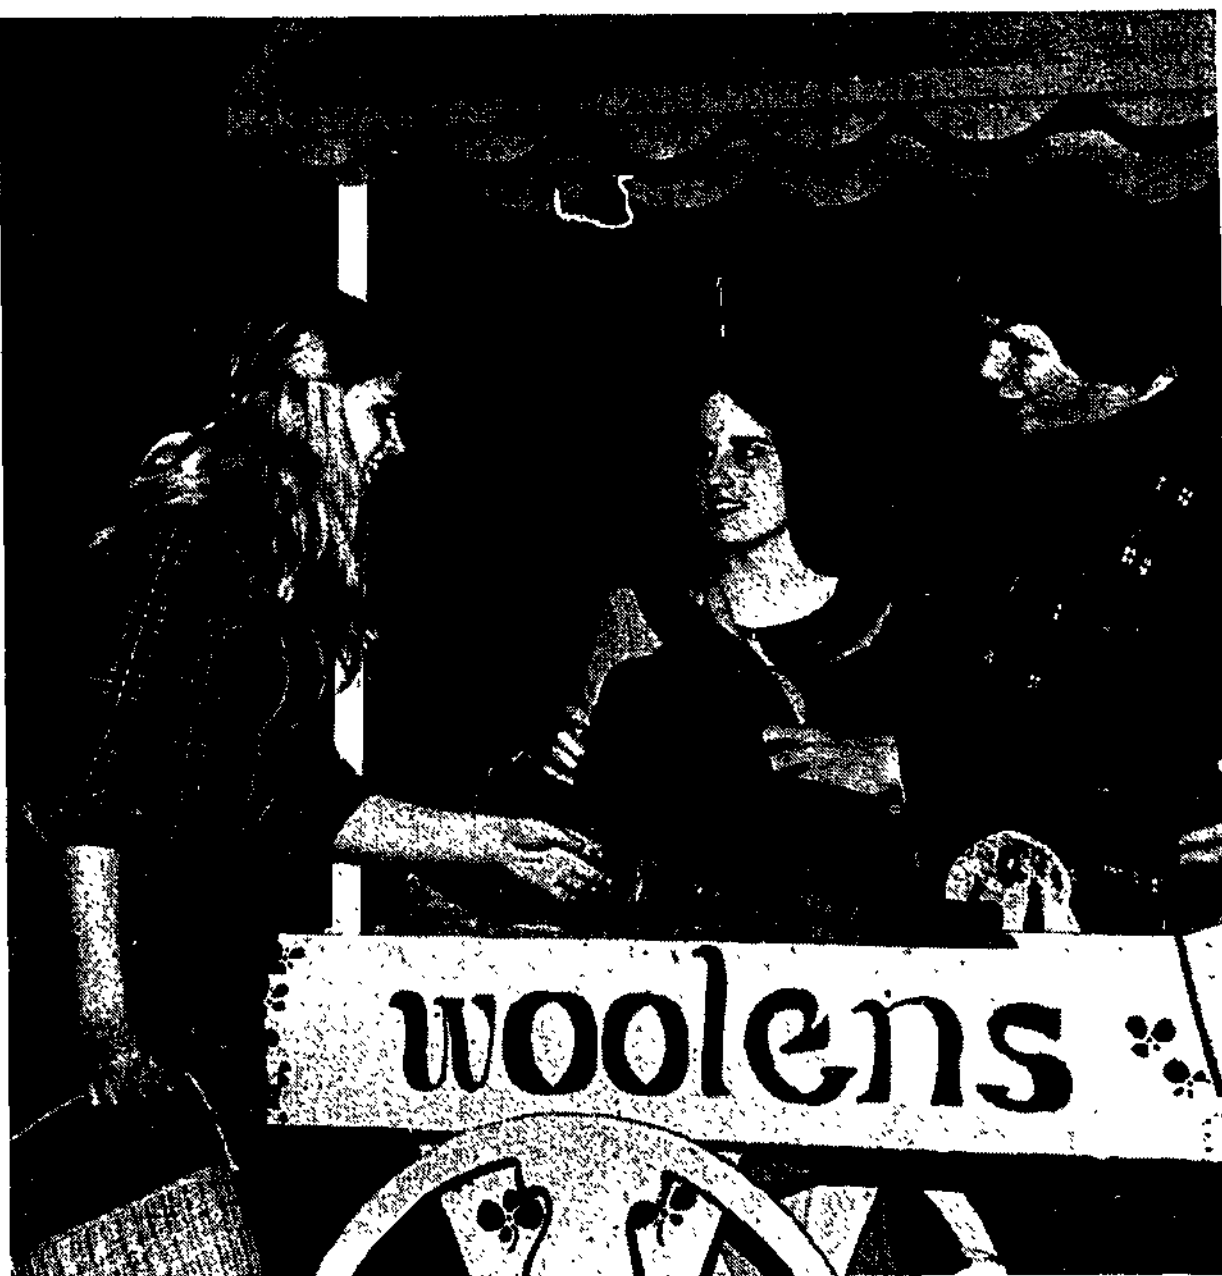

AFTER THE 30-day filing period, the budget office will include funds for the program in the SCS budget for the next fiscal year.

The budget office must then submit the plan to both Congressional public works committees. The committees have to adopt a resolution authorizing the SCS to spend money on the project.

Congress will not appropriate any funds for the program, but can permit the SCS to use part of its total Congressionally approved funds for the project.

Federal funds for about half of the $26.5 million program are being requested.

The Upper Salt Creek Watershed work plan calls for six flood control structures to be built across the creek.

INSPECTING SCOTTISH WOOLENS for the Conant High School play "Brigadoon" are Linda Williams, Robin Sebastiani and Dave Harshberger. The musical production will have its final weekend of performances today and tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the school's cafeteria. Tickets will be sold at the door and are $1.50 for adults and $1 for students.

Need GOP backing for regional center

Transit plans depend on Legislature

by PAT GERLACH
A News Analyst

The development of the Elgin-O'Hare Expressway and a regional transportation center in Schaumburg could hinge on a show of strength from Republicans in the Illinois General Assembly.

The $80 million expressway is at stake if funding for the Secondary Freeway Plan, originated by former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, is scrapped at the hand of Gov. Dan Walker.

The effect on the transportation center would be loss of a major link in a facility to provide access to rail, air, bus, taxi car and truck traffic. The center, to be located near Schaumburg Airport and Schaumburg-Center Industrial Park, on the village's south side, was conceived by Mayor Robert O. Atcher.

Completion in 1976 of the proposed Elgin-O'Hare route, a 19-mile corridor, is the basis for preliminary planning for the air and rail center in southern Schaumburg.

ALTHOUGH GOV. Walker is believed to oppose the secondary freeway plan, no announcement of cancellation has been made.

State Rep. Donald L. Tolten, R-Hoffman Estates, confirmed this week that there has been no counter proposal to the secondary plan.

But he anticipates a fight when appropriations bills are presented to the legislature this month. He agreed that a strong show of support for the proposed road construction is likely.

Appropriations should reach the legislature by June 1 "which doesn't leave much time for consideration before the present session ends," he indicated.

"The Elgin-O'Hare project is three years from completion, but to the best of my knowledge most of the right-of-way has been cleared," Tolten said.

However, no construction timetable has been set for the project, according to Ralph C. Wehner, of the Illinois Department of Transportation (DOT).

"We anticipate completion of final plans some time late next year but an estimated timetable for construction cannot be formulated until then, dependent, of course, on approval and release of funds," he said.

The project is "only one of a number of freeways on which plans must be evaluated," he added.

A spokesman for Atcher this week said the mayor has received no updated information on the proposed expressway. Village officials are still under the impression that completion was planned three years from now, it was added.

The project was approved by the Illinois Division of Highways and the Federal Highway Administration in January, 1970. It also was included in the Northeastern Illinois Plan Commission (NIPC) five-year plan adopted in October, 1971.

THUS FAR, village planning for the transportation center has begun only in the area of exploring need for a village-owned airport.

For the past 17 months, an airport committee has been preparing for a professional feasibility study to determine the worth, from an environmental and economic standpoint, of a village owned and operated air strip.

The study, to be done by Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, a Chicago engineering consulting firm, would be completed in two phases. Initially, need, and economic projections would be investigated and, if that phase is posi-

Mount Prospect favorable to PHIA incorporation

Mount Prospect probably will consent to the incorporation of Prospect Heights, village officials have indicated.

At a meeting yesterday with members of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA), several village officials indicated they could see no major problems with agreement to incorporation. Mayor Robert Teichert and Trustee Patrick Link have also said they could see no major obstacle to the consent.

The PHIA, which for two years has met with legal obstacles in trying to incorporate Prospect Heights as a city, has asked Mount Prospect for its consent to the incorporation. While Arlington Heights and Wheeling have objected to the proposal from its beginning, Mount Prospect has remained silent on the issue.

The PHIA has lost legal battles to incorporate because state law requires consent of neighboring municipalities. There are bills pending in the Illinois General Assembly that would remove the approval requirements, but the PHIA prefers to get the consent.

"I THINK the village board is concerned about one area," Village Mgr. Robert Eppley told PHIA officials. "If we can sell them on that area, I feel the village board won't argue about it."

The trustees and Teichert are concerned about an area of about 300 homes that borders Mount Prospect. They want to know if this group wants to be annexed to Mount Prospect or become part of Prospect Heights. Currently the area, bounded by Euclid Avenue, Rte. 83, Camp McDonald Road and Wheeling Road, is in the proposed city boundaries of Prospect Heights.

The PHIA, which says the homeowners want to stay in Prospect Heights, has agreed to take a survey of the homeowners.

If they want to be annexed to Mount Prospect and are serious about it, fine. Then they're out of our boundaries," said Jack Gilligan, PHIA president. "We want to make sure we don't buy any negative votes."

BEFORE Prospect Heights can be incorporated, a referendum on the issue must be held.

Gilligan also alleviated official's con-

House OKs incorporation go-ahead

A bill that would clear the way for the incorporation of Prospect Heights was passed yesterday in the Illinois House of Representatives.

That announcement came last night at the annual town meeting of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA). About 150 residents attending the meeting applauded the news.

Jack Gilligan, elected PHIA president last night for his second year, said the House vote was 107-0. The bill now goes to the Illinois Senate for a vote.

The bill, sponsored by State Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, clarifies the state's statutes on incorporation. The bill states that an area of 7,500 or more residents does not need the consent of neighboring municipalities to become a city. The proposed city of Prospect Heights has about 13,000 residents, according to Gilligan.

THE CURRENT approval requirements have stymied PHIA's attempts to incorporate for two years. Arlington Heights and Wheeling have objected to the incorporation, and their objections have been upheld in court.

The PHIA has appealed the court's decision to the Illinois Supreme Court, saying the statutes are unclear and do not require consent. The court once refused to hear the case, but the association has petitioned again for a hearing.

Currently, the group is meeting with Arlington Heights, Wheeling and Mount Prospect officials in attempt to get their approval for incorporation.

Gilligan said last night that if the PHIA gets consent from the three villages, the association would try to incorporate Prospect Heights as a village instead of a city.

He said the PHIA originally chose to become a city because members felt the statutes did not call for consent.

However, requirements for a village definitely include the municipalities' approval. A city must remain under a four-square mile area. A village must be larger. "If we were a village, we'd probably have to go outside Prospect Heights for our borders," Gilligan said.

Before Prospect Heights incorporates residents must approve the move in a referendum.

"We're not trying to force incorporation down the throats of Prospect Heights residents," Dick Wolf, PHIA Vice President said. "We're just trying to give them the right to make that decision."

cerns about part of the Rob Roy Golf Course on Euclid Avenue being included in the proposed city.

"We would go along with whatever Mount Prospect recommends on it. If they want us to leave it out, then we'll leave it out," he said. "We included it because we were afraid it would go totally multi-family."

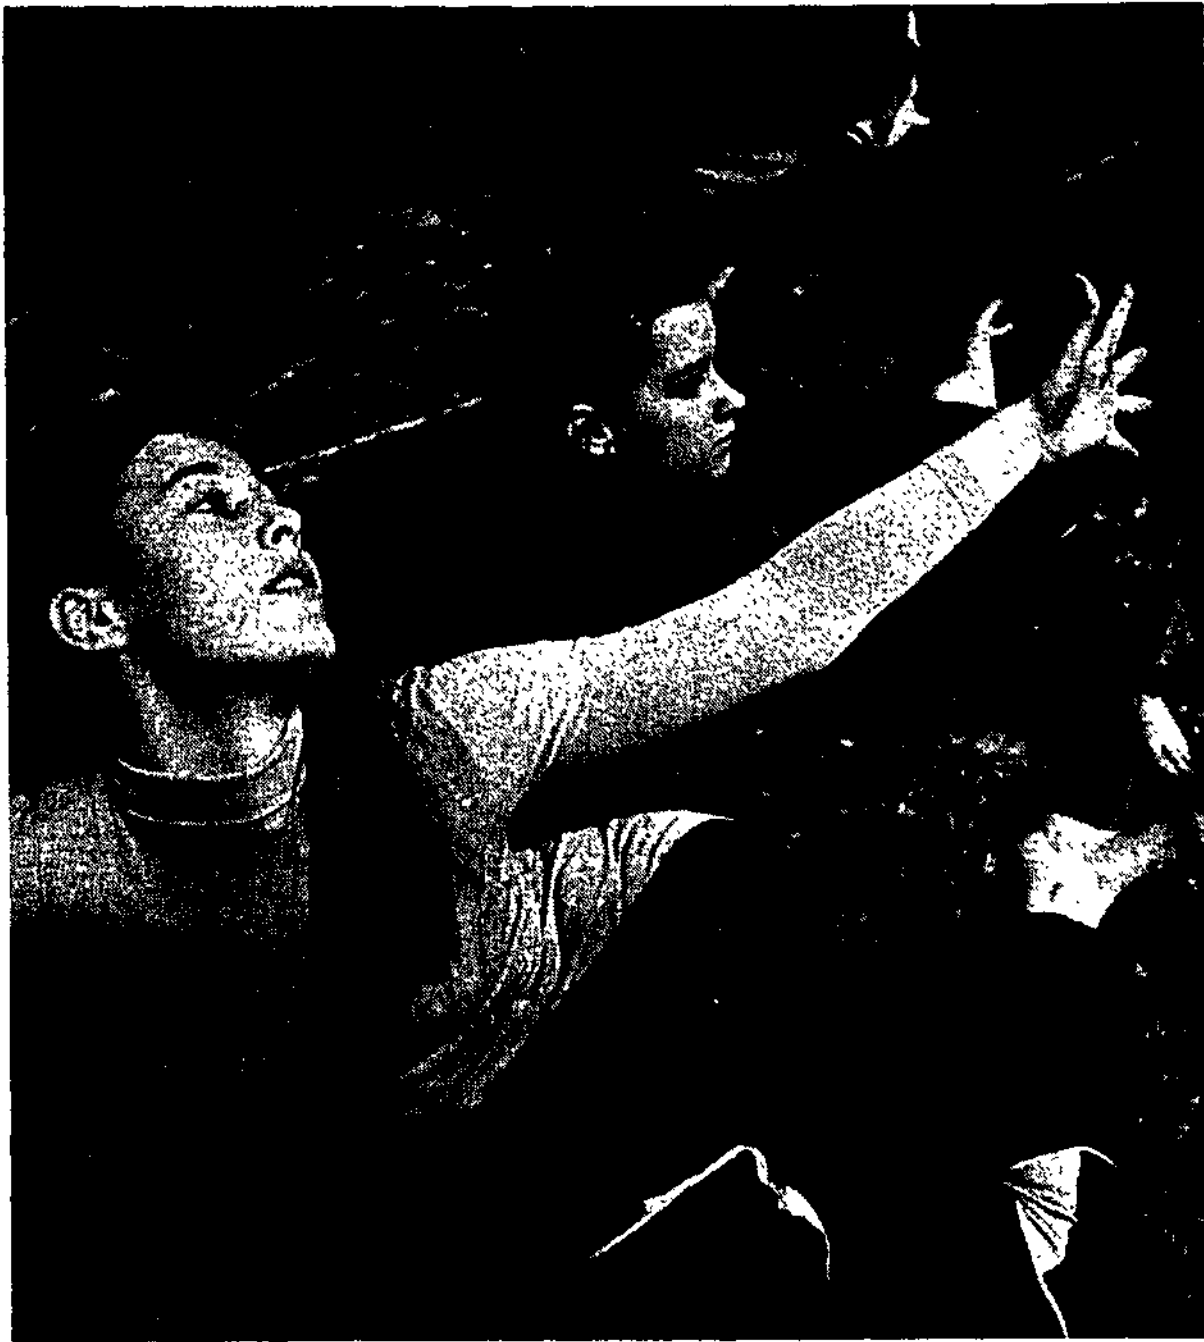

The Mount Prospect Village Board has continued to show an interest in annexing the property although it has twice turned down requests for annexation and rezoning for apartment-type use.

Public Works Director David Creamer and Deputy Eng. Natalie Karney said yesterday they could see no problems with the incorporation. "I think it's a great idea," Creamer said.

Eppley and his staff have been instructed to make a recommendation on the consent issue to the village board. The planning commission will also hold public hearings on the matter.

Link, a proponent of annexation of the New Town section to Mount Prospect (in 1971), said he thinks Prospect Heights residents should have "the right to choose their own destiny." He said, however, that the PHIA should poll all residents adjacent to Mount Prospect to see if they want to annex or incorporate. He pointed specifically to the area north of the Rob Roy Golf Course, which includes Grego Court and Leon Lane.

DANCERS LIKE Beverly Schroeder, right, and Terri Boxleitner will be performing in the annual Prospect High School orchestra concert tomorrow and Saturday at 8 p.m. The program will include dances based on tapes of undersea sounds as well as a dance based on the character of Lady Macbeth. The program will be in the school's theater. Tickets are $1.

Des Plaines seeks Elmhurst-Oakton

Des Plaines will begin involuntary annexation of 21.8 acres near Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street this week.

City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach mailed copies of the annexation proposal to city council members and the Elk Grove Rural Fire Protection District yesterday.

The annexation will include two sections of the corner in southwest Des Plaines:

- More than 21 acres of residential property on the northwest Elmhurst-Oakton corner;
- Less than an acre on the southwest corner that currently is occupied by a gasoline station.

The properties are surrounded by Des Plaines on three sides and Mount Prospect on the west edge. The move will straighten Des Plaines' west border along Elmhurst Road, Mrs. Rohrbach said.

The city council is expected to approve the annexation June 4.

State statute requires notification 10 days before ordinance approval to the fire district. Legal notification of the annexation will be published Thursday.

The area includes Lincoln Avenue, Ridge Lane and Short Terrace.

Nurses Club president

The Private Duty Nurses Club recently met and elected Loretta Sullivan president.

The club was formed 10 years ago for private duty nurses in the Northwest suburban area. All members are registered nurses, available for home or hospital care, and service all hospitals in the area.

Persons seeking private duty nursing or registered nurses interested in membership should call 298-3546 for further information.

School budget needs 'one more meeting'

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 School Board has "virtually completed" its review of the proposed $14.2 million 1973-74 school year budget, according to James Ervitt, district superintendent.

Ervitt said, "One more meeting (of the budget committee) should wrap it up."

The only point still undetermined in the budget is the exact amount of the 1973-74 school year contract for the district's teachers. Negotiations are now going on between the teachers and the district.

Board member Judy Zanca said the budget committee is not expected to meet again until the teacher's negotiations have been settled.

Ervitt said the only parts of the budget still to be reviewed by the committee — such as the transportation fund and the bond and interest fund — are "routine and the board has little to say about them."

After the review is completed, copies of the tentative budget will be printed and placed on public display. The board will also hold public hearings on the budget.

When the display period is over and the hearings have been conducted, the board will then adopt the budget as the official one for the coming school year.

Even though the proposed budget is higher than the current $13.4 million one, the tax rate for the district is expected to drop, mainly due to increased assessed valuation.

The proposed budget will be part of the 1973 real estate tax bill, which is paid in the spring of 1974.

Charity Fair Day tomorrow at plaza

Highlight of the day will be the 1 p.m. crowning of the fair queen and princess. Seven girls are competing for the princess honor and 14 women are contending for the queen's crown.

The fair is a combination giant bazaar and country fair. Booths will sell baked goods, home-made jams and jellies, handicrafts, white elephants and games.

More than 80 mother volunteers were guests of honor this week at Fairview School's Honor Night. Fairview teachers planned the event as a way of thanking mothers who assist in the reading, learning disabilities, picture lady, library, arts and crafts, and school club programs.

Each volunteer received a corsage with colored streamers designating her area of service. Barbara Winfield, a past Fairview PTA president and volunteer worker, received a dozen roses for her special contributions to the school over the years.

"This evening summarized the good feeling I have about our school," said Vera Miller, PTA president. "The teachers appreciate the parents' help and the parents appreciate the teachers."

New officers for the 1973-74 school years were also installed. They include Luann Weber, president; Gloria Simonson, first vice president; Reenie Schmitz, second vice president; Paula Charron, treasurer; and Marion Frey, secretary.

PLANS for forming a new "55 years and up" group will be discussed Tuesday afternoon at Northwest Covenant Church, 302 N. Elmhurst Ave. Anyone from the community interested in such a group is cordially invited to attend, according to its organizers.

Julie Honert, a member of the church, will show slides of her recent European trip. A coffee hour will follow. The program begins at 1 p.m.

Cougars may build arena in Palatine

by MARCIA KRAMER

Owners of the Chicago Cougars professional hockey team have quietly initiated talks with Palatine officials about building an arena for the team on Northwest Highway, near the Arlington Park Race Track, it was learned yesterday.

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones confirmed that he was contacted last month by Jordon Kaiser, a part-owner of the franchise, and met with Kaiser and his attorney May 1.

Jones said that while Kaiser expressed an interest in two other, undisclosed sites in the Northwest suburbs, "I got the impression he was serious" about the Palatine location.

The likelihood of the Cougars' building a $20 million stadium in Palatine was disclosed in The Herald last July.

THE RECENT MEETING between Jones and Kaiser heightens the likelihood that Palatine will be the new home of the World Hockey Association team. An announcement is expected to be made this summer.

The Palatine Village Board will meet with Kaiser and his associates "within two to three weeks," according to Jones, for "a preliminary pooling of ideas."

The village president said that in his earlier meeting with Kaiser, "We discussed in generalities some of his ideas."

Jones declined to elaborate.

Kaiser's brother Walter, also a part-owner of the team, told The Herald Wednesday night that the Palatine "seems like the most likely site" for the 18,000-seat arena.

The Kaisers own more than 40 acres north of the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club, which they built last year on Northwest Highway, between Wilke Road and Ill. Rte. 53.

The Cougar owners reportedly are attempting to buy another 16 acres stretching along Rte. 53 north of Northwest Highway. The land is currently owned by Polk Brothers, which had expressed interest a year ago in building condominiums on the site.

ANY PLANS TO build a sports arena would have to be approved by the village board because a special zoning use would have to be obtained.

Jones declined to discuss advantages or disadvantages of locating the arena in Palatine, saying, "I don't know what all the ramifications are yet."

The village could expect substantial property and sales tax benefits from a major hockey arena. Attendance at Cougar games during the team's recently concluded first season in the Chicago Amphitheater, topped 200,000.

The Kaisers also have indicated that they would be interested in obtaining an American Basketball Association franchise to play in their new arena.

The desirability of the Palatine site is enhanced by its accessibility — Northwest Highway and Ill. Rte. 53 for automobile traffic and the Chicago and North Western Railway for train passengers. The depot being built at the race track is expected to be opened this fall at the latest.

CONSTRUCTION of a sports stadium in Palatine would have no effect on a planned $50 million convention complex at Arlington Heights Road and the Northwest Tollway, according to a spokesman for the convention center backers.

Included in the plans for the convention center was the possibility of a 20,000-seat indoor stadium.

But Daniel Friedlander, public relations manager for the proposed Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center, said yesterday if a stadium is built in Palatine it would not jeopardize the convention complex.

"We're primarily interested in building an exhibition hall and a hotel," he said. "If there's no demand for a sports stadium, we'll put off building one."

Accidents blamed on detour at Rte. 83

Two automobile accidents attributable to the Ill. Rte. 83 detour in the heart of Mount Prospect occurred during Wednesday evening's rush hour. No one was hurt in either accident.

Joseph Cadavid, Jr., 35, of 202 N. Wilham St., told Mount Prospect police, "I didn't see any stop sign at Emerson and Central." Because he did not see the sign, Cadavid's car collided with an auto driven by Axel T. Christiansen, 65, of Wood Dale, police said.

Blood donor day tomorrow

The May blood donation day in Mount Prospect will be tomorrow from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Lions Park Recreation Center, 411 S. Maple St.

Enough blood to meet the needs of all village residents is now guaranteed under the North Suburban Blood Center's blood assurance program. However, to keep that guarantee in effect, an average of 150 pints a month must be donated on behalf of the village.

That number of pints each month would add up to 1,800, or the 4 per cent figure of the population that is required. So far, 233 pints have been given for the village. Because 225 pints were needed to start the program, only 8 pints count toward the 1,800 to be collected by next May.

Persons wishing to donate blood should call the village hall at 392-6000 to set up an appointment.

Cadavid was charged with failure to stop for a stop sign and was given a June 27 Mount Prospect court date by police.

The stop sign was one of two temporary signs on Central Road to make a four-way stop at Emerson Street. The stop signs were put in because the traffic detoured from Rte. 83 between Central and Busse Avenue is being rerouted over to Emerson Street for that one block stretch.

THAT PORTION of Rte. 83 (Main Street) blocked off by the detour is being repaved. This is part of the project to improve the Central Road Intersection with Rte. 83.

The Cadavid accident occurred at 6:43 p.m. At 5:16 p.m., two cars eastbound on Central collided. Gordon Barse, 19, of 807 E. Central Rd., told police he was unable to stop in time when he saw the car in front of him stop suddenly. The other car was driven by Thomas E. Wagner, 26, of 1200 E. Algonquin Rd., Schaumburg. No tickets were issued by police.

These two accidents occurred on the detour's second day. Construction spokesman says the detour could last up to four weeks.

A police department source said yesterday the traffic flow has been watched at Central and Emerson and so far it has been judged smooth enough so that a patrolman will not be stationed there to direct rush-hour traffic.

A spokesman for Police Chief Bert Giddens yesterday issued a reminder for motorists that parking is prohibited along Busse Avenue between Main and Emerson streets, and along Emerson from Busse Avenue to Central Road. Parked cars, he said, will be ticketed in that area for the duration of the detour.

Northwest Community named 'Trauma Center'

Signs designating Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights as a "Trauma Center" will be posted soon along state highways throughout the Northwest suburbs.

Trauma cases are distinguished from other emergency situations because they involve more than one kind of bodily injury. Most severe injuries from auto accidents, for example, are classified as trauma cases.

Northwest was selected as a Trauma Center by the North Suburban Planning Association, a group of doctors and hospital officials responsible for coordinating medical care in the northern suburbs.

The hospital was chosen because of its staff, equipment and ability to handle serious emergency cases on a 24-hour

Jackson reelected park board chief

Robert Jackson, of 513 S. Hi-Lusi Ave., has been reelected president of the Mount Prospect Park District Board of Commissioners.

National sales manager for Montgomery Ward Inc., Jackson was first elected to the park board in 1955. He has served as president for five years.

Also elected is vice president of the board was Roland Becker, 201 We-Ga Trail, formerly served as board secretary. He is the president of Cereal By-Products Inc., a feed and grain company in the Chicago Board of Trade.

Serving as secretary to the board this year will be Elmer Blasco. Elected to the park board in April, Blasco is the editor and publisher of "Selling Sporting Goods," the magazine of the National Sporting Goods Association.

Teas set for moms, kindergartners

Teas for future kindergartners and their mothers will begin next week in Prospect Heights School Dist. 23.

The teas, for children who will be in kindergarten next fall, will include a tour of the school and a meeting with the principal and teacher. Prospective kindergartners will also attend a kindergarten session. The school nurse will be available to answer questions.

The first tea will be at John Muir School, Oak Street and Drake Terrace, at 9:30 a.m.; for those with last names beginning with A to K, the tea will start at 9:30 a.m.; for those with last names from L to Z, the tea will begin at 12:30 p.m.

The tea at Betsy Ross School, 700 N. Schoenbeck Rd., will be May 24 at 1:15 p.m. At Eisenhower School, Camp McDonald and Schoenbeck roads, the tea will be May 30 at 9:30 a.m.

basis, according to a spokesman at Cook County Hospital.

SIGNS MARKED with a large blue H and giving directions to Northwest Community Hospital, 800 W. Central Rd., will be posted along the Tollway, Northwest Highway, Rand Road, Dundee, Golf and Algonquin roads, said Jack Ryon, public relations director at the hospital.

Ryon said the number of emergency cases treated at Northwest so far this year is about 15 per cent ahead of last year when a record 35,000 patients were treated. The number currently is averaging over 115 daily.

The availability of 24-hour emergency doctor care and the success of the area's mobile intensive care program were other reasons why Northwest received the Trauma Center designation, he said.

The hospital's paramedic and ambulance heart attack treatments have attracted national attention and will be used as a model for a similar program to be started soon in Chicago, Ryon said.

Chicago Cougars of World Hockey Association

Pro hockey club weighing new stadium site in area

by MARCIA KRAMER

Owners of the Chicago Cougars professional hockey team have quietly initiated talks with Palatine officials about building an arena for the team on Northwest Highway, near the Arlington Park Race Track, it was learned yesterday.

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones confirmed that he was contacted last month by Jordon Kaiser, a part-owner of the franchise, and met with Kaiser and his attorney May 1.

Jones said that while Kaiser expressed an interest in two other, undisclosed sites in the Northwest suburbs, "I got the impression he was serious" about the Palatine location.

The likelihood of the Cougars' building a $20 million stadium in Palatine was disclosed in The Herald last July.

THE RECENT MEETING between Jones and Kaiser heightens the likelihood that Palatine will be the new home of the World Hockey Association team. An announcement is expected to be made this summer.

The Palatine Village Board will meet with Kaiser and his associates "within two to three weeks," according to Jones, for "a preliminary pooling of ideas."

The village president said that in his earlier meeting with Kaiser, "We discussed in generalities some of his ideas." Jones declined to elaborate.

Kaiser's brother Walter, also a part-owner of the team, told The Herald Wednesday night that the Palatine "seems like the most likely site" for the 18,000-seat arena.

The Kaisers own more than 40 acres north of the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club, which they built last year on Northwest Highway, between Wilke Road and Ill. Rte. 53.

The Cougar owners reportedly are attempting to buy another 16 acres stretching along Rte. 53 north of Northwest Highway. The land is currently owned by Polk Brothers, which had expressed interest a year ago in building condominiums on the site.

ANY PLANS TO build a sports arena would have to be approved by the village board because a special zoning use would have to be obtained.

Jones declined to discuss advantages or disadvantages of locating the arena in Palatine, saying, "I don't know what all the ramifications are yet."

The village could expect substantial property and sales tax benefits from a major hockey arena. Attendance at Cougar games during the team's recently concluded first season in the Chicago Amphitheater, topped 200,000.

The Kaisers also have indicated that they would be interested in obtaining an American Basketball Association franchise to play in their new arena.

The desirability of the Palatine site is enhanced by its accessibility — Northwest Highway and Ill. Rte. 53 for automobile traffic and the Chicago and North Western Railway for train passengers. The depot being built at the race track is expected to be opened this fall at the latest.

CONSTRUCTION OF a sports stadium in Palatine would have no effect on a planned $50 million convention complex at Arlington Heights Road and the Northwest Tollway, according to a spokesman for the convention center backers.

Included in the plans for the convention center was the possibility of a 20,000-seat indoor stadium.

But Daniel Friedlander, public relations manager for the proposed Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center, said yesterday if a stadium is built in Palatine it would not jeopardize the convention complex.

"We're primarily interested in building an exhibition hall and a hotel," he said. "If there's no demand for a sports stadium, we'll put off building one."

Plans for $2 million office, shopping center announced

Plans to develop a four-story, $2 million shopping and office building at the southeast corner of Davis and Evergreen streets in downtown Arlington Heights were announced yesterday.

The luxury office building, to be called the Environmental Concepts Center, will feature a glass-enclosed central mall with direct access to sheltered on-site parking.

Shoppers and visitors will ride glassed-in elevators from the main mall to three levels of shopping and office terraces, according to Wallace W. Bates, president of Environment Concepts Ltd.

The mall and a second-floor mini-lounge will be landscaped with planting and sculpture.

THE CENTER will provide about 32,000 square feet of office and commercial space available for purchase. Work on the building is expected to begin sometime this fall.

Space in the new building will be sold under a condominium form of ownership, rather than rented to tenants as in most other office buildings.

"The condominium concept for commercial and office space provides the owner with equity build up, tax and appreciation advantages," Bates said.

Construction of the building will begin after a portion of the floor space has been sold, said Thomas Fennel, a member of the architectural firm of Kroeber, Jensen, Fennel and Bates, Arlington Heights, which designed the building.

Bates said he believes the condominium office center represents a "progressive direction" in the development of the downtown business district. The building will combine the advantages of shopping center parking with the convenience of a downtown location, he said.

THE BUILDING site, just west of Winkelman's Bike Shop on Davis Street, is already zoned for business development. It is now a parking lot.

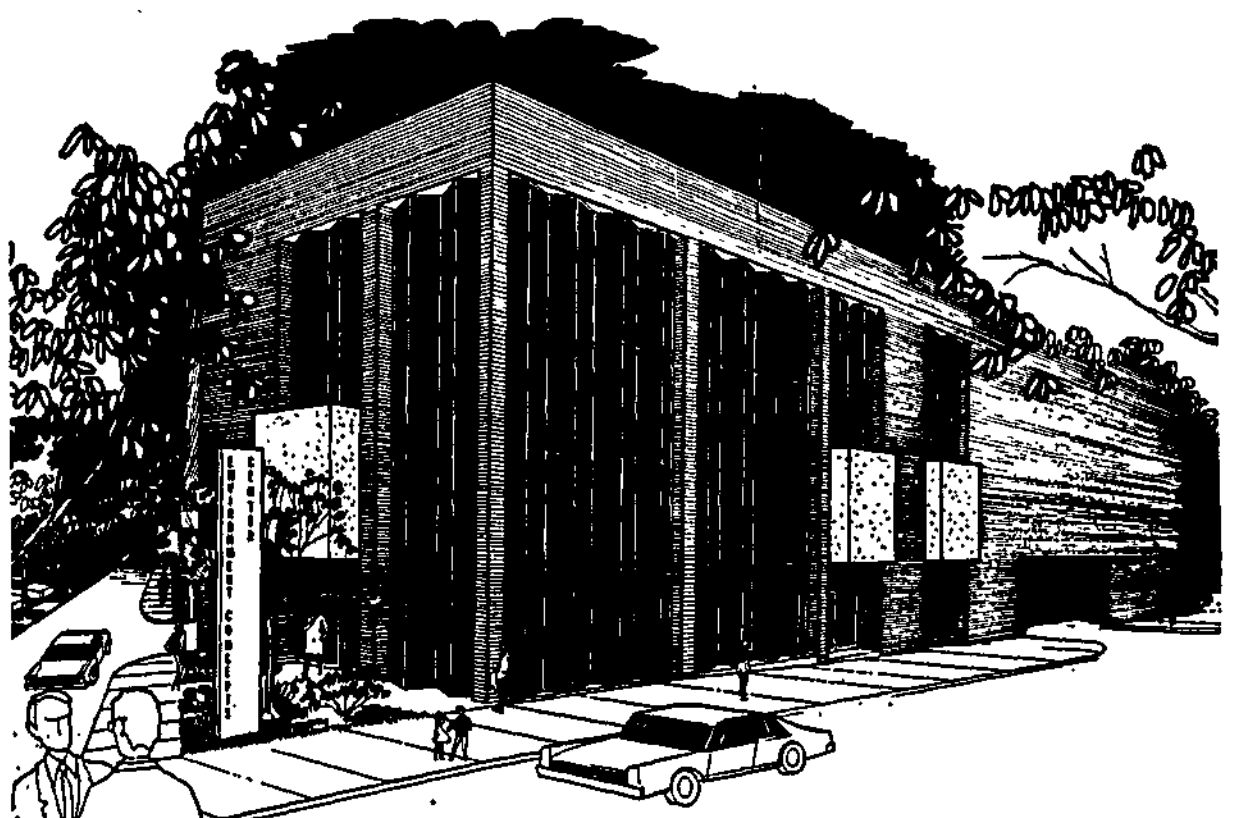

If built, the Environment Concepts Center would be the first major new building put up in the central business district in several years.

Fennel said he thought the brick and glass structure would prove an aesthetic as well as an economic asset to the downtown area.

Preventive dentistry display at library

An informative display on preventive dentistry will be at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library Sunday through June 3.

Carmelita L. Valha, a dental nurse and Arlington Heights resident, will be at the library lobby Tuesday, from 7 to 9 p.m. to answer questions on preventive dentistry and on the dental assistant profession.

A NEW OFFICE building, Environment Concepts Center, is being planned for the southeast corner of Davis and Evergreen streets in downtown Arlington Heights. The new $2 million, four-story brick and glass building will contain about 32,000 square feet of office and commercial floor space for sale under a condominium form of ownership. Construction is expected to begin later this fall. The building was designed by the Arlington Heights architects, Kroeber, Jensen, Fennel and Bates.

NW Community is Trauma Center

Signs designating Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights as a "Trauma Center" will be posted soon along state highways throughout the Northwest suburbs.

Trauma cases are distinguished from other emergency situations because they involve more than one kind of bodily injury. Most severe injuries from auto accidents, for example, are classified as trauma cases.

Northwest was selected as a Trauma Center by the North Suburban Planning Association, a group of doctors and hospital officials responsible for coordinating medical care in the northern suburbs.

SIGNS MARKED with a large blue H and giving directions to Northwest Community Hospital, 800 W. Central Rd., will be posted along the Tollway, Northwest Highway, Rand Road, Dundee, Golf and Algonquin roads, said Jack Ryon, public relations director at the hospital.

Ryon said the number of emergency cases treated at Northwest so far this year is about 15 per cent ahead of last year when a record 36,000 patients were treated. The number currently is averaging over 115 daily.

Curbs sought for rowdiness at parks

THE HERALD

Friday, May 18, 1973

Section 1 —3

Officials from the Arlington Heights Park District and the police department will meet next week to explore solutions to policing problems in the parks.

Recommendations from the meeting will be forwarded to the village board.

The meeting will be the result of complaints aired at a joint session of the park commissioners and the village this week, when park officials charged that village police often appeared to be less than enthusiastic about enforcing laws within the parks.

According to Kay Muller, park commissioner, most of the problems come from youths congregating in the parks during the summer.

"All the youth problems are dumped on the parks when school's out," she said. Drinking, carousing, harassment and drug use by youngsters were common complaints from residents around major parks," she said.

"THESE WERE heard at a meeting with residents around Pioneer Park, but I suspect they would apply to any of the major parks," she said.

She said yesterday, "This is a long-standing problem (park policing). Perhaps it is more attitudinal than anything else. But, for a number of years the police have had the feeling that this is not their problem."

She explained that although the park district is a separate government body from the village, the police are charged with law enforcement within the parks.

Park Director Thomas Thornton agreed with Mrs. Muller.

"There's a misunderstanding among some policemen that they don't have the authority to enforce park district ordinances," he said.

This was not, he added, a police policy, but rather a reaction he has received from policemen on the street.

Police Capt. Maurice English said all members of the force were aware of their responsibility to enforce the law inside parks.

Mrs. Muller discussed the situation with Capt. English by telephone yesterday, and the planned meeting is an outgrowth of that conversation.

DURING THE conversation, Mrs. Muller said it was decided that studies would be made to ascertain the cost and manpower needs of the police to adequately supervise the parks.

One possibility under consideration is the placing of a juvenile officer, similar to high school police counselors, in the six major parks during prime use hours in the summer.

According to Mrs. Muller, the officer would provide dual benefits of counseling and a visual deterrent to possible violations.

"I would like to see six Ron Kathes (a high school police counselor) in the parks. It would certainly help take care of our problems in the summer," she said.

A major consideration in providing the police counselors is money.

"The park district can't pay for them. We simply do not have the necessary funds to pay for the policemen. I am aware that School District 214 shares the cost, but we just can't afford it," she said.

Capt. English said of the conversation, "Mrs. Muller told me what the district would like to have in the way of policemen. But, it's still a matter of just so many men with so many hours. Those extra counselors are going to have to be paid for some way."

MRS. MULLER said, "I told Capt. English to assume that money was no problem. I know money is a consideration, but you should find the most idealistic solution and then pare it down to what is acceptable."

The recommendations from the meeting next week will then be forwarded to the village board for possible funding and action.

"The village could assume some of this burden. Policing the parks is within the village domain and these kids do live in the village. The village has the resources to better deal with this," she said.

Mrs. Muller said the police are doing the best they can with the men and money available, but village officials are often unaware of the extent of the situation.

"Frank Palmatier (village trustee) said he didn't know things were this bad, and he lives right around Pioneer Park," she said.

Mrs. Muller indicated that she will also meet with Trustee Alice Harms to work on specific proposals to be presented to the village board.

Parks swim team seeking members

Coach Don Andersen has issued a call for competitive swimmers and divers for the Arlington Heights Park District swim team.

Tryouts will be held in Olympic Pool on June 5, 7, 12 and 14, from 5:00 p.m. until 6:30 p.m.

There is no preregistration. There will be an $8 fee for those making the team.

The team competes in the Northern Illinois Swimming Conference. The first meet is scheduled for June 23 against Mt. Prospect.

Registration is now being taken for swimnastics classes to be held Monday nights from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the Olympic pool. Classes begin June 18.

Swimnastics are group gymnastic routines done in the pool.

Colleen Ambrosio is the instructor. For more information, call 253-0620.

Dedication of log cabin set Sunday

The public is invited to attend the formal dedication of a pioneer log cabin, a recently completed addition to the Historical Society of Arlington Heights, 500 N. Vail, Sunday at 2 p.m.

The cabin is an authentic replica of the type of cabin in which William H. Dunton and his bride were married in 1845. Dunton was the son of the village founder, Asa Dunton.

The historical reconstruction was funded by gifts from Mrs. Daisy Paddock Daniels, and by proceeds from her book, "Prairieville, U.S.A." Village residents and students also contributed to the building.

Virgil K. Horath, museum executive director, Harold Best, Charles Misek, Richard Boeger, Verne Becker and Carl Scholow assembled the cabin.

Dedication ceremonies will mark the first local commemoration event of the United States of America Bicentennial. The Arlington Heights "Carolers" and a German band will provide musical entertainment.

The event also will mark the first public release of bicentennial commemorative coins of the Village of Arlington Heights. A series of four designs in numbered limited issue are being minted in 14 Kt. gold on silver, fine silver and solid antique bronze. The complete series will be issued over the four-year national celebration period from 1973-1976. The 1973 medal will feature the pioneer log cabin.

Persons interested in the coin series should write to the museum or call 255-1225.

FRANK SESTERHENN of the Arlington Heights Lions Club, will be one of the members who will participate in a door to door broom sale tomorrow from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the northeast section of the village. Proceeds will help to finance programs for the blind.

Suspected burglary ring leader nabbed in village

A man believed to be the leader of a burglary ring that has stolen thousands of dollars in goods and checks from Chicago and the Northwest suburbs has been arrested by Rolling Meadows police.

Police yesterday charged 22-year-old Michael King, 1616 Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, with burglary and forgery after a two-week joint investigation by Rolling Meadows and Arlington Heights police led to the recovery of several hundred blank checks, United States Savings Bonds, a rifle, and a television set found in King's possession.

The goods were found in the apartment of Dorothy Miraglia, 24 4962 Algonquin, Rolling Meadows, with whom King's wife had been living. She has been charged with possession of stolen goods.

King is believed to be connected with a group of juveniles arrested Tuesday by Arlington Heights police for a series of burglaries near Hershey High School.

The youths reportedly staged the burglaries to pay gambling debts. They frequently played poker and other games for high stakes, according to Arlington Heights police.

ROLLING MEADOWS Det. Charles

Smith said the investigation began two weeks ago when the Bank of Rolling Meadows reported a forged check, drawn on the account of St. Colette's Church, had been passed at the bank. Smith said a series of reports on similar incidents of the checks being passed were received. Smith said a party which had cashed one of the checks gave police a description fitting King.

Smith said King was traced through Arlington Heights police to Miss Miraglia's residence, where the stolen goods are being kept.

More than $4,000 in checks and savings bonds were found along with the rifle and black-and-white portable television, Smith said. The checks from St. Colette's Church had been stolen from a resident on Linden Lane who served as treasurer for church functions, he said.

Adventures of your Garbageman

"Clean-Up" for Southwest Area Monday

On Monday, our men will be picking up "Spring Clean-Up" trash (old furniture and appliances) placed at the curb, from all customers within village limits who live in the Southwest section of town — that is, in the area west of Arlington Heights Road and south of Northwest Highway.

To receive this free service, "Spring Clean-Up" trash must be available at your curb by 7:00 a.m. Monday, regardless of what your normal garbage service day is.

Because this is a big job, our men may not be able to clear up the entire Southwest area on Monday alone. But if not, they'll get to you within a day or two following.

We will appreciate your cooperation.
